TO CELEBRATE FOURTH

Fine Display of Fireworks at the Country Club Monday Night.

THE PROGRAM ANNOUNCED.

Old Guard Band Will Furnish Selections During the Afternoon and at Night—Dancing to Follow Dinners.

The Fourth of July committee of the Plainfield Country Club has arranged for what will probably be the finest display of fireworks ever witnessed in this city. It will be given Monday night as soon after dark as possible, under the direction of Pain, whose displays have become famous throughout the country. George S. Clay is chairman of the committee from the club, and special efforts are being made to celebrate Independence Day in a safe and sane manner. Duuring the afternoon and evening there will be a concert by Van Barr's Old Guard Band, of New York. The program for the fireworks display will be as follows:

Salute of 4 9-inch aerial guns, ascending into the air with loud report; illumination of the grounds with 18 Bengal lights, changing color three times; display of 2-4 lb. exhibition rockets, exhibiting the very latest combinations and color effects; device: Grove of jewelled palms, flashing jewels and revolving golden palmettoes; three nests of Saucissons, showing curious contortions, finishing with loud reports; ascent of three 9-inch repeating bombs, three distinct breaks and color effects; four batteries of colored stars, displaying various tints as they rise into the sky; display of six 4-lb. exhibition rockets, fired so as to blend the various tints.

Discharge of five 9-inch bombs, single colors; device: Pain's Fountain of Light, arranged in tiers, pouring fourth a torrent of dazzling daylight, bright as the midnight sun; Devils-Among-the-Tailors, commencing with a triangular battery of romans, and continuing to a burst of gyrating squirming figures into space; three 15-inch electric bombs, Dazzling, bright silver fire; ascent of four 6 lb. floating festoon rockets, emitting a mass of lights, which form into festoons of jewels of all colors, as they float into space; jewelled cannonades, a fountain of silver fire.

Pain's Halley Comet Rockets. The rocket leaves the ground with a bright head and luminous tail and continues until it reaches its altitude, when it bursts into cometic rain with vivid flashes; Jack-in-the-Box. Battery of stars, finally resulting in a mass of fire, scattered in the air; discharge of two repeating bombs, red, white and blue colors.

Second illumination of the grounds with 18 bags of Pain's fire; red and green effect; ascent of four fiery waggler rockets, brilliant and vari-colored stars; three floral bombs, No. 2, beginning with a candle display, when suddenly a shell breaks at a great elevation, spreading varied effects in all directions; device: Pain's weird white falls, a misty blue radiance, with its flowing current of fire emitting sparkling rays and bright flashes; discharge of three 9-inch bombs, displaying a mass of dazzling colored stars; six colored geysers, reproduction of crystal water, sprouting from the earth; discharge of three Pain's North Pole batteries, throwing out snowflake stars and finishing with the national colors; ascent of four 4 lb. prize asteroid rockets, discharging beautiful floating asteroids with prismatic effect; display of three Tourbillions, forming umbrellas of fire in ascent and descent; device: American shield, in bright colors; three mines of serpents, emitting a shower of various colored stars; ascent of three Manhattan Beach rockets, latest effects in dazzling colors; discharge of two 15-inch electric blue bombs, beautiful in color and effect; three bouquets of roses, commencing with golden wheat sheaf, changing to a flight of balls of fire opening into a beautiful bouquet.

Device: Blazing sun, with iris wheel centers; ascent of four sun cluster rockets, a dazzling compound giving a brilliant effect; discharge of three colored shower batteries, a mass of vari-colored stars; two Chanticleer batteries, 1910 novelty; discharge of two 12-inch repeating bombs, chryanthemum blossoms; ascent of three 4 lb. hanging chain rockets, releasing long chains of colored lights, which float gracefully through space, continually changing color; discharge of two 15-inch bombs, the new DuBarry tint; final bouquet of 50 large colored rockets; good night.

FIREWORKS ORDINANCE IN A NUTSHELL HERE

For the information of readers of this paper, Martin B. Stutsman has prepared the following as a synopsis of the Fourth of July fireworks ordinance:

The use of fireworks and explosives of all or any kind whatsoever, in connection with the celebration of the Fourth of July, is now controlled and regulated by an ordinance of the Common Council, which went into effect June 20, when it was formally approved by the Mayor. Many inquiries have been made regarding the things that are prohibited and they are briefly set forth here:

1. IT IS UNLAWFUL: To discharge any cannon of any description, any pistol or revolver, or any device for discharging metal or paper caps on any PUBLIC or PRIVATE property within the limits of the City of Plainfield.

2. IT IS UNLAWFUL: To discharge any fire-cracker, torpedo, or fire works of any description or character, or anything composed of powder or other explosives; set in motion any baloon containing any lighted torch or burning material of any kind, on any street, lane, highway or public place within the limits of the City of Plainfield.

3. IT IS UNLAWFUL: To discharge any rockets having sticks attached, or set in motion any baloon contained a lighted torch or burning material of any kind on any PUBLIC or PRIVATE property within the City of Plainfield.

4. IT IS LAWFUL: To discharge, on private property only, all firecrackers made of soft paper loosely wrapped, containing no other explosive but black powder and not over five inches in length, and torpedoes not over three-quarters of an inch in diameter and any fireworks, other than skyrockets having sticks attached, and any baloon not containing a lighted torch or having attached thereto any burning material of any description.

CHAPEL'S FESTIVAL NETTED ABOUT $200

The most successful festival ever held by the parishioners of Warren Chapel took place yesterday afternoon and evening on the church lawn. This was the fifth affair of its kind and about $200 was realized. The complete success of the affair was due in a large measure to the able management of Theodore J. Martin. Every detail was carried out smoothly and successfully.

The lawn was speckled with booths gayly decorated with bunting flags and Japanese lanterns. These were lighted at night together with a myriad of incandescent electric lamps which added to the effect of the whole. Throughout the afternoon and evening music was furnished by a band under the direction of Whitney Frazee. This proved to be a popular feature of the festival.

The booths did a large business. The cake booth was in charge of Mrs. John Schenck assisted by the women of the Ladies' Aid Society. The waitresses were in charge of Mrs. J. O. McKelvey; the candy booth was in charge of Miss Nora B. Schenck; the fruit punch was distributed under the direction of Miss Mildred Bellis; and all took their money to Miss Matilda Bennett, who was the cashier.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of the following: Theodore Martin, chairman; Mrs. John Schenck, Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, and the Misses Adele Kirby, Nora B. Schenck, Adelaide Stiglitz, Bertha Hoagland, Ida Wheeler, Emma Windham and Dolly Bosterli and Charles Windham, William Kunzleman, Miller Bellis, Charles Holstein, Alvin Smith and Alfred Everitt.

TAFT LAUDED BY KEAN

State's Senior Senator Would Like to See Him Re-elected President.

PRAISES HIS ADMINISTRATION.

John Kean Reviews the Work Done By Congress During the Session Which Has Just Come to a Close.

United States Senator John Kean, interviewed by a reporter in Elizabeth on Wednesday night, expressed the belief that in spite of a formidable array of opponents he will be returned as New Jersey's senior Senator should the next legislature have a Republican majority. He also expressed entire satisfaction with the Taft administration, and declared that Mr. Taft will not only be a candidate for re-election but will be returned to office for a second term.

Senator Kean was enthusiastic over the successful termination of the recent session of Congress, especially because of the completeness with which the Administration program was carried out by the legislators. Of great importance to Elizabeth and the entire eastern part of the State in the appropriation making possible improvement of the water shipping facilities in and about Newark Bay and the Kill von Kull. The improvement projected, he said, particularly the straightening of the channel off Shooter Island, will be of enormous value to Elizabeth shippers, as was demonstrated by a letter of appreciation he had just received from the Singer Manuufacturing Company.

The country at large, he continued, has been benefited by the action of Congress in creating a Court of Commerce for the regulation of railroad rates, a part of the Taft program, and the postal savings bank, which will prove of greater usefulness in the West than in the East, although the Senator has received letters of appreciation for his work in behalf of this project from many of his New Jersey constituents. In the creation of Arizona and New Mexico as States, the Senator pointed out, the Republican party redeemed its campaign pledges, and in addition to this pushed through legislation that it is estimated will reduce the postal deficit from $14,000,000 to $5,000,000.

"The session was very successful," said the Senator, in summing up the situation, "more so than most of them have been. I believe that everyone left Washington with the feeling that a great deal of benefit to the Nation at large had been accomplished. It may be true that there was a feeling that Mr. Taft was not 'making good' four weeks ago, but surely the success of his program at the close of the session has greatly altered this opinion. I believe the President has done good work. Furthermore, I believe he will be the next candidate of the Republican party and that he will be re-elected."

Beyond the statement that he doubts not he will be returned to the Upper House, Senator Kean declined to comment upon the interesting Senatorial situation that has developed in New Jersey during the past few months, mainly through the large number of aspirants for the Elizabethan's seat. He said that he has talked with none of the other candidates regarding the situation, but feels sure he will be the successful candidate.

"Why," he said, "it would be foolish to go into the fight without having confidence in the outcome."

Mr. Kean did not care to say what he believes will be the effect of Mr. Roosevelt's return to America, but he did say that he believes the former President is entirely satisfied with the record of his successor.

COUNTER-SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST ADOLPH LYMAN

Peter Fugman, a son-in-law of Hugo Maull, has begun suit against Adolph Lyman, a hostler in the stables of the Maull hotel, for assault and battery. This is a reversal of the case tried before Justice Hughes, of Warrenville when Fugman was held in $100 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

The alleged assault took place Sunday evening, May 29. Maull gave some pigeons to Fugman and when he was getting them from the lofts, it is alleged, Lyman pulled the ladder from under him. Then he pounced on Fugman. Fugman, however was equal to the occasion and turned on the Frenchman whom he is alleged to have pummelled soundly. Lyman then brought suit against Fugman and the latter was held to await the action of the grand jury. Yesterday Fugman began suit against Lyman. The case will be tried this afternoon before Justice Thomas Snape.

DISORDERLY ON TROLLEY; WERE FINED $25 EACH

For causing a disturbance on a main line trolley car at Second and Richmond streets last night, Edward Mackey and Alexander Campbell were fined $25 each in the city court this morning. It was alleged by Conductor Jacob Glassofer that the two men were intoxicated at the time and that Mackey declined to pay his fare. Mackey claimed that he had already paid his fare and strenuously objected to having it collected a second time. Campbell made no defense.

Judge Runyon administered a severe rebuke to the culprits. He made it plain that disorderly conduct on trolley cars wouuld not be tolerated and that offensive or profane language particularly must be stopped. The conductor was commended for his actions and the court stated that it wished that all conductors would see to it that no disorderly actions be permitted. A more severe example will be made of the next offender.

BRUTALITY TO DOG STIRS LOCAL S.P.C.A.

The local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has taken up the case of a dog belonging to Patrick Malvin, which he alleges was shot but not killed by the local poundkeeper. The dog was not licensed and was picked uup rfom the porch of John McDonough, of 523 East Sixth street, by Mr. Keiderling, the dog catcher. This occurred on Thursday night. Saturday the dog was shot, and yesterday morning it returned to the home of E. H. Clevely with an ugly bullet wound in its head. The dog formerly belonged to Clevely but was given by him to Malvin a short time ago. It was a water spaniel and a pet with its owner, who says he knew nothing of its capture.

This morning Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals began an investigation of the case.

Jewelry Stores May Not Close.

Local jewelers are not likely to put through their usual plan of early closing this summer, owing to the obstinancy of one of their number who holds out against the scheme. All had tacitly agreed to close at 6.30 p. m. during the summer months and when various members of the trade visited each other all were in sympathy with the idea and readily agreed to the plan. One, however, bolted. Unless he joins in with the others, jewelry stores will be kept open nights throughout the summer as in winter.

Y. W. C. A. Girls' Picnic.

The junior gymnasium class of the Y. W. C. A. held a picnic on the Watchung mountains yesterday. About a dozen girls were in the party under the leadership of Miss Margaret Mosher. The trip was made by trolley to Johnston's drive and from there the girls walked to the baby camp where they spent a part of the afternoon. While they were there the first wagon load of children for the camp arrived.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrigan Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary.

A TRIP TO MARK EVENT.

The Prosperous Coal Dealer and His Wife Will be Given Reception at Albany, New York, Tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrigan, of South avenue, whose "one sweet song" of marital bliss reached the quarter century mark today, left early this afternoon for Albany, New York, where they will celebrate the anniversary of their wedding. Relatives of the couple will give a reception in their honor tonight. After spending several days at New York State's capitol city, they will journey on to Niagara Falls where they will remain until the latter part of next week.

Both Mr. Harrigan and his wife, are natives of Albany and have many friends there. She was Miss Emilie Crowder, daughter of Thomas Crowder, at the time of their marriage on July 1, 1885. The ceremony took place at St. Patrick's church, Albany, and was performed by Father Gower. Shortly after the wedding the couple removed to New York city, where Mr. Harrigan was engaged in the coal and feed business until his removal here seven years ago.

Mr. Harrigan now owns one of the most prosperous coal and feed yards in this section of the State, the plant being located on South avenue, near Woodland avenue. He is a prominent member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and is a popular resident. The couple have two children, Miss Emilie and Richard Harrigan.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS ENJOY THEIR ANNUAL PICNIC.

The Plainfield Graded Sunday School Teachers' Union to the number of about fifty, and including a number of visitors, held its annual picnic yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. Frank French on Washington avenue. The spacious lawn proved an attractive place for the women and the time passed all too quickly. The whole afternoon was given up to sociability, with an intermission for a bounteous spread of good things.

After the refreshment hour, the women spent the time playing games and continuing the social features. The Union extended a vote of thanks to Mrs. French for her hospitality and the use of her fine lawn for the annual affair, and all agreed that it was one of the best picnics yet held.

Entertained the Now and Then Club.

Miss Anna Doyle, of East Fifth street, entertained the Now and Then Euchre Club at her home on Wednesday evening. Euchre was the feature, followed by games, music and dancing, after which refreshments were served. Honors for euchre were awarded to Miss Helen Lynch and James Lynch and the consolation prizes to Miss Fanny Mundy, Helen Dorthy, Annabelle McAfee, Helen Lynch, Alice McAfee and Anna Doyle and Messrs. Earl Moran, James Cullen, Edward Mundy, Harry Forristel, James Lynch, William Brown, Harry Pasch and John Doyle.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, received an invitation to attend the patriotic services at Grace M. E. Church, Sunday night, but it did not come in time to arrange for the attendance of the council in a body. However, as many of the members as possible will be present. All of the Jr. O. U. A. M. members have been invited to attend in a body.

Miss Vogel a Bride.

Miss Mathilde Magdalen Vogel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Vogel, of Hopedale, Mass., who was a teacher in the local public schools, this year, was married to Richard King Newman, of Worcester, Mass., Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will be "At Home," atfer October 1, at 110 Lincoln street, Worcester, Mass.

Off for Waywayanda.

Five youngsters got up at an early hour this morning in order to catch the 6.27 train for New Yark on their way to Camp Waywayanda where they will spend their vacation at the State Y. M. C. A. camp. In the party were: Secretary William Bingeman, Charles Line, Joseph Sattels, Robert Day, Benjamin Cooley, Hoyt Tompkinson and Russell Lee.

HANSEN NOT TO BLAME DECLARES HIS COUNSEL

A reporter for The Daily Press interviewed Judge Isaac P. Runyon, counsel for Harold Hansen, today, with reference to the report respecting the Harvey Thorn accident some time ago and the lawyer said he was surprised at such a statement appearing in print when the facts of the case, he said, are known to everyone who investigated it.

"That Thorn on a motorcycle ran into Hansen's automobile; that Hansen had a hearing at Trenton before Commissioner Smith and that the Commissioner decided upon the evidence before him to the same effect that the reporters did who investigated the accident, that Hansen was in no way to blame for the accident," said Judge Runyon, "are well known. Now, if, after the accident happened, Hansen violated some statute of this state, can it be possible that any fair-minded person contends that punishment will bring pecuniary reward to Mr. Thorn?" he continued.

"The reason this statement is made, it is stated 'Harvey Thorn wants pecuniary award for his injuries.' I do not try my cases except in courts, nor do I intend to set forth the evidence that I have, but I wish to state positively that Mr. Thorn was entirely at fault so far as the accident was concerned and that pecuniary award is not given in matters of that kind.

"Mr. Hansen appeared at Trenton at the time set by the Commissioner, had his hearing and the complaint was dismissed on the ninth day of June ult., and I did not put it in the newspapers.

"Mr. Hansen has been treated so unfairly in this matter, not by the newspapers, but by persons furnishing information to the newspapers, that it is absolutely necessary in justice to my client to make a statement. We are not complaining against your newspaper or any other, because we realize that you believe the information that you get to be proper news."

PLAYGROUNDS OPEN TUESDAY AFTERNOON

All is in readiness for the opening of the two city playgrounds Tuesday afternoon. At the meeting of the commission yesterday final details were arranged and a supervisor for the Stillman school playground was engaged.

The new supervisor is Miss Mary Leonard Childs, of Middle Hadden, Conn. Miss Childs was graduated from the New Haven School of Physical Training in the class of 1908; and for the past two years she has been on the faculty of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa. This is a school for girls. The commission feels that Miss Child's training and experience especially qualify her for the position of supervisor of one of the local playgrounds.

Both playgrounds will be opened Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There will be no formal opening exercises, but all Plainfield children are cordially invited to make use of the playgrounds. They are especially meant for use of the smaller children.

The equipment of the playgrounds is the same at both the Bryant and Stillman school yards. The apparatus includes a giant stride, six swings, a children's slide, four teeter boards, a platform for folk dancing, outdoor drinking fountains and benches for the convenience of mothers and guests who bring their children to the playgrounds.

One of the most important things in the equipment is a large sand bin filled with clean sea shore sand. Judging from the experience of those who have had most to do with playgrounds this is one of the best things to interest small children; and more pleasure comes to them from it than from any other piece of apparatus.

25 YOUNGSTERS TAKEN TO LOCAL BABY CAMP.

The first lot of little children and babies was taken to the Baby Camp on the mountains yesterday afternoon in one of Dr. Pocock's large wagons. Twenty-five including the mothers of some of the children were in the party. Three or four of the youngsters in poor health will be kept at the camp indefinitely.

The committee in charge of the camp is planning to hold a reception there July 12, at which time the public will be invited to inspect the camp. The details for this affair are now being arranged.

RUNYON FOR CONGRESS?

Popular Plainfield Judge is Mentioned for the G.O.P. Nomination.

WON'T DISCUSS THE REPORT.

Though Not Affiliated With the Party Organization it Is Believed He Would Be Acceptable.

Judge William N. Runyon declined to discuss the movement on foot here to launch a boom for him for the Fifth district congressional nomination, on the Republican ticket, when seen today. His name has been connected with the place for several days so far as street talk is concerned but no one in a position could say anything beyond that he would make a strong candidate particularly in Plainfield.

Whether Juudge Runyon would be acceptable to the "organization," could not be learned this morning as Republican County Chairman Frank H. Smith and Factory Inspector Andrew Mc Cardell, the "machine" leaders were both out of town. It is reported, however, that neither would raise a hand against the nomination of the judge, who for years has had the strongest personal following of any man probably in Union county.

Judge Runyon has many warm friends in the organization as well as among the progressives and with him as a candidate it is believed here that the party breach so far as congress is concerned could be healed. This fact, it is stated by the knowing ones would make him acceptable to the "organization." Like Mr. Fowler, he possesses much eloquence and is considered by his friends as having a more magnetic personality.

How Morris county will act is not known here, although it is known that State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, the Morris county "boss" is as firmly opposed today to Mr. Fowler as is Union County Chairman Smith. Union county can control the situation alone but it is considered that nothing will be done by the Union county organization which is not agreeable to Morris.

James H. McGraw, of Morris, it is well understood declines to run for the nomination and so far that county has not produced a candidate and the chances are said to be, it is reliably reported, that none will be entered from that district. The same is true of Warren county. In Union, two others have been mentioned. Both are Plainfielders. They are State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, who is now abroad and will remain in Europe until the fall, and former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, who declined two years ago to run against Fowler for the nomination. Mr. Ackerman's absence would make it impossible for him to run as Mr. Fowler has already started a vigorous campaign, visiting the various counties to feel the pulse of the people.

NETHERWOOD CAMP OPENS ON TUESDAY.

The Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be opened for the season on Tuesday, July 5. The Home has been refurnished and repainted and everything is in readiness for the reception of the children. Miss Curry states that the number of applicants is larger than ever, and she will be pleased to see any of her old friends.

Through the warm weather Miss Curry lost nine of her little charges from heat exhaustion, which shows the need of a fresh air home.

NEWARK, N.J.

"FITZ" PICKS "JEFF" TO WIN BIG BATTLE

Victoria, B. C., July 1.—Bob Fitzsimmons, of Dunellen, who arrived on the Marama from Sydney Tuesday night, picks Jeffries as the winner in Monday's battle for the world's championship. He thinks the fight will go over twenty rounds. Johnson, he believes, while clever, has not the punch.

He met at Victoria Frank Slavin, his old opponent, and also an Australian, who picks Johnson. The two argued the case pro and con, but parted still of their original opinion.

"Any fight is uncertain as a horse race, and this one particularly, but my opinion is well known. Johnson won't stand for long against the massive strength and bear-like tenacity of Jeffries, provided he's in shape," said Fitzsimmons, who is en route to Reno.

"I haven't seen Jeff yet, nor have I had a chance of sizing up Johnson, but I believe that the negro champion will wilt before the big fellow."

Fitzsimmons went on to tell how he thought Jeffries would win. Johnson, he said, is a splendid defensive fighter. He is rather hard to get, but he never was one to force hostilities. Jeffries, Fitz said, bores right into the thick of it, and gives a little bit more. "Everything depends on Jeffries' condition," said Fitzsimmons, "and I have confidence that he is in proper shape."

Of his defeat in his engagement with Lang in Australia, the ex-heavyweight champion talked volubly.

"I should never have been put out," he remarked. "Lang is something of a joke. I was not feeling well. All my training was in the open, and I got a touch of rheumatism. When I stepped into the ring I was sore and stiff. If I had been in anything like shape there would have been nothing to it."

GOLF.

The initial play for the Golf Committee trophy, qualifying round, will be an attraction at the Plainfield Country Club, tomorrow. The play will be for members of both Class A and Class B, and will be continued on July 4 and 9.

On Monday there will also be a driving competition and an approaching and putting contest, which will be open to all members of the club.

Another strong attraction at the club in the afternoon and evening will be the band concert by Van Baar's band, of New York, and the display of fireworks. This promises to be unusually fine.

Fourth of July will also be celebrated in proper fashion at the Park Golf Club, where several events are scheduled both in golf and tennis. There will be an approaching and putting contest in the afternoon for mixed couples, and the usual social features at the clubhouse.

Women members of the Forest Hill Field Club have started in on their midsummer series of competitions. In a recent eighteen-hole medal play handicap for two prizes the scratch players carried off the honors. Mrs. C. A. Dixon won, with a score of 101, while Mrs. H. B. Salmon took second prize with 104.

During the week of July 4 the Canadian open championship tournament will be held on the links of the Lambton Golf and Country Club at Toronto. Looking through metropolitan spectacles, interest will center in the doings of players from this vicinity. Among those who have already decided to cross the border are Jack Hobens, of Englewood, and Dave Hunter, the Essex County Country Club "pro."

Plainfield, N. J., July 1. 1910.

HERE AND THERE.

The cutting down of some of the old elm trees in front of the First Baptist church, on Front street, means the removal of very old landmarks. They were planted in 1842 by David Coon, whose children, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, Mrs. Margaret Randolph and Mrs. Calvin Boice, residents of this city, Mrs. F. W. Miles, of Grahamsville, N. Y., Mrs. A. C. Nichols and David J. Coon, of Kansas City, Mo., are still living. The old church was built in 1818. Former pastors, Rev. S. F. Drake and Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes have kept the fact in the memory of the church, as they were wont to tell, in welcoming any of Mr. Coon's descendants into the church fellowship, of his great interest in the trees. They said there was a severe drought the season they were planted, and Mr. Coon, himself, every night, carried water from the brook in the rear of the church to save the lives of the trees. When the present church edifice was built, the bed of the stream was changed, as formerly the brook flowed nearer the old church.

Proctor's Bill a Good One.

George Yeoman is the funny man at Proctor's theatre, this week. His parodies are good and his stories are witty. He is surely the German jester. Renard & Melville are a pair of clever girls, who can sing and dance. Their baseball song makes a hit. Brixton & Brixton, Jewish comedians, in the "Hebrew Recruit," present a clever travesty on a raw recruit. Maud Palmer Terrell, pianologuist, is exceptionally good. Her song about the old maid is a winner.

The Newspaper as a Forum.

Why do our people so rarely write to the newspapers giving their opinions on matters of home progress? The Englishman is forever writing to his newspapers about abuses small and great. From the crossing sweeper to the railroad president all fear the influence on public sentiment of these public officials and public service corporations, but it all ends in thin air and nothing is done. The newspapers are left alone to bring pressure on these agencies, which come to think that the newspapers represent merely single men or small groups of men. Let the public stand by the newspapers in their effort for better work in public and corporate capacity. Why feel this morbid sensitiveness about seeing your name in print? Why not give the public the advantage of some of these good questions you scatter around in the ineffectiveness of the small conversational circle? Remember that a published letter has hundreds of time more influence than opinions privately spoken.—Trenton Advertiser.

Rev. J. R. Folsom, of Atlantic City, spoke at the Baptist church, Wednesday night, in the interest of the $100,000 fund which the Baptists of the State are trying to raise.

Rev. Dr. T. C. Gardiner will preach at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning and administer the communion at the close. He will also take charge of the covenant meeting this evening. At this service a letter will be read from the absent pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, which many will be glad to hear.

FURNITURE POLISH.

An excellent polish for ordinary purposes may be made by mixing three parts of linseed oil and one part spirits of turpentine.

Use a piece of cloth or fine flannel and apply to the surface of the furniture, then rub well in with a pad of wool. Another plan is to use equal portions of turpentine, linseed oil and vinegar.

A good polish for mahogany is obtained by mixing half a pint of rectified naptha and two and a half ounces of shellac. Dissolve the latter by leaving it in a warm place, then shake well and use by means of a brush.

Bare wood can be polished with pumice stone, passing it roughly over the surface until smooth; then take powdered tripoli and boiled linseed oil and polish to a brilliant surface.

An Old Story.

Sister's Young Man (at the celebration of his engagement, to small brother)—Now, Charlie, wouldn't you like to taste some champagne?

Charlie—Oh, I know what it's like. This isn't the first time she's got engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. George Endicott, of Virginia, are visiting relatives in town for a time.

NERVOUS CHILDREN.

A shock to the nervous system of a little child is sometimes so injurious that years afterwards the harmful results are apparent. Even if the temporary effects be considered, the importance of protecting the nervous system in infancy should be recognized by parents or by all who associate with children.

They should never be frightened by loud noises or unusual sights.

As a rule, the more quiet a baby 's kept during the first year of its life the better chance it has for life of health and happiness. The fact that so large a proportion of the human family die in infancy is due largely to the folly of nurses and the ignorance of mothers.

Overbright babies do not commend themselves to physicians, who know that the first year of a child's life should be spent largely in sleep. All effects to arouse the dormant mind of a child at this period are attended with danger. The foolish practise of tossing a helpless baby in the air, while it screams, with affright and delight, is a most dangerous one.

A physician with a large practise tells the story of a precociously bright child which showed evident delight when tossed in this way by a doting father, who was accustomed to play with it every evening. The child trembled with delight when the night's frolic was over; but one evening, from this trembling, it passed into a spasm, the first indication of one of those fatal brain diseases against which medical science is helpless.

Mother Nature generally pursues her course in quiet, unsuspected ways, and any attempt to introduce the unusual and to shock the little baby cannot but result disastrously.

ROYAL WOMEN SHOPPING.

One of the best dressed women in Europe is Queen Ameria, of Portugal. Queen Helena, of Italy, on the contrary, is somewhat apt to affect for extreme styles, although she is best in the smartest of costumes.

Her majesty does not confine herself to one dressmaker, but will visit half a dozen shops until she decides on what she wants. What is more, she does not believe in paying exorbitant prices simply because she is the queen, and the dressmakers claim she knows how to drive a bargain.

The Queen of Holland, too, likes gay clothes, and she is exceedingly fond of French styles. She will pay a good price for anything she takes a fancy to, and experience has taught the French dressmakers to show her only green, blue and white and to turn on the electric switches to see how the colors look by artificial daylight.

Look After Your Teeth.

A perfectly shaped set is a gift which nature rarely bestows, but as the average young girl's teeth are sound, by thoroughly brushing them at night, morning and after each meal she may at least keep them looking white and wholesome. If she loses many of her teeth before reaching middle age it is usually because an unwillingness to endure a little pain prevents her from having them stopped until only mere shells remain to be worked upon.

Bird's Nest Salad.

Have ready as many crisp leaves of lettuce as may be required to make a dainty little nest for each person. Curl them into shape and in each one place tiny speckled eggs made by rolling cream cheese into shape, then sprinkling with fine chopped parsley. Serve with French dressing hidden under the leaves of the nest.

Holiday Hours at Public Library.

Monday, July 4, being a holiday, the circulating department of the Palinfield Public Library and Reading Room, will be closed. The reading room will be open from 2 until 6 o'clock in the afternoon, with an attendant in charge.

Miss Giles Weds John Cannon.

The wedding of Miss Carrie Giles of Highland avenue, to John Cannon, of South Plainfield, took place at the home of Justice of the Peace Snape last night. The witnesses were Mrs. Snape and Mrs. Joseph Flack, a neighbor.

—J. E. Middleskauf, of North avenue, has purchased a Hupmobile runabout.

Russia's People.

The population of Russia is actually growing at a rate of one and one-half per cent a year, not equaled in any important country on the globe; not even in France does so large a proportion of the population belong to the land-owning class, providing a necessary condition for the agricultural prosperity of the coming generation. Since 1877 the amount of arable land held by the nobility has diminished by a third; yet the price of land has risen in every part of the empire.—Review of Reviews.

Strenuous Church Worker.

Whitefield, one of the founders of Methodism, who died in 1770, was a strenuous preacher. His usual program was 40 hours' solid speaking each week, and this to congregations measured in thousands, but he often spoke for six hours. This was not all. For "after his labors, instead of taking a rest, he was engaged in offering up prayers and intercessions or in singing hymns, as his manner was, in every house to which he was invited."

Why Trees Grow Large.

Washington and Oregon have some of the largest trees in the world and the climatic conditions of that section are responsible for this fact. In the Puget sound country the rainfall is about 53 inches, while up in the higher Cascades, near Seattle, it is 100 inches, and sometimes reaches the 150-inch point. Under such climatic conditions the seeds of the trees germinate readily and all the trees continue to make a vigorous growth.

The Sweet Uses of Adversity.

You can wear out your old clothes. You are not troubled with visitors. You are not persecuted to stand sponsor. Begging letter writers will let you alone. Impostors know it is useless to try and bleed you. You can practice temperance. You are not foolishly flattered. You save many a debt and many a headache. Finally, if you have a true friend you'll find it out.—Life.

Sand a Curse to the Country.

Sand is the curse of Portuguese East Africa. It blocks the rivers and harbors and stretches in a vast sea toward the interior, effectually cutting off the coast towns from the highlands. Besides, it makes the problem of transportation the bugbear of the planter.

Value of College Education.

"Do you think a college education helps a man in business?" "Sure. I've had two college boys here workin' for me durin' the last year, and I was afraid to discharge either one of 'em for fear they'd find fault with my grammar when I done it."—Chicago Record Herald.

Those Who Need It.

Some one advises a school for beginners in poker. Beginners at poker need no school; everything comes their way. What is needed is a school for the men who have reached the period when they continually walk around their chair.

Speaking of Warmth.

Los Angeles boasts that it is always warm out there. Not shoving any slams, of course, but we happen to recall another place where it is also pretty warm most of the time.—St. Louis Star.

Value of Reading Aloud.

Reading aloud is a splendid exercise for the voice. It gives intelligence and makes the voice clear and limpid. If it is not possible to read to a group one should read aloud to oneself at least ten minutes a day.

Lacked Tact.

"Why can't people be more diplomatic?" mourns the Philosopher of Folly. "Last night I made an enemy of a woman by telling her that her favorite candy made people fat."

Make the Home Happy.

Make the children feel that home is the happiest place in the world. I value the delicious home feeling as one of the choicest gifts a parent can bestow.—Irving.

Good Word for the Toad.

The secretary of agriculture estimates that a toad will eat $19.40 worth of flies and insects in a season. Treat the toad with kindness and respect.

Beware of the Descent.

The descent into hell is easy, but to retrace your steps, and ascend to the upper air, this is labor, this is work.—Virgil.

Source of Our Furs.

Latin American countries and the Orient are the chief contributors of the $100,000,000 worth of hides and skins imported in 1909.

Happiness.

Happiness is not that which you are doing, but the motive at the back of the doing.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Back on the Job.

The One Idea.

Frequently the man of one idea would get along better if he didn't adopt a new one every day.

Improvement on Old Adage.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor of the Baptist church, will preach Sunday morning on "The Constraining Power," and in the evening on the topic, "Calls." The morning service is at 10.30 and the evening service at 7.45. The Sunday School meets at 12 o'clock noon and the Christian Endeavor Society at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Harry DeMeza and family leave Monday for Lake Schwartzwood, where they will spent their vacation.

NEW JERSEY'S NAVAL MILITIA HAS MONITOR.

Hoboken, July 1.—The first intimation of the naval activities to be expected down at the eastern end of Long Island came with the arrival here of the Tonopah, which is to be used by the New Jersey battalion in charge of Commander Edward McClure Peters. The Tonopah, her low hull bristling with guns, from big 12-inchers down to Colt automatics, came sliding into harbor last night and was berthed near the old sloop of war Portsmouth, which served the New Jersey battalion for so many years as a cruising ship. The Tonopah was formerly called the Nevada.

It is expected that some very profitable sea experience will be afforded the militiamen on their 700-mile cruise to Hampton Roads and return. There will be fleet maneuvers, steaming in column formation, in line abreast, together with various drills which will put the men in good sea trim.

Recently the Tonopah has been overhauled at Norfolk, being put in shape by navy mechanics for the summer's work. On Saturday thirty-five members of the New Jersey Reserves, under Lieutenant Foster, left for Norfolk to help Uncle Sam's marines bring the vessel to New York. The vessel started for this port last Monday night.

STATE EXAMINATION OF DENTAL GRADUATES.

Trenton, July 1.—The fifty-fifth examination of graduates from the various dental colleges of the country, who propose to practice in New Jersey, will commence at the State house on the morning of July 5 at 8 o'clock. The first day will be devoted to practical work only.

In the Assembly chamber will commence the filling of teeth for patients with gold and alloys. At the same time, in the basement, will commence the soldering of metal sets of teeth intended for practical cases, and the succeeding two days will be devoted to theoretical examinations.

Many of the men who intend practising in the various towns of Essex county have already offered their services for the two free dental clinics already in operation in Newark.

EVERETT COLBY WILL RETURN TO AID MARTIN.

Former State Senator Everett Colby, who went abroad with his family last week, has no intention in abandoning his co-worker in the Progressive Republican cause, William P. Martin, who expects to wage a strenuous campaign for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Mr. Colby's departure at this time was made upon the advice of his physician, who urged him to remain away for a year or more. This the former senator agreed to do, but not until after the September primaries. His physician was insistent and he finally agreed to leave at once and return early in August, when he will stump the state for Martin. Later he will go back to Europe and may remain for an extended period.

HUTCHINS NEW LEADER OF UNIV. OF MICHIGAN.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 1.—Harry Burns Hutchins has been elected president of the University of Michigan, to succeed Dr. James B. Angell. He has been dean of the law department at Ann Arbor since 1895.

President Hutchins was born in Lindon, N. H., April 8, 1847. He received his early education at the New Hampshire and Vermont Conference seminaries and at Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn. In 1871 he was graduated from the University of Michigan. He was professor of rhetoric and history at Michigan, 1872-6; professor of law, 1884-7; professor of law at Cornell, 1887-95, and acting president at Michigan, 1897-8.

SEEK MOUNTAIN TROLLEY.

The North Plainfield Township Civic Society has considered the subject of trolley accommodations. W. de la R. Anderson, who has called upon Colonel Hine, of the Public Service Corporation, recently to see if he would not extend the line from its terminus on Somerset street, North Plainfield, up the mountain, a mile or two, reports that he company could not entertain the proposition while the twenty-year franchise law was in existence.

Mr. Anderson said he had learned that, about thirty years ago, a right of way for the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad was condemned and surveys were made along the mountain between Bound Brook and Newark. He stated that he was investigating the status of this right of way and will make a report at the next meeting.

It was thought, Mr. Anderson said, that if the P. and R. right of way still holds good some arrangement might be made with that company for its use, and when this is obtained the P. S. C. might again be appealed to. In the event of it not being willing to build a road along the mountain base some one else might be induced to do so.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

A Democratic Capital.

Here in Washington all men are equal. Even the diplomats who come here from abroad soon get the spirit. They go skating and horseback riding without ceremony. They have the same rights as everybody else, but no more. And the result usually is picturesque and cosmopolitan. Exceedingly democratic and informal is the capital of the United States.—Washington Post.

Business Courtesy.

The adage, "Courtesy costs nothing," would, if true, offer sufficient reason to insure its observance by practically every member of the commercial community; it being fairly obvious to most of us that courtesy is an excellent lubricant for the machinery of business, however, requires a very considerable expenditure of mental effort, which very few of us are capable of sustaining at all times.

A New Metal.

A new material, called by its inventor "cork metal," has been introduced for the manufacture of aeroplanes. It is about 40 per cent. lighter than aluminum, and is nothing more than an alloy of magnesium with small quantities of aluminum and iron. The drawback to the "cork metal" is that it reacts chemically with hot water, giving off hydrogen, but doubtless this difficulty will be got over in some way.

Two Ways.

One man sees a raccoon or squirrel close at hand, and is greatly interested in its wild beauty and pleasing independence. Another man sees it, and mourns for his gun that he might kill it, out of pure love of slaughter. Its innocence and love of life mean nothing to him. One enjoys the brotherhood of all life—great and small; the other would shed sorrow and trouble on the innocent.—Farm Journal.

Loves Music.

An Alma girl who is considered as belonging to the high-brow crowd was the object of a serenade the other night, and in telling a friend about it said: "I don't think there is nothing more nicer than to be woken up at night with vocal singing."—Alma (Kan.) Signal.

Forest Possibilities.

The forest service considers that it would be entirely possible, if the forest land is improved and the timber economically cut and completely utilized, to produce on the remaining 450,000,000 acres sufficient wood for a population much greater than that now in the country.

More Sugar Scandal.

The Grocer's Wife—"Ach! no. my child, ve cannot to de beach go in de vinter; but ven de gustomers have went away, you may take your iddle pail und shofel and play mit de granulated sugar."—Harper's Magazine.

Under a Heavy Strain.

"You ought to have come out and had dinner with us last Sunday," said Mr. Younglove. "My wife prepared it herself—baked the bread and cake and everything. The table fairly groaned."

Butter Adulterated with Flint.

Butter that was sold to the English working classes of the fifties was adulterated with ground flint. The flint stones were ground and manipulated into a substance called "soluble silica."

Uncle Ezra Says:

"Ef some young men would put ez much energy into the rest uv the farm work ez they put into sowin' wild oats, they'd discover a good deal more money in farmin'."

Fooled.

"De man dat tinks nobody can't fool him," said Uncle Eben, "stahts in by foolin' hi'se'f right there."—Washington Star.

Advice for the Home Builder.

Houses are built to live in, not to look on; therefore, let use be preferred before uniformity, except where both can be had.—Bacon.

A Significant Hint.

If there were no birds man could not live on the earth, and birds are decreasing in this country.—Our Dumb Animals.

Hard Job.

Matrimonial Agent.—"Really, when I see those two whom I am going to introduce to each other, I don't know to which I shall break it gently."

Utilizing Former Waste.

A new fertilizer is now being made in Norway from the mortar from purifying the sugar liquid, which was formerly difficult to dispose of.

A Common Mistake.

A good many people think they have principles when they merely possess habits.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Fools Few People.

Counterfeit sympathy is one of the most easily detected imitations in the world.

Making Conversation.

He (after embarrassing silence)—Don't you think the floor is unusually flat to-night?—Williams Purple Cow.

Possibly True.

Many a preacher yould revise his sermons on the next life if he knew more about this one.—St. Louis Times.

PRINCETON CONFERENCE WILL OPEN OCTOBER 17.

Arrangements are being perfected for the fall conference at the Princeton Theological Seminary. This conference has become an established and helpful feature of the seminary year.

This fall the conference will be held October 17 and 18. The opening address will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. John R. Davies, pastor of the Bethlehem Presbyterian church of Philadelphia.

Among the others who have promised to take part are the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, the Rev. Dr. Chas. L. Goodell, of Calvary M. E. church, New York City; Kerr Duncan MacMillan, B. D., of Princeton, and the Rev. James M. Farr, of Christ church, New York City. Many of the seminary alumni have signified their intention of returning for this occasion.

Among the subjects to be treated are: "The Work of Preaching," "The Physical Life of the Minister," "The Social Life of the Minister," "The Intellectual and Spiritual Life of the Minister," "The Work of the Institutional Church," "Personal and Pastoral Evangelism."

WOULD USE PRISONERS IN COUNTY ROAD WORK.

Members of the jail committee of the board of freeholders favor placing men sent to the county jail to serve sentences for crimes such as non-support, wife beating and drunkenness, at work on the county roads. The committee met yesterday at the jail, and while the question was not discussed at the meeting, the opinion of the members was asked by a reporter.

Freeholder Perry said that he has always favored the placing of men in the county institution at some kind of work such as the building of roads. It was admitted, however, that the facilities at the present time are such that work of this kind could not be done.

It would require the hiring of extra guards to watch the prisoners, but the expense would be met by the saving to the county on the cost of the road work. It was hinted that the time would come when chain gangs, such as are frequently seen in the streets of the southern towns of the country, will be seen on the roads in Union county.

FINED HIM $50 FOR STEALING LUMBER.

William Wallace, of Roselle, was fined $50 by Judge Atwater in the Court of Special Sessions on Wednesday for the larceny of lumber from a house being built on Galloping Hill road, Roselle Park, on May 5, and was ordered to be committed until the fine was paid. Prosecutor Swift stated that Wallace formerly worked for a contractor named Miller, who was building the house on Galloping Hill road, and that he was finally discharged by Miller. Miller, he said, kept losing lumber and materials, and one evening hid about the premises and later saw Wallace come into the house with an Italian boy and take some of the lumber away. Attorney Samuel Schleimer represented Wallace and said that he took the lumber to make a scaffold and intended to return it.

C. Gibson, colored, was sent to the county jail for ten days by Judge Atwater for stealing fish.

Charles Weigand, a boy, pleaded not guilty to the charge of larceny. Trial was set for July 6.

TICKETS ARE GIVEN OUT FOR DEMOCATRIC OUTING.

Distribution of tickets for the fifteenth annual outing of the Democratic City Committee were made at a meeting of the body Tuesday night. The sub-committee in charge of the affair sprung a pleasant surprise when the tickets were given out and the committee believes that it is the first to adopt the slogan, "Rail and Harbor City" in the way that it has. In the centre of the ticket is a cut showing a railroad train speeding over a bridge across a body of water in which lie several vessels. On the other side of the train are seen factories in full blast. Underneath is the slogan, "The Rail and Harbor City."

The outing will be held as usual to Witzel's Point View Grove, Long Island Sound, the steamer Sirius having been chartered for the occasion. The date is August 17. Last year 1,200 Democrats were present and plans for the accommodation of 1,500 are being made this year.

Summer Camp for Negro Children.

An effort is being made to establish a fresh air camp for negro babies and children of Elizabeth near Kenilworth. The Rev. W. H. Taylor, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, Elizabeth, is the promoter of the scheme. The minister's plan is to erect a big tent where the mothers can take their children every day so they can get the benefits of the fresh air and sunshine of the country. The parents need pay nothing but the carfare to and from the grounds.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight, when the newly-elected officers will be in their place for the first time.

To those contemplating a trip abroad we are prepared to furnish Travelers' Cheques, as well as Letters of Credit, available everywhere.

Our new Storage Vaults are now ready to care for the valuables of those who expect to be out of town during the summer.

A large crowd of spectators watched Mr. Hoagland as he made the hazardous ascent and worked at the high altitude with perfect ease.

Excavation was also started yesterday by contractor, W. C. Smith, for the addition to be built in the rear of the edifice. If such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in said notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the City under his direction as authorized by this ordinance and said Act of the Legislature.

Sec. 8. "When any improvement of the character hereinbefore mentioned shall be made by the City pursuant to said Act of the Legislature, a true and accurate account of the cost and expense thereof shall be kept by the Street Commissioner and apportioned among the several properties improved in proportion to the frontage of their respective lands, and a true statement of such cost under oath or affirmation of said Street Commissioner shall forthwith be filed by him with the Collector of said City, whereupon said charge shall be and remain a first lien upon the lands and real estate thereby improved, and shall bear the same rate of interest as other assessments made under the laws governing said City, and shall be collected in the same manner as assessments are now collected under such laws, and in case of the non-payment of such charges the land and real estate subject to such liens may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments made under such laws.

Sec. 9. That all ordinances, and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

J., at eight o'clock P. M., on Monday, the eleventh day of July, A. D., Nineteen Hundred and Ten, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY,
City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., June 20, 1910.

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of Johnston Avenue with Durable Macadam Pavement.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Johnston Avenue from North Avenue to East Front Street shall be permanently improved with durable macadam pavement for the full width of sixteen feet, that is to say, eight feet on each side of the center line thereof, the said durable macadam pavement to be laid and constructed in strict conformity with the specifications particularly set forth in the ordinance of said City entitled "An Ordinance to authorize the issuing of municipal bonds for the purpose of obtaining money from the sale thereof for the permanent improvement of streets and highways of the City of Plainfield, pursuant to Chapter 200 of the Laws of 1898, during the year 1910," approved June 7, 1910; and all work shall be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, the necessary funds provided, commissioners to estimate and assess benefits appointed, assessments made, and all proceedings in the premises be had and taken in strict conformity with the provisions of said last mentioned ordinance (the provisions of which ordinance are hereby refered to and made a part hereof), and the acts of the Legislature therein referred to.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Johnston Avenue with Durable Macadam Pavement," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time

ENTIRELY IMPERSONAL

The young man with the maroon necktie was absentmindedly thoughtful amid the idle chatter. Suddenly he spoke.

"It's queer how time changes a fellow," he said. "I've noticed it in lots of my friends. They change their ideas, you know. I've noticed that if they don't get married ridiculously early they generally wait till it is ridiculously late."

"What a great truth!" cried the young man with the gray tie. "If it isn't dark it is sure to be light! Even so!"

"Let him alone!" ordered the hostess. "But why matrimony?" she inquired of the young man with the maroon tie. "We were talking of golf, you know!"

"Were we?" asked the absentminded one. "I don't believe a man really falls in love after he is 30, say. Do you? Lose his head and all that, you know—or be willing to fly to the end of the earth, regardless of his next week's business engagements. He uses sense. And you can't use sense about falling in love!"

"Few people do," observed the hostess. "Look at the individuals they pick out to fall in love with! You aren't doing it, are you, Richard?"

"Of course not," said the young man with the maroon tie, gruffly. "How absurd! I was just speaking generally. I observe things, you know. And a fellow doesn't feel sure he's got the right girl unless he does lose his head a bit, does he?"

"Why, I can remember," went on the young man with the maroon tie, "when I was 19 or 20 of two love affairs, in both of which I was clean crazy. I was so desperately mad over those girls—at separate times, of course—that life absolutely was not worth living contemplated apart from them! I remember I wanted to die and so avoid the dark and dreary future stretching before me when Evelyn turned me down. And it was actual anguish, too! Now, if I can laugh at anything as real as that just because a few years have intervened, how the dickens could I ever be sure any infatuation I might tumble into now wasn't just as ephemeral?"

"I thought," observed the young man with the maroon tie, "you said you weren't personally interested in the subject. It begins to look to me—"

"Rubbish!" interrupted the young man with the maroon tie. "It's farthest from my thoughts. I don't know anybody I care particularly about, though I do know some mighty nice girls! You just change, that's all! It becomes a matter of calm judgment and—and—er—all that. You stop to think whether the girl is really suited to you and consider her disposition and tastes, and her mother, and whether you like her brother.

"Now, that destroys all the romance, doesn't it? It makes the whole affair humdrum and casual. There's absolutely nothing spontaneous about it.

"Why, I remember when Evelyn was the light of the world to me I wouldn't have cared if her mother had smoked a pipe or made platform speeches, and as for Evelyn's tastes—well, to this day I know not whether she inclined to Wagner or ragtime, or preferred Shakespeare to Laura Jean Libbey. I didn't care—and that's the point. I would care now. You couldn't consider a wife without considering what your friends would think of her. And you want to be sure, too, that you really care!"

"This sounds suspicious," observed the hostess.

"Not at all!" protested the young man with the maroon tie. "Not at all! I just got started on this subject, that's all! No, I don't think I shall ever marry. In the first place, I'm not in love, and I don't think I ever shall be.

"I really can't take such an absorbing interest in any girl nowadays that I miss my meals in my abstraction. And, somehow, I wouldn't die for any of them. Yet I know two or three fascinating girls. I don't think it would be wise to run the chance of making yourself and the girl miserable when you weren't quite sure. Do you think there is anything in this theory of learning to care more after you are married? It doesn't seem rational to me. I suppose the only really happy man is the one who marries Evelyn when he is 20 years old and too young to know better."

"But consider what Evelyn might be when you were 30!" suggested the hostess. "Probably not at all a congenial person or the one you would then pick out!"

"That makes it all the more complicated, doesn't it?" said the young man in the maroon tie, mournfully. "A fellow doesn't stand much show anyway you put it. This falling in love is all nonsense, anyway! I'm glad I've kept out of it!"

"See here," said the hostess, "don't you feel blue. She's all right—the right one, I mean. You just go ahead!"

"Yes, go on and take the plunge!" advised the young man with the gray tie. "And meanwhile, tell us her name—among friends, you know!"

The young man with the maroon tie tried to look indignant, but succeeded only in looking foolishly pleased.

"Oh, come now!" he said. "I don't see why you two should think—well, maybe I will have something to tell you soon. That is, I rather hope so. I—I'm going to see her to-morrow night!"

Twelfth Century Pottery.

At the museum at Innsbruck, in Austria, there has been for a number of years a piece of pottery in the form of a basin, which experts were unable to locate as to age. It has now been determined that it was made in the twelfth century, and the great bowl is remarkable more for the design which it bears on the inner side than for its age. It shows Alexander the Great riding in an airship, which is propelled by griffins. Alexander stands holding with a great rod food over the heads of the griffins.

Carver of Figureheads.

William Southworth, the city's oldest wood carver, died the other day at the age of 83 years. He estimated, only a short time before his death, that he had made carvings for more than 500 vessels. His principal work was the carving of figureheads for vessels, this being a lucrative and important occupation at one time, until the rise of commercialism blotted out the poetic significance of these models.—Bath Correspondence of Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

First Brass Band.

A little more than 70 years ago there was no such thing as a brass band in existence. The very first band entirely of brass dates no further back than 1835. Prior to that time even the military music was produced almost entirely from instruments of wood, and as recently as 1873 a full regimental band consisted of two oboes, two clarinets, two horns and bassoons.

The Next Thing.

Once a stranger asked Artemus Ward: "Can you tell me where I can get a good meal cheap?" "Certainly," answered Artemus. "There's a restaurant on the next block where you can get a fine dinner for 25 cents." "Thank you," said the stranger. "Now will you kindly tell me where I can get the 25 cents?"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

In Evidence.

A distinguished Irish lawyer, always in impoverished circumstances, one took Chief Justice Whiteside to see his magnificently furnished new house in Dublin. "Don't you think," he said, with a complacent look about, "that I deserve great credit for this?" "Yes," the judge answered, "and you appear to have got it."

The Perfect Wife.

The poet Robert Burns was of opinion that the perfect wife was made up of ten qualities. Four parts went to good temper, two parts to common sense, one to a keen intellect, one to beauty of person and two parts were apportioned to family, fortune or education.

Deadly Work of Opium.

A prominent historian computes the total death roll of the civil war in battle and hospital at 1,000,000 lives. There have been years in Chinese history when opium has claimed as many victims in a single year.—Putnam's Magazine.

His Offense.

Jones—"Green bought a second-hand automobile three weeks ago, and he has been arrested six times in it." Smith—"For exceeding the speed limit." —Jones—"No; for obstructing the street."

Method in His Madness.

"I wouldn't work such long hours but for one thing," says the Philosopher of Folly. "I know my boss doesn't require my services as long as he thinks he does—but I'd hate to have him find it out."

Went Wrong.

As an indication of her desire to move, a Maryland woman burned the house. This moved her all right, but the other abode she had in mind was not the jail in which she landed.

They Know What's Coming.

When a man begins his after-dinner speech by saying: "I heard a good story the other day," a hopeless look overspreads the faces of those who are listening.

Tough Proposition.

It's pretty hard to state the age when a small boy should leave off saying, "Gimme another piece," when the pie is passed, and remark, "I've had a plenty, thank you."

Up-to-Date Fire Alarms.

More than 90 per cent. of the cities of this country with a population of ten thousand or more are equipped with electric fire alarms.

Her Answer Ready.

"What a peculiar way that Gimbleton girl holds her lips. "If you propose to her you'll find out what it means. She's all fixed to say 'Yes.'"

Allspice In Shoes.

In Russia it is the custom in order to prevent excessively cold feet, to sprinkle the bottom of the boot or shoe with ground allspice.

Hypnotism has been recognized by the medical profession since the fifteenth century.

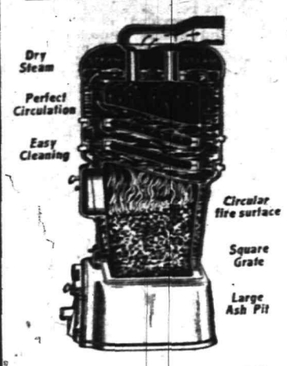
BOYNTON "Square Pot" BOILERS



25% More Fire Surface than Other Boilers of Equal Diameter

The "square pot" and clinkerless, ash-cutting grate which has made BOYNTON hot air furnaces famous, are now features of BOYNTON hot water heaters and boilers. This undoubtedly marks the greatest advance yet made in steam and hot water heating.

The BOYNTON "square-pot," with its increased fire surface and free cleaning, gives a heat efficiency from 10% to 25% greater than is possible with the ordinary round type of fire pot. It won't take long to figure what that means on a winter's coal bill.

BOYNTON construction is substantial. We can't go into details, but a BOYNTON "square-pot" boiler may be used to the limit of its rated capacity, carry a steady water line and always furnish dry steam.

Look at the sectional cut at the top of this "ad" and see how perfectly BOYNTON Boilers are arranged for free steaming.

Look Out, Boys!

A German professor has found that a boy in walking a mile through the streets of a town is exposed to 10,000,000 germs and microbes that may cause his death. It seems they never do cause his death, but the only safe way for a boy to do is to remain at home and take out the ashes and bring in the coal. If he feels any danger he can black the cookstove and whitewash the cellar.

Somewhat Mixed.

The process by which the cognomen of the Saxon saint who converted the Germans came to be the traditional literary designation of an innkeeper is singular if true. Boniface, we are told, was anglicized as Bonny face. By a confusion almost as ludicrous St. Martin of Tours has become the patron of innkeepers, so that the hagiology of the trade seems rather mixed.

New Use for Paper.

Paper is of different thickness and pasteboards made of it have already been shown, the latter even in sheets three-quarters of an inch thick. It is as hard as wood and can be easily painted and polished. It has all the good qualities, but none of the defects of wood. The pasteboard can be used for door and window frames, architectural ornaments and all kinds of furniture.

M. D.'s Hurts Had to Wait.

Dr. Philip E. Krichbaum of South Fullerton avenue, Montclair, N. J., while hurrying to enter his automobile fell and fractured his right arm, and received severe bruises. Dr. Krichbaum, although suffering great pain, attended to his patient and then had his fractured limb set and his injuries dressed.—New York World.

Boycotted the Doctors.

Something novel in the line of a strike or boycott was recently reported from a small town in Burgundy. The physicians of the place raised their rates 30 per cent. and a mass meeting of all the ailing folks was called, at which it was decided to dispense with the medical men's services and trust to luck to get well.

Our Indebtedness to Wit.

A laugh, to be joyous, must flow from a joyous heart; but without kindness there can be no true joy. If we take into account the numberless glances and gleams whereby wit lightens our every-day life, I hardly know what power ministers so bountifully to the innocent pleasures of mankind.—Archdeacon Hare.

Gauging Strength of Structure.

In the building of theater galleries and grandstands the supporting strength of the structure has to be carefully worked out. This is done by multiplying the area in square feet by the pressure which it is estimated a crowd exerts to the square foot, and making the supports proportionately strong.

A Diagnosis.

While a popular New York bank official who prides himself on being a strict teetotaler, was stretched out on his bed trying to take about "forty winks" his little boy came into the room, thoughtfully surveyed his father from head to foot, and then remarked: "Mother, he's either very drunk or very sick."

Just a Protest.

"If my songs are sung in heaven 'twill be all the fame I ask," modestly sings a Buffalo news poet. Yes, but kindly remember there's quite a bunch of other folks, pestered to death here on earth, who had hoped to find peace in heaven.

Neatly Expressed.

A relenting father recently signified his desire for reconciliation with the family prodigal by the following curt telegram: "Phibbs, London, to Phibbs, Denver, Colorado: Dinner is ready when you are."

Simple Idea Is Not Enough.

The lives of great men are great ideas embodied in earnest action. There are plenty of ideas still in the world, the supply is inexhaustible, but it takes brain, grit and determination to put them into effect.

The New England Spirit.

One thing we New Englanders like about us is our all-around superiority to the people of the rest of this great and glorious country.—Springfield Union.

Next to Impossible.

"It would be a hard thing," says the Philosopher of Folly, "to persuade the average working man that Saturday night comes as often as Monday morning."

Works Both Ways.

Those who think there are too many children in the world should not forget that children sometimes think there are too many grown-ups.

His Pledge.

A man is just one of the pledges God makes to the world, and it depends on the man to say whether the pledge is to be kept.—W. R. Leighton.

Worth Remembering.

Just try to remember that your prejudice against a man doesn't necessarily make him contemptible.

Skeptics.

People who know the least are likely to be the most skeptical.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

CHAPTER I.

The Two Oaths.

On an afternoon in the early summer of 1856 Capt. Nathaniel Plum, master and owner of the sloop Typhoon, was engaged in nothing more important than the smoking of an enormous pipe. Clouds of strongly odored smoke, tinted with the lights of the setting sun, had risen above his head in unremitting volumes for the last half hour. There was infinite contentment in his face, notwithstanding the fact that he had been meditating on a subject that was not altogether pleasant. But Captain Plum was, in a way, a philosopher, though one would not have guessed this fact from his appearance. He was, in the first place, a young man, not more than eight or nine and twenty, and his strong, rather thin face, tanned by exposure to the sea, was just now lighted up by eyes that shone with an unbounded good humor which any instant might take the form of laughter.

At the present time Captain Plum's vision was confined to one direction, which carried his gaze out over Lake Michigan. Earlier in the day he had been able to discern the hazy outline of the Michigan wilderness 20 miles to the eastward. Straight ahead, shooting up rugged and sharp in the red light of the day's end, were two islands. Between these, three miles away, the sloop Typhoon was strongly silhouetted in the fading glow. Beyond the islands and the sloop there were no other objects for Captain Plum's eyes to rest upon. So far as he could see there was no other sail. At his back he was shut in by a dense growth of trees and creeping vines, and unless a small boat edged close in around the end of Beaver island his place of concealment must remain undiscovered. At least this seemed an assured fact to Captain Plum.

In the security of his position he began to whistle softly as he beat the bowl of his pipe on his boot heel to empty it of ashes. Then he drew a long-barreled revolver from under a coat that he had thrown aside and examined it carefully to see that the powder and ball were in solid and that none of the caps was missing. From the same place he brought forth a belt, buckled it round his waist, shoved the revolver into its holster, and dragging the coat to him, fished out a letter from an inside pocket. It was a dirty, much-worn letter. Perhaps he had read it a score of times. He read it again now, and then, refilling his pipe, settled back against the rock that formed a rest for his shoulders and turned his eyes in the direction of the sloop.

The last rim of the sun had fallen below the Michigan wilderness and in the rapidly increasing gloom the sloop was becoming indistinguishable. Captain Plum looked at his watch. He must still wait a little longer before setting out upon the adventure that had brought him to this isolated spot. He rested his head against the rock, and thought. He had been thinking for hours. Back in the thicket he heard the prowling of some small animal. There came the sleepy chirp of a bird and the rustling of tired wings settling for the night. A strange stillness hovered about him, and with it there came over him a loneliness that was chilling, a loneliness that made him homesick. It was a new and unpleasant sensation to Captain Plum. He could not remember just when he had experienced it before; that is, if he dated the present from two weeks ago tonight. It was then that the letter had been handed to him in Chicago, and it had been a weight upon his soul and a prick to his conscience ever since. Once or twice he had made up his mind to destroy it, but each time he had repented at the last moment. In a sudden revulsion at his weakness he pulled himself together, crumpled the dirty missive into a ball and flung it out upon the white rim of beach.

At this action there came a quick movement in the dense wall of verdure behind him. Noiselessly the tangle of vines separated and a head thrust itself out in time to see the bit of paper fall short of the water's edge. Then the head shot back as swiftly and as silently as a serpent's. Perhaps Captain Plum heard the gloating chuckle that followed the movement. If so he thought it only some night bird in the brush.

"Heigh-ho!" he exclaimed, with some return of his old cheer, "it's about time we were starting!" He jumped to his feet and began brushing the sand from his clothes. When he had done, walked out upon the rim of beach and stretched himself until his arm bones cracked.

Again the hidden head shot forth from its concealment. A sudden turn and Captain Plum would certainly have been startled. For it was a weird object, this spying head; its face dead-white against the dense green of the verdure, with shocks of long white hair hanging down on each side, framing between them a pair of eyes that gleamed from cavernous sockets like black glowing beads. There was unmistakable fear, a tense anxiety in those glittering eyes as Captain Plum walked toward the paper, but when he paused and stretched himself, the sole of his boot carelessly trampling the discarded letter, the head disappeared again and there came another satisfied bird-like chuckle from the gloom of the thicket.

Captain Plum now put on his coat, buttoned it close to conceal the weapons in his belt, and walked along the narrow water-run that crept like a white ribbon between the lake and the island wilderness. No sooner had he disappeared than the bushes and vines behind the rock were torn asunder and a man wormed his way through them. For an instant he paused, listening for returning footsteps, and then with startling agility darted to the beach and seized the crumpled letter.

The person who for the greater part of the afternoon had been spying upon Captain Plum from the security of the thicket was to all appearances a very small and a very old man, though there was something about him that seemed to belie a first guess at his age. His face was emaciated; his hair was white and hung in straggling masses on his shoulders; his hooked nose bore apparently the infallible stamp of extreme age. Yet there was a strange and uncanny strength and quickness in his movements. There was no stoop to his shoulders. His head was set squarely. His eyes were as keen as steel. It would have been impossible to have told whether he was fifty or seventy. Eagerly he smoothed out the abused missive and evidently succeeded even in the failing light in deciphering much of it, for the glimmer of a smile flashed over his thin features as he thrust the paper into his pocket.

Without a moment's hesitation he set out on the trial of Captain Plum. A quarter of a mile down the path he overtook the object of his pursuit.

"Ah, how do you do, sir?" he greeted as the younger man turned about upon hearing his approach. "A mighty fast pace you're setting for an old man, sir!" He broke into a laugh that was not altogether unpleasant, and boldly held out a hand. "We've been expecting you, but—not in this way. I hope there's nothing wrong?"

Captain Plum had accepted the proffered hand. Its coldness and the singular appearance of the old man who had come like an apparition chilled him. In a moment, however, it occurred to him that he was a victim of mistaken identity. As far as he knew there was no one on Beaver island who was expecting him. To the best of his knowledge he was a fool for being there. His crew aboard the sloop had agreed upon that point with extreme vehemence and to a man had attempted to dissuade him from the mad project upon which he was launching himself among the Mormons in their island stronghold. All this came to him while the little old man was looking up into his face, chuckling, and shaking his hand as if he were one of the most important and most greatly to be desired personages in the world.

"Hope there's nothing wrong, Cap'n?" he repeated.

"Right as a trivet here, dad," replied the young man, dropping the cold hand that still persisted in clinging to his own. "But I guess you've got the wrong party. Who's expecting me?"

It Was a Dirty, Much-Worn Letter.

The old man's face wrinkled itself in a grimace and one gleaming eye opened and closed in an understanding wink.

"Ho ho, ho!—of course you're not expected. Anyway, you're not expected to be expected! Cautious—a born general!—mighty clever thing to do. Strang should appreciate it." The old man gave vent to his own approbation in a series of inimitable chuckles. "Is that your sloop out there?" he inquired interestedly.

Something in the strangeness of the situation began to interest Captain Plum. He had planned a little adventure of his own, but here was one that promised to develop into something more exciting. He nodded his head.

"That's her."

"Splendid cargo," went on the old man. "Splendid cargo, eh?"

"Pretty fair."

"Powder in good shape, eh?"

"Dry as tinder."

"And balls—lots of balls, and a few guns, eh?"

"Yes, we have a few guns," said Captain Plum. The old man noted the emphasis, but the darkness that had fast settled about them hid the added meaning that passed in a curious look over the other's face.

"Odd way to come in, though—very odd!" continued the old man, gurgling and shaking as if the thought of it occasioned him great merriment. "Very cautious. Level business head. Want to know that things are on the square, eh?"

"That's it!" exclaimed Captain Plum, catching at the proffered straw. Inwardly he was wondering when his feet would touch bottom. Thus far he had succeeded in getting but a single grip on the situation. Somebody was expected at Beaver island with powder and balls and guns. Well, he had a certain quantity of these materials aboard his sloop, and if he could make an agreeable bargain—

The old man interrupted the plan that was slowly forming itself in Captain Plum's puzzled brain.

"It's the price, eh?" He laughed shrewdly. "You want to see the color of the gold before you land the goods. I'll show it to you. I'll pay you the whole sum tonight. Then you'll take the stuff where I tell you to. Eh? Isn't that so?" He darted ahead of Captain Plum with a quick alert movement. "Will you please follow me, sir?"

For an instant Captain Plum's impulse was to hold back. In that instant it suddenly occurred to him that he was lending himself to a rank imposition. At the same time he was filled with a desire to go deeper into the adventure, and his blood thrilled with the thought of what it might hold for him.

"Are you coming, sir?"

The little old man had stopped a dozen paces away and turned expectantly.

"I tell you again that you've got the wrong man, dad!"

"Will you follow me, sir?"

"Well, if you'll have it so—damned if I won't!" cried Captain Plum. He felt that he had relieved his conscience, anyway. If things should develop badly for him during the next few hours no one could say that he had lied. So he followed light-heartedly after the old man, his eyes and ears alert, and his right hand, by force of habit, reaching under his coat to the butt of his pistol. His guide said not another word until they had traveled for half an hour along a twisting path and stood at last on the bald summit of a knoll from which they could look down upon a number of lights twinkling dimly a quarter of a mile away. One of these lights gleamed above all the others, like a beacon set among fireflies.

"That's St. James," said the old man. His voice had changed. It was low and soft, as though he feared to speak above a whisper.

"St. James!"

The young man at his side gazed down silently upon the scattered lights, his heart throbbing in a sudden tumult of excitement. He had set out that day with the idea of resting his eyes on St. James. In its silent mystery the town now lay at his feet.

"And that light—" spoke the old man. He pointed a trembling arm toward the glare that shone more powerfully than the others. "That light marks the sacred home of the king!" His voice had again changed. A metallic hardness came into it, his words were vibrant with a strange excitement which he strove hard to conceal. It was still light enough for Captain Plum to see that the old man's black, beady eyes were startlingly alive with newly aroused emotion.

"You mean—"

"Strang!"

He started rapidly down the knoll and there floated back to Captain Plum the soft notes of his meaningless chuckle. A dozen rods farther on his mysterious guide turned into a by-path which led them to another knoll, capped by a good-sized building made of logs. There sounded the grating of a key in a lock, the shooting of a bolt, and a door opened to admit them.

"You will pardon me if I don't light up," apologized the old man as he led the way in. "A candle will be sufficient. You know there must be privacy in these matters—always. Eh? Isn't that so?"

Captain Plum followed without reply. He guessed that the cabin was made up of one large room, and that at the present time, at least, it possessed no other occupant than the singular creature who had guided him to it.

"It is just as well, on this particular night, that no light is seen at the window," continued the old man as he rummaged about a table for a match and a candle. "I have a little corner back here that a candle will brighten up nicely and no one in the world will know it. Ho, ho, ho!—how nice it is to have a quiet little corner sometimes! Eh, Captain Plum?"

At the sound of his name Captain Plum started as though an unexpected hand had suddenly been laid upon him. So he was expected, after all, and his name was known! For a moment his surprise robbed him of the power of speech. The little old man had lighted his candle, and, grinning back over his shoulder, passed through a narrow cut in the wall that could hardly be called a door and planted his light on a table that stood in the center of a small room, or closet, not more than five feet square. Then he coolly pulled Captain Plum's old letter from his pocket and smoothed it out in the dim light.

He continued for a moment to smooth out the creases in the letter and then proceeded to read it with as much assurance as though its owner were a thousand miles away instead of within arm's reach of him. Captain Plum was dumbfounded. He felt the hot blood rushing to his face and his first impulse was to recover the crumpled paper and demand something more than an explanation. In the next instant it occurred to him that this action would probably spoil whatever possibilities his night's adventure might have for him. So he held his peace. The old man was so intent in his perusal of the letter that the end of his hooked nose almost scraped the table. He went over the dim, partly obliterated words line by line, chuckling now and then, and apparently utterly oblivious of the other's presence. When he had come to the end he looked up, his eyes glittering with unbounded satisfaction, carefully folded the letter, and handed it to Captain Plum.

"That's the best introduction in the world, Captain Plum—the very best! Ho, ho!—it couldn't be better. I'm glad I found it." He chuckled gleefully, and rested his ogreish head in the palms of his skeleton-like hands, his elbows on the table. "So you're going back home—soon?"

"I haven't made up my mind yet, dad," responded Captain Plum, pulling out his pipe and tobacco. "You've read the letter pretty carefully, I guess. What would you do?"

"Vermont?" questioned the old man shortly.

"That's it."

"Well, I'd go, and very soon, Captain Plum, very soon, indeed. Yes, I'd hurry!" The old man jumped up with the quickness of a cat. So sudden was his movement that it startled Captain Plum, and he dropped his tobacco pouch. By the time he had recovered this article his strange companion was back in his seat again holding a leather bag in his hand. Quickly he untied the knot at its top and poured a torrent of glittering gold pieces out upon the table.

"Business—business and gold," he gurgled happily, rubbing his thin hands and twisting his fingers until they cracked. "A pretty sight, eh, Captain Plum? Now, to our account! A hundred carbines, eh? And a thousand of powder and a ton of balls. Or is it in lead? It doesn't make any difference—not a bit. It's three thousand, that's the account, eh?" He fell to counting rapidly.

For a full minute Captain Plum remained in stupefied bewilderment, silenced by the sudden and unexpected turn his adventure had taken. Fascinated, he watched the skeleton fingers as they clinked the gold pieces. What was the mysterious plot into which he had allowed himself to be drawn? Why were a hundred guns and a ton and a half of powder and balls wanted by the Mormons of Beaver island? Instinctively he reached out and closed his hand over the counting fingers of the old man. Their eyes met. And there was a shrewd, half-understanding gleam in the black orbs that fixed Captain Plum in an unflinching challenge. For a little space there was silence. It was Captain Plum who broke it.

"Dad, I'm going to tell you for the third and last time that you've made a mistake. I've got eight of the best rifles in America aboard my sloop out there. But there's a man for every gun. And I've got something hidden away underdeck that would blow up St. James in half an hour. And there is powder and ball for the whole outfit. But that's all. I'll sell you what I've got—for a good price. Beyond that you've got the wrong man!"

He settled back and blew a volume of smoke from his pipe. For another half minute the old man continued to look at him, his eyes twinkling, and then he fell to counting again.

Captain Plum was not given over to the habit of cursing. But now he jumped to his feet with an oath that jarred the table. The old man chuckled. The gold pieces clinked between his fingers. Coolly he shoved two glittering piles alongside the candle stick, tumbled the rest back into the leather bag, deliberately tied the end, and smiled up into the face of the exasperated captain.

"To be sure you're not the man," he said, nodding his head until his elf-locks danced around his face. "Of course you're not the man. I know it—ho, ho! you can wager that I know it! A little ruse of mine, Captain Plum. Pardonable—excusable, eh? I wanted to know if you were a liar. I wanted to see if you were honest."

With a gasp of astonishment Captain Plum sank back into his chair. His jaw dropped and his pipe was held fireless in his hand.

"The devil you say!"

THE PRICE OF BEEFSTEAK

By Will C. Barnes

Inspector of Grazing, United States Forest Service.

Reproduced by Permission of the Saturday Evening Post.

Thirty years ago almost all the country west of the Missouri river was an open grazing area used only by the stock raisers—mostly cattlemen. From Kansas to California, and from Medicine Hat to Brownsville, Texas, there was a virgin range covered with some of the best and most nutritious grass to be found anywhere in the world, only waiting for some hungry cows to come along and eat it.

At that time the population of the United States was about fifty million and while there are no reliable statistics available to show the number of cattle we then had, a careful study of what data there are leads to the belief that in the entire United States there were in the neighborhood of fifty million head of cattle of all classes.

About that time began the expansion of the range-cattle business. Texas, with probably seven million cattle on her vast ranges, found herself with a surplus of that kind of livestock. Men down there were cattle poor. There were no railroads and their only outlet was by trail. Stock cattle were not worth much. Herds changed hands at from three to five dollars per head, counting steers, with the calves thrown in for good measure. The building of the railroad across the plains of Kansas opened up a new market for these overstocked Texans and they were quick to avail themselves of its possibilities.

Then followed the halcyon days of the Texas trails. Hundreds of thousands of cattle went north from these ranges to be shipped from the new railroad points at Dodge, Abilene and other noted shipping centers. The eastern country was deluged with cheap, "free grass" cattle, and the farmers of the states raised a great outcry against their coming, claiming it meant the ruin of their farming industry if allowed to continue.

The extension of railroads into the West gradually stopped the trail work, but the cattle continued to go out over the rails in even greater numbers than ever. The Texans also spread out in their business to the extent of stocking up with cattle to open ranges to the north of them. Kansas and Nebraska at first then the Dakotas, Montana, Colorado, Wyoming and other Northwestern states were filled with Southern cows. These enterprising trail men worked even into Utah, California and Oregon with their herds. Then came the winter of 1886, which put a crimp into the open-range business all over that region. Hundreds of prosperous cowmen found themselves ruined and with but a handful of their original stock left in the spring which followed that never-to-be-forgotten winter.

For the ten years succeeding 1886 the cattle business above the northern line of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma was almost entirely a steer-fattening one. The young steers were shipped north from the Southwestern ranges in the early spring, grazed for two years and then shipped to the Eastern markets. The cost of this method of handling was somewhat greater than under the old system of management.

A statement of the cost of running one of the most successful steer-handling outfits in South Dakota during this period shows that, counting interest on the capital, freight, losses from winters and other causes, and all other items of expense, there was an average outlay of fifteen dollars per head on each steer from the day he left the Southern ranges until he was safely landed in the stockyards of Chicago or Kansas City. As the average price of a two-year-old steer at point of purchase was about fifteen dollars, the finished product cost the steer handler about thirty dollars.

During this second period the steer raisers at both ends of the line made good money on their product, and the people of the United States were eating not only the best, but in all probability the cheapest, beef they will ever have placed before them.

During this period the cost of raising cattle on the Southwestern ranges, according to the books of one of the largest cattle companies of Arizona, was not over one dollar per head a year. That is, excluding losses and interest on capital invested, a two-year-old steer stood them in but two dollars for his raising.

If the ranges could have been kept at their maximum carrying capacity and the losses from dry years eliminated, the country would no doubt still be eating cheap beef. But the evils of overstocking, together with a succession of dry years, swept some of the ranges almost bare of cattle in the winter of 1892-3.

During this second period, between 1886 and 1896, all farm products were very low in price, with a general upward tendency toward the close of the period. Farmers with feed to sell, such as hay, corn or pastures, were offering all sorts of inducements to Western stockmen to bring their cattle to them for feed. Pastures could be rented in the prairie states like Kansas and Nebraska for twenty-five cents per head per month. Corn was to be had on every hand at not over twenty-five cents per bushel, and one remembers with amusement the row we raise one year in thee arly part of the period when, owing to a dry summer, we had to pay that price for corn in southern Kansas.

In the alfalfa-raising regions of the West the same conditions existed. Take the great Salt River Valley in Arizona as an example. In the year 1890 a herd of five hundred head of mixed cattle was being trailed from the northern end of the territory to be placed upon the alfalfa fields in that valley.

When within a few days' drive of the valley no less than four different men rode out to meet the herd to secure the cattle for their fields. They offered the very best of alfalfa hay at three dollars a ton in the stack, with the use of the fields about them for feeding during the two months when the alfalfa doesn't grow there. As for the green feed, they offered to enter into contracts for green alfalfa pasturage as soon as the weather permitted, at twenty-five cents per head per month, and not count calves, of which there would be many.

Today the stockman wishing to feed cattle or stock of any kind there must needs look up the alfalfa farmer and plead with him for the hay or pasturage. His hay is now worth from eight to ten dollars a ton in the stack, and pasturage has crawled up to two and three dollars a month per head.

Exactly the same conditions prevail in the great alfalfa-raising regions of Colorado and other Western States. When they dis covered the great feeding value of cottonseed and its hulls, which previously had been treated as waste and burned to get it out of the way, the stuff could be had for the hauling away. Then its value began to rise, until today it costs the stockmen at the cottongins somewhere around eighteen dollars per ton, and the price is still rising.

Corn, too, has steadily crept up the scale. Feeders are paying from fifty to sixty cents per bushel for corn this winter—that is, those who have the nerve to tackle steer-feeding with corn at those prices are doing so.

Meantime, well-meaning Government officials were straining every nerve to open up new avenues for our food products abroad. Take corn, for instance. Foreigners knew almost nothing about the food values of corn, either for man or beast. Well-posted agents were sent abroad to educate the foreigners to the use of our corn products. All over Europe they went, talking, advertising and showing with true American aggressiveness the great benefits of corn as a food. Their work was indeed well done.

Much the same conditions have assisted in the rise in values of cottonseed and hulls for stock-feeding purposes. When the Southern cotton-ginners found their once despised waste was worth something, they were not content with the local demand, but set about finding new outlets for its sale. The ssupply was apparently unlimited and the demand at first very modest. So they sought a market abroad. A sort of educational campaign was begun, with most excellent results. The German farmers especialy took kindly to the food. It furnished them in a highly concentrated form a fat-producing element for which their needs were very great. They knew a good thing when they saw it, and today the export demand for cottonseed and hulls is almost, if not quite, as large as the home consumption. Looking at the matter from one point of view we seem to have been hoist with oru own petard, in that we now need the material, both corn and cottonseed, right here at home for our own uses.

One of the most potent factors entering into the cost of meat production in the United States is the tremendous rise in land values all over the West. With the coming of the "son-of-a-gun with the hoe" many of the rangemen were practically put out of business. In the two Dakotas at one time doubtless the best open ranges for steer-raising we had, the inroads of the settlers early in the nineties forced out almost all the larger steer-handling outfits, and the business of moving great numbers of young Southern steers to the Northern ranges has since then rapidly dwindled.

The same conditions followed all over the range country. In eastern New Mexico, western Texas and southeastern Colorado the settlers, especially the "dry farmers", swept down upon the stockmen's ranges like an invading army. The prairies were dotted with their little shacks as far as the eye could see, while their wire fences cut up the range to such an extent that the herds could not be handled to reach many well-known shipping points.

Many of the great herds, both both sheep and cattle, were gathered up and shipped away to be dumped upon the market for what they would bring, and their owners quit the business in disgust.

In Texas the big stockmen generally have recouped themselves for their losses in cattle by the rise in land values. Pasture lands there, especially on the "Stake Plains," which had gone begging for years at a dollar an acre, jumped rapidly to ten, twenty and as high as fifty dollars an acre under the impetus of this new farming system, plus one of the most gigantic colonization schemes the world has seen.

The natural supposition would be that land which had been used for raising cattle, allowing thirty acres to the animal, could, under intensive farming operations, produce more beef per acre than that. This is true, but it takes time to make the changes. Meantime, the number of cattle in the country stood still, in fact actually decreased, while the country was growing, population steadily increasing, and the demand for meats becoming greater daily.

When the Western stockmen saw the handwriting on the wall some of the longheaded ones began to provide for the future by obtaining possession of every acre of strictly pasture land they could. In this way millions of dollars have been laid out, which naturally adds very materially to the cost of production.

In 1890 some data were prepared by several large sheepmen, covering the cost of running sheep upon the ranges; and the average cost of running sheep at that time was between sixty and seventy-five cents per head a year.

The investment consisted of the sheep, very modest camp outfits, a few burros for packing and possibly a wagon for camping purposes. Very few of them had any money invested in lands or ranches beyond a home ranch for headquarters. Dipping plants, hay-feeding pens, power-shearing plants and all those necessities of the sheepman of today were unknown. They had the whole West for their range. They walked their wool to the shipping-places on the sheep's backs.

In the year 1908 a committee from one of the big Montana sheep associations prepared a set of figures showing the cost of handling sheep under present methods.

The data took from the books of eleven sheep outfits by representing a total of 182,000 sheep. By this report the average total cost of running one sheep by these eleven outfits for a year was placed at $1.40. The bulk of the increased cost is covered by investments in lands and improved ranches rendered absolutely necessary by the changed range conditions.

They estimated the gross investment in sheep, lands and other ranch property used in the business by these eleven outfits as being equal to $12 for each sheep. In the earlier days it would not have been over $2.50 at the outside. By the same report machine shearing at public plants costs fourteen cents a sheep, while hand shearing costs nine. In the olden times the average pay for hand shearing was about four cents for ordinary sheep.

Unfortunately, the cattlemen as a class have not been so progressive or long-headed as the sheep raisers and have invested much less in lands and improved ranches than the wool producers; nevertheless, the investments in these things by the cattle raisers have added to the cost of steer-raising in the same relative value.

Looking into the number of stock now in the United tSates the estimates published by the Government on the first of every year show very clearly why dear meats are here, and why they are due to logical and almost unavoidable conditions.

The following table, taken from the Government reports—excepting cattle for 1880, which is an estimate—shows the true condition of matters:

	Cattle	Sheep	Hogs
1880	..50 mil.
1890	..53 mil.	44 mil.	52 mil.
1900	..44 mil.	42 mil.	37 mil.
1910	..69 mil.	57 mil.	48 mil.

Since 1906 the number of cattle has steadily decreased, the loss between January 1, 1909, and January 1, 1910, being over two million head. Meantime, the meat-eating population has grown from fifty million in 1880 to an estimated ninety million in 1910.

Study these figures and stop quarreling with the packers, the beef-barons—that word which rolls so glibly from the tongue of the man-who-doesn't-know—and the cold-storage warehouses. We are simply growing in population faster than we are in meat productiveness. If we will live all bunched up together in great cities, hundreds of miles from the points where our food is produced, we must pay the penalty. Cold storage warehouses are the only things that stand between our cities and starvation. They are to the consumer what the transformers are to the electric current. They regulate the flow of foodstuffs, storing it up when there is plenty, and then allowing it to run out when the demand calls for it.

The packers may need regulating, and time limits for cold storage may be demanded in the interests of health; but the bald fact remains that without some such system of marketing, where somebody stands ready to take everything offered, whether it be a train load of old range "canner cows" from New Mexico or a thousand steers from the corn-belt feeders, the stock raiser and feeder would quickly be forced out of business.

The talk about the good old times when the little local butcher handled the business of your home town is as futile and irrelevant as it would be to hark back to the days when the horse car lines handled the business on Broadway. The times change, and we certainly have changed with the times. Besides, the meat that the American people are eating today is, in point of cleanliness, healthfulness and food fitness, as far ahead of what we used to get in those good old days as the latest trans-Atlantic liner is ahead of the old side-wheel boats of forty years ago.

When the meat production of the country catches up with the demands of the meat-eaters the price will naturally fall. A decade from now, when all this new land that is being placed under cultivation is doing its share to meet the matter, the natural rise in numbers of livestock may cause a surplus. But it is a debatable question whether the gap in the race between consumption and supply is going to be narrowed very materially for a good many years.

DISLIKE RETURN CARDS ON THE U.S. ENVELOPES

Plainfield is interested in the measure now considered by Congress relative to the printing of return cards upon stamped envelopes supplied by the Government. A prominent Plainfield man, who has just returned from Washington says:

"The government has made contracts the past 45 years for the manufacture of envelopes and embossed stamps on the envelopes. In addition to that, a return card has been printed on the corner of the envelope, simply giving directions for the return to the sender, but not allowing any advertising of any character.

"It is the latter feature of this process which the envelope makers, paper makers, and especially printers, object to. The Government contract is now with a Dayton, O., firm which makes the envelope, empasses the stamp and prints the return card at one process. Therefore, it makes its bid for doing all the work exactly the same as for making the envelopes and embossing the stamps, it being claimed by the contractor that the cost in this process of printing the return is only about seven-tenths of one per cent. per 1,000 envelopes.

"The postoffice committee has reported a bill, which hereafter will prevent printing on the envelope anything more than these words, 'After ten days, return to ————, Plainfield, N. J.' or any other postoffice; so that hereafter users of these envelopes will obtain the envelope and embossed stamp and the above referred to printing at the same price heretofore, but the name of the firm and street number will have to be inserted by the sender of the letter.

"Under the present law anyone may go to the postoffice and order stamped envelopes in lots of 500 or multiples thereof, and have printed on the corner what is known as a 'special request,' in substance as follows:

After 10 days return to
JOHN L. BROWN,
134 Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ill.

"Under the proposed bill, only the following may be printed on the envelope:

Chicago, Ill.....

"During the last fiscal year there were placed with the postoffices of the country orders for these special request envelopes numbering 482,071, and the total number of envelopes printed as per these orders reached 1,027,474,889, or an average of about 2,131 envelopes in each order.

"Nearly all of the smaller newspapers throughout the country do this kind of printing, as do many thousands of offices devoted exclusively to commercial printing, and it is believed by the committee that the government should retire from this form of commercial printing and leave the work to those engaged in that business.

"The bill offered at the recent Congress will still allow those who buy a few envelopes at the postoffice window, what may be called the family trade, to have printed their town and state, with convenient places left for writing in their name and city address; but if the bill becomes a law at the next Congress, business houses and others now buying envelopes of the Government will be called upon to have their printing done privately.

"It perhaps should be added that under the present law the government is not permitted to make a profit out of this printing, the present price of such envelopes delivered to the customer being $1.24 a thousand.

"The present contract for making and printing these envelopes is with a firm in Dayton, Ohio, and does not exxpire until June 30, 1911.

GOVERNOR'S SIGNATURE COST STATE JUST $52

After dining with the commuters Thursday, who asked him to convene the Legislature in special session so that the State utility commission may have drastic powers over railroad rates, Governor Fort went to the State house to sign commissions for attorneys and counsellors to be sworn in yesterday, and every time he touched pen to parchment he cost the state $1, and he did this fifty-two times by signing commissions in the wrong place. All of the commissions had to be destroyed yesterday, but the court swore in the attorneys and counselors and told them they would get new commissions.

The question for the State comptroller to decide now is whether the secretary of State, who furnishes the parchment for the certificates and attests the signature of the governor (when it is signed in the right place), or the governor must stand the expenses of the mistake. If the secretary is to stand the expense, it must come as a special appropriation from the legislature, but if the governor intends paying for the mistake it can be charged to the emergency fund.

MORROW REAPPOINTED BY GOVERNOR FORT

In accordance with recommendations made by Former Governor Franklin Murphy and James R. Nugent, as chairmen of the Republican and Democratic State committees respectively, Governor Fort has appointed the members of county election boards, in which vacancies occur this year. There are four members of each board, one Democrat and one Republican going out each year. His appointments for the Union County Board are Ralph L. Morrow, of this city, and Frederick Zior, of Elizabeth, both of whom are members of the board at present.

The recommendations of the State chairmen were, in turn, based upon recommendations made to them by the county chairmen of the two parties. In most instances the retiring members were reappointed. The appointment in Hudson County held up the completion of Chairman Murphy's list for some time. August Graf, formerly factory inspector from the Hudson County district, was finally agreed upon. The appointments made are as follows:

Atlantic—William Howenstein, Repuublican; Louis A. Reppetto, Democrat.

Bergen—George Ricardo, Republican; William H. Rodgers, Democrat.

Burlington—Newton Morton, Republican; Dr. R. B. Glasgow, Democrat.

Camden—William H. Harrison, Republican; Francis J. McAdams, Democrat.

Cape May—F. H. Dougherty and Walter Rutherford, Republicans; William Tyler, Democrat. Mr. Rutherford was nominated to suc eed L. E. Hughes, who was named a member of the County Tax Board.

Essex—Thomas P. Alworth, Republican; Richard J. Fanz, Democrat.

Gloucester—I. Hampton Williams, Republican; Thomas C. Dilks, Democrat.

HILL CLIMBING CONTEST

The Plainfield Auto Club Prepares for the Annual Auto Events.

COURSE A FIRST CLASS ONE.

A Description of the Scene of the Forthcoming Competitions Which Promise to Attract a Big Crowd.

Marked interest is being taken in the auto hill climbing contest, which is announced for next Saturday. Unquestionably the course is now one of the finest for the purpose in this part of the country. The average grades of 8 per cent. and 15 per cent. are broken at intervals long enough to allow "runs." There are three sharp curves and one "hair pin" curve; but these have been banked up at the side so as to counteract the effect of centrifugal force without lessening the speed of the cars. The numerous water sheds are now being levelled off by a gang of men under the direction of John Mobus.

The obstructions in the road near the end of the course by the stone entrance to the Groszman school which caused a driver to lose control of his car last year with the result that it plunged over the mountain side, have been removed. A plank across the road partially added to the cause of the accident last year. All such obstructions have been removed.

The roadbed itself is in poor condition in five or six places, but owing to a lack of funds this can not be remedied this year. The worst places, however, will be filled in and levelled off. One of the chief difficulties encountered by drivers last year was in the too free skidding of their wheels in making the curves to the loose and unsound conditon of the roadbed. While this has not altogether been remedied, drivers may expect less hindrance from this than last year. Bissel, one of the famous Ormond Beach drivers had difficulty with this; and this was his only criticism of the course, Robertson, the Vanderbilt Cup course winner, who took part in the hill climbing contest here last year likewise complained of this. He pointed out the defects of the course, which when remedied, he declared would make it the best hill climbing course in the country.

There are eight good vantage points for spectators to view the progress of the machinery in their race to the top of the course. For the use of the course for next Saturday afternoon, the promoters of the contest will pay the township $50.

The contests will be conducted by the Plainfield Automobile Club by the sanction of the American Automobile Association.

SWACKHAMER TALKS ON "CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP"

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer gave a stirring address on "Christian Citizenship," at a patriotic service held at the Netherwood Reformed church, last night. Although the weather was warm, there was a good attendance of members and friends of the church, and all enjoyed the service. The church was appropriately decorated in the national colors, and Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor, presided.

For nearly an hour Mr. Swackhamer talked on the necessity of Christian citizenship, the advantages to be gained, the responsibility resting upon every man to embrace this opportunity. He then pictured vividly the work of our forefathers in their fight for the maintenance of liberty, impressing upon all not to forget the great sacrifice made that all might enjoy this liberty.

Throughout his talk, Mr. Swackhamer illustrated his remarks with timely stories, giving facts and figures to show that this is the greatest country on the globe, one of which every man, woman and child should be proud. Mr. Swackhamer's remarks were listened to attentively and at the close he was thanked for his excellent address.

BORO PLANS FOR SEWERS

The Measure Providing for Sanitary System Passes to Third Reading.

MUCH ROUTINE BUSINESS.

North Plainfield Council Acts Favorably on Petitions and Orders Many Claims Paid—Monthly Reports.

The borough sewerage ordinance, providing for a bond issue for the construction of a sanitary system which was approved at recent special election was passed on its second reading at the meeting of the borough Council last night. All of the members of the Council were present and no dissenting voice was raised. The measure will come up for its third and final reading at the next regular meeting of the Council. After that it will be advertised and will become operative. Bids will then be received and awarded.

Claims for the past month, amounted to $3,200 were ordered paid. The police committee reported 26 arrests and $6 in fines. The unusual ratio between the arrests and the fines was due to the fact that many of the arrests were of violators of the dog license ordinance.

The fire committee reported that expenses for the past month were $493.85. Applications for building garages and making various alterations to buildings were also received and acted upon. Permission was granted to Andrew J. Heim to make alterations to his property on Manning avenue. Thomas J. Freeman also received permission to make alterations to his dwelling on Grove street. Adolph Bohren got the sanction of the Council to build an addition to his premises on Greenbrook road. An application from Walter Apgar for permission to build a garage for John I. Brower, on Fairmount avenue, was favorably acted on. A. M. Griffin likewise got permission to erect a cement stone garage in the rear of his property on Willow avenue, and Geo. F. Brown got permission to make alterations to his property on Grove street.

The sidewalk committee reported that as yet no action had been taken in the matter of the request for sidewalks on Harrison avenue.

MAD DOG LED BY BOY SHOT BY BOROUGH MARSHAL.

A small dog belonging to a colored boy was shot by Marshal Culver, of the borough, on Westervelt avenue, last night. The lad was leading the dog on a leash and had been running with it for a part of the evening. Suddenly the animal acted queerly and began to froth at the mouth.

A passerby told the boy that the dog was mad. As a result the chap screamed but pluckily held on to the leash. The attention of Marshal Culver was attracted and he shot the canine.

Quite an unusual accident to another animal was also brought to the borough police yesterday. A cat playing under a wagon on Somerset street was stepped on by the horse. The feline was carried to the police headquarters where relief was given.

RUNYON'S POPULARITY AS CANDIDATE ASSURED

When it became generally known yesterday that Judge William N. Runyon is being urged to become a candidate at the Republican primaries in the Fifth district for the Congressional nomination, the popular judge was kept busy answering telephone messages and receiving friends who wished to pledge their support and to urge him to make the run.

Mr. Runyon appeared pleased over the cordial expressions, but declined to commit himself on the subject. A number of his friends, however, got to work and began circulating petitions in the various parts of the city in his behalf. They believe that when he sees how gladly the Republican voters have shown their appreciation of the mention of his name in connection with the high office that he cannot refuse to enter the lists.

That the judge is probably the strongest man who could be named, appears to be the general impression here. From various parts of the county, he received many complimentary letters today. His refusal to say anything at this time gives his friends some encouragement.

friends to announce his candidacy for the Republican shrievalty nomination in Somerset county. For years he has been a staunch worker for the party and has always been "on the job" where there was work to be done in getting out the vote and helping the party triumph at the polls. He is popular through Somerset and it is believed that with him as the nominee for sheriff the party would have a strong candidate in a fight that is bound to be hot.

Many years ago, Mr. Sebring served two terms in the North Plainfield Council where he made a good record. At another time he was a member of North Plainfield township committee. He is a large taxpayer and is held in high esteem particularly in the borough.

Entertainment at Salvation Tent.

There will be a special entertainment at the Salvation Army tent this evening by the young people. The program will include scarf drills, solos, recitations, club drill and special songs by the young people. Admission will be free but an offering will be taken for the children's outing. The tent will be free from mosquitoes as a plan has been discovered for getting rid of the objectionable creatures.

Will Hold Japanese Lawn Festival.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, through the courtesy of Floyd T. Woodhull, who owns the property, will hold a Japanese lawn festival Saturday afternoon and evening, July 16, on the large vacant lot on East Front street, corner Church street.

EVENTS ON THE FOURTH

Baseball, Golf, Tennis, Horse Races and Fireworks Among Attractions.

HERE AND IN THE SUBURBS.

Lots of Sports on the Calendar for Independence Day— Big Time at Country Club.

Social and athletic activities appealing to many different interests will help to make Monday an enjoyably safe and sane Fourth of July here. Most of the local social clubs will celebrate the day in some way or other, and there will be baseball, golf, tennis and horse races.

But it must be confessed that the general celebration this year will be much quieter than in previous years. When a reporter visited last night the various places where firecrackers are sold he found that the sales did not begin to compare with the sales of previous years. The recent Fourth of July ordinance must, of course, be blamed for the falling off of this kind of patronage. Fireworks, however, did not figure at all in the sales.

If the Fourth is to be quiet, it is never-the-less going to be interesting from an athletic standpoint. At the Park Golf Club there will be play for the Holiday Cup, members' bogey handicap, eighteen holes match play, morning and afternoon, and an approaching and putting contest for mixed couples and their guests which will start at 5 o'clock. A members' driving contest will also be a feature. This will start at 4.30 o'clock.

At the Plainfield Country Club the club handicap tennis tournament will be featured. This will be continued from this afternoon's play. There will also be holiday golf events.

Four good racing events are scheduled to take place at the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club Park in the afternoon. To add to the occasion, a special band has been engaged to furnish music. For the convenience of visitors, a stage will meet Arlington avenue trolley cars at the last turn on Park avenue.

Quite the most elaborate celebration of the day will take place at the Plainfield Country Club where a large gathering of members and guests will be entertained in the afternoon and evening. This will be especially intended for those who do not take part in any of the golf or tennis matches scheduled for the day. To accommodate its guests free stages will run from the end of the Arlington avenue trolley line to the club house. Dinner will be served at 6.45 o'clock and at about 7.30 o'clock an elaborate display of Pain's Fireworks will be made on the club lawn at a safe distance from the clubhouse veranda. Meanwhile a VanBaar's Old Guard band will furnish special music. Following the fireworks' display dancing will be enjoyed. To add to the holiday effect the clubhouse will be tastefully decorated in red, white and blue.

At the Park Club the usual holiday social features will be the rule.

Owing to the growing sentiment against the primiscuous display of fireworks in crowded parts of the city, the Park Club has decided to omit the usual display this season. There will, however, be an out-of-door concert by Muller's orchestra, beginning at 8 o'clock in the evening, to be followed by dancing. Should the evening be stormy, the concert and dance will be given in the large hall of the clubhouse.

In the same way without scheduling any special features the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. will entertain their guests. The buildings will be open all day for the benefit of members and their friends. At the Public Library though, holiday hours will be enforced. No books will be circulated; but the reading room will be open from 2 to 6 in the afternoon. One of the social events of the day will be the dance at Saengerbund hall in the evening of the sailors of the Battleship Connecticut.

In some of the churches tomorrow sermons appropriate to Independence Day will be preached. This was started last night when patriotic services were held in the Netherwood Reformed church. The first union service which will be held at the Trinity Reformed church will be in the nature of a patriotic service; and special patriotic services for the Jr. O. U. A. M. councils in this city will be held at the Grace M. E. church tomorrow evening. The Monroe Avenue church also will have special patriotic services.

The sailors of the U. S. Battleship Connecticut will cross bats with the Plainfield Club on Crescent Oval in the morning. A fast game is as-

TETANUS DEATHS TO BE PUT UP TO DEALERS.

Camden, July 2.—In case of death through tetanus caused by explosives on the prohibited list the offending dealer will be prosecuted for manslaughter by the Camden authorities. An edict to this effect was promulgated yeiterday by Acting County Physician Litchfield, after conference with Chief of Police Gravenor. Dr. Litchfield requests that all cases of tetanus following the Fourth be brought to his attention, and he has united with the police to secure a most rigid enforcement of the "safe and sane" ordinance.

Powder firecrackers not over two inches in length, pin wheels, red lights and paper caps are alone permissible to be used in Camden, except by permission of the Mayor, and only then where the display is to be made in an open lot in charge of experts. Permits have been granted to the Pyne Poynt Athletic Association, the East Side Patriotic Association, Park Boulevard Association and Sylvan Athletic Club.

The fireworks ordinance was amended at Thursday's session of Council making it unlawful for dealers to sell their stock earlier than today.

FORM MONUMENT ASSOCIATION.

Washington, N. J., July 2.—The organization of an association, to be known as the Washington Fraternal Monument Association, was the object of the meeting called in the hall of Warren Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday night. The monument idea was the result of the lodges of this town uniting on Memorial Day observances for the last two years. It is now planned to have the dedication of the monument as a feature of the day next year.

Nine of the secret societies and the fire company are back of the movement, and each appointed a committee to attend the meeting Thursday night, when preliminary plans were made for raising funds and selecting a site.

At the meeting Joseph M. Snyder was made temporary chairman. The organization was completed by the election of H. A. Mayo, president; Archie Lane, vice president; George W. Miller, secretary, and William Burd, treasurer. In the absence of Mr. Mayo, Mr. Lane presided.

Mr. Mayo, Jacob Hahn and Mr. Snyder were named as a committee to draft resolutions and report at a meeting in Senior Mechanic hall on July 12.

CANNOT FIND HIS WIFE.

Rahway, July 2.—The whereabouts of Mrs. Michael Schilling of Goodman's Crossing, southwest of Rahway, are being sought by her husband, neighbors, relatives and friends. Tuesday morning she got breakfast for her husband as usual and he went to work, leaving the wife at home, apparently well and contented. At noon when he returned home his wife was not there.

Telegrams and telephone messages were sent in all directions, but no tidings of the missing woman were obtained. Inquiries at the ticket office of the Lehigh Valley developed the fact that Mrs. Schilling had purchased a single ticket to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Schilling came from Flushing to Goodman's four years ago, having purchased a fruit farm of a few acres. They were doing well. They have no children.

Albert Utzinger and C. B. Morgan spent Thursday fishing at Sebring's Mills and returned home with about fifteen fine bass. The week before they caught twenty bass in the New Market pond.

BADLY INJURED WHEN TRAIN DRAGGED AUTO.

Oxford, July 2.—James Boyd, of Peapack, was seriously injured at Buttsville, two miles from this place, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by being struck by an engine on the Lackawanna Railroad. He was taken to the Memorial Hospital at Morristown.

Mr. Boyd and John Read were returning from the Delaware Water Gap, where they took a party in the afternoon. The public road from Bridgeville to Buttsville is closed on account of the building of a new road and all traveling is done by a rear road.

As the two men were coming down a steep incline the machine stopped on the railroad crossing. Read alighted and was cranking it when the engine which was running light from Port Morris to Portland, came along. Read jumped from the tracks, but Boyd, who was at the wheel, was unable to get away and he and the machine were dragged 300 feet. The automobile was totally destroyed. Mr. Boyd was badly injured about the head and body.

ROSELLE PARK FIRE CHIEF DROPS DEAD.

Fire Chief Emil B. Rosenthiel, of Roselle Park, Thursday dropped dead while at work in the blacksmith department of the Singer Manufacturing Company, Elizabeth. News of his death shocked the borough Thursday night, for he was of extraordinary physique and had been apparently in the best of health. Heart trouble is believed to have caused his death. Chief Rosenthiel had been a member of the Roselle Park department since its organization fourteen years ago. For three years he had been chief. In his career as a fireman he had saved several lives.

Rosenthiel was forty-two years old. He is survived by a wife and two children, Fred, aged ten, and Marjory, aged fourteen. He leaves two brothers, Lafayette Rosenthiel, of Roselle, and Michael Rosenthiel, of Cleveland, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Shick, of Elizabeth.

REWARD OFFERED FOR ARREST OF ABSCONDER.

Mt. Holly, July 2.—In order to stimulate activity on the part of detectives who have not yet gotten on the job with any degree of success, the authorities have offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of Clifford S. Heller, the absconding assistant cashier of the Mt. Holly National Bank, who stole nearly $20,000 from the safe and left for parts unknown on June 11.

The circular which is now being sent out, giving a minute description of the fugitive and containing his photograph, shows specimens of his handwriting and contains a warning about his being armed with a large revolver. Heller has relatives living at Conshohocken, Pa.; Philadelphia, Frazer, Pa.; West Chester, Pa.; Wilmington, Del.; New Orleans and San Francisco.

SAYS MARRIAGE NOTICE WAS PURELY A JOKE.

Washington, N. J., July 2.—After carrying the joke with his friends for a week, Clarence Young, son of Mrs. Sarah Young, of this place, who is employed in Phillipsburg, now denies that he is a Benedict. His marriage to Miss Rosa Stout, of Bangor, Pa., was said to have taken place last week and the alleged bridegroom was treating his friends to cigars when he was in Washington over Sunday.

The Easton, Pa., papers contained the list of marriage licenses last week, and among the number was that of Clarence E. Young, of Washington, and Miss Rosa Stout, of Bangor. The similarity in name lead Mr. Young to play a joke on his friends.

WOULD ANNUL MARRIAGE OF 15-YEAR-OLD GIRL.

Belmar, July 2.—Following the announcement of the secret marriage of her fifteen-year-old daughter, Madge, Mrs. Nellie Hurley, of Sixteenth avenue, has declared that she will try to have the marriage annulled.

On May 15 last the daughter was married to Charles Bennett, nineteen years old, of this place. The knot was tied by Justice of the Peace John Allen of Manasquan. The marriage was kept secret until young Bennett had some trouble with his bride's mother. He then informed the latter that she was his mother-in-law, and he took his wife away to the home of an uncle in Sixteenth avenue.

Mrs. E. W. Davis, of this city, has been visiting relatives at Lebanon.

Rev. Charles H. Fountain, of West Seventh street, will preach at White Plains, N. Y., tomorrow.

The Plainfield Baseball Club is trying conclusions with the New York Colored Giants at Crescent Oval, this afternoon. Reeds, a crack pitcher from New York, is in the box for the locals.

The U. S. S. Connecticut baseball team, one of the best, will play the Plainfield Baseball Club at Crescent Oval, Monday morning, and in the afternoon Scotch Plains, the old rivals, will be here for its first contest of the season with Plainfield.

Clifford Randolph still continues to do good work for the Troy, New York State League Club. He is a favorite in the cuff and collar town.

"Lou" Wiltse is pitching for Syracuse, of the New York State League, this season and he frequently covers first. Wiltse is making good.

The Plainfield team will play the McNulty Bros.' team in New York, tomorrow afternoon.

"Warry" MacLaughlin, who is having one of his best seasons, will try a new stunt tomorrow and Monday by pitching three games for the Plainfield nine.

In recounting the victories of the Plainfield team one does not want to overlook the consistent hard work of Walter E. Nelson, the catcher.

Only recently Nelson received a flattering offer to catch for a seashore team at Long Branch, but refused to give up his position with the New Jersey Central, which he would have to do if he accepted the job at Long Branch.

President Ebbetts, of the Brooklyn Club, also offered to place Nelson with a minor league club and see that he was properly coached for a permanent place with the Trolley Dodgers, but the New Market lad preferred to remain where he is, playing Saturday ball throughout the season.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The airship which is to make a flight on the Fourth of July has arrived in Woodbury.

Walter Jewnsiak, the youngest son of Stephen Jewnsiak, of Bayonne, died yesterday from burns received in an accident a week ago.

Officers are on the lookout for a stranger who has been canvassing South Jersey for several days with cheap jewelry, which he disposed of to unsuspecting foreigners at fancy prices.

John Norris, a fourteen-year-old boy, of Lambertville, was attacked by a bulldog, which sprang upon him without provocation and bit him three times before being beaten off. An attempt was made to shoot it, but the dog escaped.

In order that he might not do any harm from the reckless handling of firearms, which has frequently engaged his attention, the authorities at Mt. Holly have declared Dr. J. C. Still to be of unsound mind and he has been removed to the county asylum at New Lisbon.

Declaring that the absence of safety gates at the New Road crossing of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad in Pleasantville was directly responsible for the death of Peter Risley, a wealthy mainland farmer, by an electric express train last Saturday night, a coroner's jury Thursday night returned the second verdict within as many weeks censuring the railroads for running through Pleasantville with lack of proper safety appliances at crossings.

Elmer Byron, of Atlantic City, took a terrible revenge on his wife after a quarrel by making a bonfire of her new summer hats, according to the plaintiff's story told by Mrs. Byron to Magistrate Jagmetty. Incidentally the husband tore up a lot of his wife's pet photographs of men and women friends, but she claimed that she did not mind this half as much as the loss of her summer millinery. Byron made no defence and was held under bail on a charge of malicious mischief.

THE NEW LAW REQUIRING LIQUOR IMPORTS MARKED.

Washington, July 2.—The Treasury Department has come to the relief of a number of foreign shippers who have failed to comply with the law enacted January 1, last, requiring importations of wines and liquors to be specifically marked with the character of the contents of the packages, the full name of the consignee and the quantity of spirits contained. In default of such markings on importations a number of seizures have been made by customs collectors and the goods held for condemnation and sale.

Believing that the failure to comply with the law was due to carelessness and ignorance, orders have been sent to collectors of customs temporarily to permit the proper marking of packages of wines and liquors in their custody in these cases where they are satisfied the goods were shipped before the exporters reasonably could be expected to become familiar with the requirements of the law.

Robert Reynolds, of this city, has been visiting relatives in Raritan.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

JAMES E. MARTINE.

About this time every year some stanch Democratic supporters of Jas. E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," start to boom him. The booms come and go like spring blossoms. Today Martine is boomed for Congress, tomorrow for Governor and the next day for Mayor of Plainfield. And the husbandman takes it all good-naturedly. Just as good-naturedly as he does defeat. Booms come and booms go. Martine smiles on, talks on, fights on. He hag been a sacrifice for the Democratic party since the time he was first eligible to run. He knows nought but defeat. He is a good runner and a better loser. The sage of Cedar Brook Farm wears those kind of political spectacles which permit him to look only on the sunny side and the Jeffersonian principles are so mixed in him that all the world might stand up and say, "He is a Democrat."—Elizabeth Journal.

REV. DR. MAGUIRE.

Frequently the most convincing description of the work of a speaker is a testimony of his hearer at one of his regular appointments. The following paragraphs are from the Kokomo, Ind., Morning Dispatch and contain the reporter's account of Dr. Maguire's appearance at the Chautauqua in that city. The largest audience in the history of the Chautauqua association attempted to find admission last night within the Auditorium, but without success. Every seat was taken, but a plan was soon adopted which cared for the overflow meeting to its utmost comfort. Benches and chairs were hurriedly brought from the Athletic park grounds and placed upon the east side of the auditorium. Here a crowd, which numbered a third of the audience within that structure, saw and heard one of the ablest lectures the Chautauqua platform affords. It would be difficult to describe the magnificent lecture which Dr. Maguire delivered last night, and do him justice. It was the personal experience of a man who went up the Congo, as Stanley came down. It was the story of the Christian conquest of a moral hero who mastered the language and employed it in his recital of the experience he underwent with the natives in the interior of Africa. As a consequence, the recital was thrillingly dramatic. It had every realism one could expect, save the impossible, the local environment and the presence of the savage people, who were the subject of his theme.—The June number of The Platform.

THE FORUM.

Accident Victim's Statement.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It seems to me that I have been buffetted about quite enough recently without being used as a football for newspaper play. I do not desire to enter into any public argument, nor will I, but a great injustice is done me when you publish the statement attributed to Mr. Isaac P. Runyon that "everybody who investigated the matter knows that Thorn on a motorcycle ran into Hansen's automobile." I don't know who made such investigation but I do know, without an investigation, that I was pretty badly injured seven weeks ago tonight and that the injury was not caused by my running into someone's automobile. I trust that you will make that one particular point plain and then let me rest for the present. I need it.

sured and this will be started promptly at 10.30 o'clock. The Y. M. C. A. team goes to Somerville, where it will play the strong nine of that place. Two games will be played, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

The Postoffice will be closed at 10 o'clock Monday morning; and there will be but one delivery. There will be no issue of The Daily Press Monday and business places in general will be closed.

Greased pig catching, wheel barrow races, mud races, pole climbing, fat men's races for contestants weighing over 250 pounds will be among the chief features of the all day celebration at New Market. This celebration will be held at Vail's Grove and will be under the direction of Friendship Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. Three-legged races, canoe races, flat bottomed boat races and swimming races will also be a part of the program. A band has been engaged for the occasion and fireworks will be displayed at night. One of the events of particular interest to farmers will be a race for "buggies and farm wagons." Each competitor starts his horse at halter, harnesses up, takes a run of about a mile over a prescribed course, returns, unharnesses and have the horse at halter again.

At Dunellen there will be a carnival on North avenue beyond Taylor's hotel. This will be under the auspices of Wm. G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. Two baseball games are scheduled. In the morning the Westfield club plays Dunellen and in the afternoon the team from the U. S. Battleship Connecticuut. Both games will be played on the Dunellen field.

At South Plainfield William Hamilton's shot put challenge to the whole world and to Wall street brokers especially, promises to be a leading card of the afternoon and evening celebration there. A ball game and field meet will start at 1.30 p. m. Aquatic events and a bicycle race are scheduled to take place and dancing will be a feature. This will be held under a covered pavilion and music will be furnished by a Perth Amboy orchestra. Fireworks will be displayed in the evening.

Scotch Plains will feature bicycle races on its all day celebration program. Athletic events also will be featured and dancing and fireworks will be the attractions in the evening. Suhr's orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

All is in readiness for the big celebration of the Fourth at the Plains, Monday. The committee has arranged an all day's program with something doing from 7 a. m. until 1.30 the following a. m. The rendezvous or picnic ground will be on the Johnston farm under the cooling shade of the poplar and elm trees along Green Brook. Here the families will gather, many of them bringing lunch and spending the day. Band stand and grand stands have been built and the committee has worked hard towards looking out for the comfort of every one. Many visitors from out of town are expected and a general big day is looked for. Nothing can mar it but the weather. Following is the official program of the day's events:

7 a. m. flag raising at the corner of Front street and Park avenue, this will be in charge of Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M.; 8 a. m., the two mile open run will be held, the course being from Park avenue and Front street to Fanwood station and return. At 9 a. m. Twilight Council will present a flag to Public School No. 1, the ceremony taking place on the school lawn. Guttman's Band will be in attendance as well as many members of the order from out of town. 10 to 12 o'clock there will be trap shooting on the picnic grounds, six events will be shot off. 3 of 10 birds, 2 of 20 birds, and 1 of 25 birds between each event, other events consisting of running races, jumping contesnts, etc., will be held. At 12 o'clock the greased pig will be turned loose. An hour's respite for dinner will be held. Promptly at 1.30, the married men captained by Edward L. Hand, will meet the single men captained by James Fitzgerald, in a game of baseball. At 3.30 the 10-mile handicap races will be held on Mountain avenue, following this there will be a one mile open race, and a two mile race for local boys only. Three bicycles will be the principal prizes in the ten mile race. However, there are fifteen other prizes consisting of merchandise for those who are among the leaders. Merchandise prizes will be given in the 2-mile boys' race and medals in the 1-mile open.

At 8 o'clock in the evening, Suhr's Band will give a band concert and there will be a grand display of fireworks on the picnic ground, following which the day's event will be brought to a close with a dance in the hall.

OLD BOSS DIDN'T LIKE SUCCESS OF HIS SUCCESSOR

The adage that an old boss never takes delight in the success of his successor found an apt illustration in the borough last night. As a result of the illustration, David Retlord, of Somerset street, and Isaac Walter, of Third street, were arrested by Marshal Keller and when arraigned this morning were fined three dollars each.

Walter formerly worked for a Somerset street glazier, but left his employ recently for reasons best known to himself and his employer. In his stead came Retlord who, it is said, has been doing creditable work in the business. The firm recently had a big contract in Somerville in which work Retlord, it is alleged, did commendable work. So last night when the latter went riding up Somerset street on a bicycle, Walter called him off the wheel and words were exchanged relative to the merits of each other in the eyes of the other. Blows followed; and while both were mixing it up pretty well, Marshal Keller came along and arrested the combatants. Each paid three dollars in the borough treasury this morning.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Preparations are all completed for the fireman's celebration on the Fourth of July, and from the varied program they are sanguine of success. There will be a parade, a bicycle race a tub race, high jumping and various aquatic sports. A number of boats and canoes can be rented by the hour or half day and a motor boat will make regular trips. The committee solicits a large patronage so that the affair may be a complete success.

The last meeting of the arrangement committee for the firemen's carnival on the Fourth was held last night. The committee is now satisfied that everything possible has been done to assure the success of the affair.

The Spicer Manufacturing Company is making rapid strides in completing the building here, so that the forge on Madison avenue, Plainfield, may be removed July 15.

Rev. J. J. Allen will preach both morning and evening tomorrow. He has fully recovered from his recent indisposition, and is feeling quite like himself again.

Augustine McDonough, who has been suffering from a severe attack of whooping cough is now recovering slowly.

Miss Maguire, of New York, is spending a few days with Mrs. William Leddin, of Brokside avenue.

Henry Arrowsmith has entered his car in the Atlantic City races and will spend the summer there.

Mrs. Dorland spent yesterday in New York City.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball team will line up against Plainfield at Crescent Oval, Monday afternoon as follows: Baldwin, cf; H. Alberts, c; Vanderbilt, rf; Mullin, ss; Ramsberger or Lynch, 3b; Deegan or Long, p; Reick, lf; Miller, 1b.

The Fanwood Social Club held its second social dance last night in the Fanwood fire house. Notwithstanding the hot weather the friends of the club were out in force and a most enjoyable time was had.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours: Morning preaching, 10:45 followed by the monthly communion; Bible study at 4 p. m.; evening service B. Y. P. U. at 7:15.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Methodist church, will be held tonight in the church. Rev. Mr. Hollingshead will lead the meeting.

The Ladies' Circle, of the Baptist church are holding a cake sale this afternoon on the lawn at the home of the Misses Hayes, in the borough.

Three stage loads of members of Bethany Sunda yschool enjoyed a day's outing yesterday on the Johnston Farm along Green brook.

The Misses Kyte, of Fanwood, are spending the summer at West Vienna, Oneida county, New York.

Frank W. Conger and family, of Union avenue, will remove shortly to Roselle Park.

Lines—Knaus.

Miss Minnie M. Lines and August Knaus, both of this city, were married Thursday evening at 8.45 o'clock by Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at the home of the officiating minister on East Second street. William Knaus, brother of the groom, was best man, and Mrs. Sarah Cornelius, of this city, was matron-of-honor. After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Plainfield.

DEPRESSING HEAT TODAY OVERCOMES MAN ON FRONT ST.

William Hawkinsworth, an elderly man, of Battlesford, Michigan, who arrived in Plainfield this morning, was overcome by the heat on West Front street near Girard avenue at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. He was lying on the strip of grass by the gutter in a semi-conscious condition when a passerby stopped to see what was the matter. A hasty examination showed that he was ill.

Police headquarters was notified of the case and Patrolman Saunders went out with the patrol wagon. He was taken to police headquarters where relief was given him. He says he does not drink; but that the heat alone was the cause of his indisposition. He spent the afternoon resting in the reception room of police headquarters.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Case, of Crescent avenue, are planning to spend their summer vacation in the Berkshires.

Will Have to be More Careful.

There is an Artemus Ward Jr., a New York assemblyman, who is said to be a wit like his famous namesake. On a recent occasion he nominated Ward F. Clute of New York city for head doorkeeper, but forgot the office, and had to rise again to rectify his mistake. It is to be hoped his reputation for wit does not rest solely on this occurrence.

Morbid Thoughts Foes.

Morbid thoughts are indefinitely greater hindrances to success than opposition from outside. No health, no beauty, no harmony, no real success can exist in the atmosphere of abnormal melancholy. Overcome the enemies of success within yourself and you will have done much toward reaching the goal.

Stilted Journalism.

Journalists on the island of St. Helena throw much literary style into their work. A weather report in the Guardian reads: "The weather during the past week has been rather warm, King Sol shining in all his glory, while fair Luna beamed so brilliantly that it was quite possible to read small print."

Iron.

Pure iron is only a laboratory preparation. Cast iron, the most generally useful variety, contains about five per cent. of impurities, and the curious thing is that it owes its special value to the presence of these. Pure iron can be shaved with a pocket knife; impure iron can be made almost as hard as steel.

Iron Cyclone Cellar.

An iron cyclone cellar is a novelty described in Popular Mechanics. It says that a metal concern in one of the cyclone states of the west is manufacturing the cyclone cellar of extra heavy galvanized corrugated iron. It has a cylindrical shape, and is provided with stairway, seats, shelves and bins.

Value of Cheerful Voice.

A well-trained voice has a value in every line of work—stenography, telephone operator, canvasser, masseuse, and in many other lines of work. One of the best masseuses in Chicago, who has more customers than she can take, is as well known for her pleasant, cheerful voice as for her good work.

Futile Dreaming.

"Everybody has some dream that recurs frequently," says an eminent physician. Every little while we dream that we have been able to save about two dollars out of our week's salary. But it doesn't seem to help us any.

Must Advance or Recede.

No man or no nation can stand still. In a world where every form of life has grown out of a lower form, where one age builds on another, as the coral insect builds up the islands of the sea, nothing can be stationary.

Don't They?

The advice given to young men by college presidents and others to go west and grow up with the country is of course with the proviso that they may come to New York to spend the fortune after it is acquired.—N. Y. Press.

Think it Over.

"Tell me, sir, the secret of your success," the rich man was asked. "I always looked after things before they got by me," was the somewhat paradoxical answer.

For Health and Vigor.

The wise use of ten minutes every day in active rigorous exercise aimed at enlivening the vital organs rather than at mere muscular development will go far to induce a healthy body.

Few Have the Knack.

It is one of the hardest and most useful accomplishments in the world to be annoyed without letting the fact annoy others.

Highest Form of Beauty.

Of all the beauty which can adorn either man or woman, there is no beauty like that of perfect health, a fine bearing, and a keen intellect.

The World's Way.

At any rate the prodigal son acquired more fame than the virtuous brother who stayed at home and was decent.—New York Times.

The Money of the World.

Of the world's stock of money seven billion dollars is gold, three and one-half billions silver, and four and one-third billions uncovered paper.

Physical Recreation a Demand.

Physical recration is as essential for young people as intellectual and spiritual training.

A Sweeping Opinion.

A fool is one who gives advice to a wise man and thinks him a fool for not taking it.—Life.

Made a Victim.

We have observed that the man who is easy is usually worked hard.

A Cynic Definition.

Matrimony.—The mirage on the desert of life.—Judge.

Not Always.

The Art of Seeing Things.

The art of seeing things is not something that may be conveyed in rules and precepts; it is a matter vital in the eye and ear, yea, in the mind and soul, of which these are the organs. I have as little hope of being able to tell the reader how to see things as I would have in trying to tell him how to fall in love or to enjoy his dinner. Either he does or he does not, and that is about all there is of it.—John Burroughs.

Why Kettles Sing.

The reason a kettle "sings" is a very simple one. As the water gets hot little bubbles of steam are found at the bottom of the kettle. These in their rush upward strike the sides of the kettle and set the metal it is made of in vibration, thus causing the humming sound we call singing. You will notice a copper kettle, which has thin sides, will make a much louder and more musical note than a common iron kettle.

Not Proper Comparison.

The old darky had driven his fare to the hotel and was now demanding a dollar for his service. "What!" protested the passenger, "a dollar for that distance? Why, it isn't half a mile as the crow flies." "Dat's true boss," returned Sambo, with an appealing smile, "but y' see, suh, dat old crow he ain't got free wives an' ten chilluns to suppoht not to mention de keep foh de hoss."

Daysey's Exclusive Illness.

A sickness which attacked Daysey Mayme last week is said by her physician to be muffitis. Muffitis is exhaustion of the muscles in the arms and shoulders, due to carrying a very heavy muff. It is claimed by the family that she has the only case in the town.—Atchison Globe.

Properties of Steel.

Steel is a true alloy, containing several foreign elements. Here, as in iron, the special values of the different steels depend on the nature and proportion of those elements. Steel may be had as soft as the softest irons.

Gentle Hint.

The Girl.—"You're not a bit like a lover. You never say pretty things." The Man.—"Didn't I say that you looked like a beautiful autumn leaf?" The Girl.—"Well, don't autumn leaves want pressing?"—Illustrated Bits.

Making Textiles Fireproof.

Textiles may be rendered fireproof, according to the Paris board of fire commissioners, by steeping them in a 10 per cent solution of phosphate of ammonia, then drying them in the open air.

Your Stomach—and Your Wife.

When a man has trouble with his stomach, it is due to one of two causes: Either his wife is such a good cook she is stuffing him, or she is such a poor one she is starving him.—Atchinson (Kan.) Globe.

Virtues of a High Order.

Punctuality, assiduity, economy, ingenuity, interest in our tasks; these may be described as commonplace virtues, but they are certainly not virtues absolutely common.

Making Him Feel at Home.

"But why do your put your friend's things in the dining room?" "Oh, he is so used to restaurants that he won't enjoy his dinner unless he can watch his hat and coat."

Quite So.

"You Hamericans say we 'ave no 'umor," said the loyal Britisher, "but I'll 'ave you understand, sir, that Hinglish jokes are not to be laughed at!"—Everybody's.

Sounds Likely.

Our idea of a great financier is a man who worries more about the price of call money than he does about the price of pork chops.

Getting the Worst from Life.

Life is not worth living if we go about our work, whatever it is, in a spiritless, half-hearted, desponding way.

Fear's Usefulness.

Early and provident fear is the mother of safety.—Burke.

Wisdom in Their Method.

Sometimes the wicked stand in slipp'ry places so it will be hard for anybuddy to git near 'em.

No Makeup Necessary.

Austria Executes Few Murderers.

Austria is the country most lenient to murderers. A very small percentage of those convicted are executed.

Adversity's Sting.

Adversity borrows its sharpest sting from our impatience.—Bishop Horne.

Hunchbacks in Spanish Town.

One town in Spain has one hunchback to every 13 inhabitants.

Much Useless Land.

Less than six per cent of the entire area of the world is capable of tillage.

Lowell's Tribute to Women.

Earth's noblest thing, a woman perfected.—Lowell.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eye; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swoolen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps, unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Peculiar Form of Tobacco Using.

Hookha, the bubble-bubble or Turkish water pipe, is always being smoked by Burmese women, partly because they like it, but mainly to supply the men with nicotine water. This bubble-bubble nicotine water habit is, in fact, a lazy form of tobacco chewing. A mouthful of the beverage is held in the mouth as long as possible. They carry about gourds full of it, and claim it preserves their teeth, and it may.—New York Press.

Aged State Pensioners.

Robert E. Pluribus Unum Smith is an old-age pensioner in Australia. In his application he added the words, "otherwise known as Rowdy Bob." In spite of this uncomplimentary second title, the local authorities certified his character as "good," and he had no difficulty in getting his $2.40 a week from the state. The oldest Australian pensioner is a woman of 105.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"Oh, certainly, certainly, if you wish it," chuckled the little man, in high humor. "I would have visited your sloop today, Captain Plum, if you hadn't come ashore so opportunely this morning. Ho, ho, ho! a good joke, eh? A mighty good joke!"

Captain Plum regained his composure by relighting his pipe. He heard the chink of gold pieces and when he looked again the two piles of money were close to the edge of his side of the table.

"That's for you, Captain Plum. There's a just $1,000 in those two piles." There was tense earnestness now in the old man's face and voice. "I've imposed on you," he continued, speaking as one who had suddenly thrown off a disguise. "If it had been any other man it would have been the same. I want help. I want an honest man. I want a man whom I can trust. I will give you a thousand dollars if you will take a package back to your vessel with you and will promise to deliver it as quickly as you can."

"I'll do it!" cried Captain Plum. He jumped to his feet and held out his hand. But the old man slipped from his chair and darted swiftly out into the blackness of the adjoining room. As he came back Captain Plum could hear his insane chuckling.

"Business — business — business —" he gurgled. "Eh, Captain Plum? Did you ever take an oath?" He tossed a book on the table. It was the Bible.

Captain Plum understood. He reached for the book and held it under his left hand. His right he lifted above his head, while a smile played about his lips.

"I suppose you want to place me under oath to deliver that package," he said.

"Repeat," he commanded. "I, Captain Nathaniel Plum, do solemnly swear before God—"

A thrilling inspiration shot into Captain Plum's brain.

"Hold!" he cried. He lowered his hand. With something that was almost a snarl the old man sprang back, his hands clenched. "I will take this oath upon one other consideration," continued Captain Plum. "I came to Beaver Island to see something of the life and something of the people of St. James. If you, in turn, will swear to show me as much as you can tonight I will take the oath."

The old man was beside the table again in an instant.

"I will show it to you—all—all—" he exclaimed excitedly. 'I will show

"That's for You, Captain Plum."

it to you—yes, and swear to it upon the body of Christ!"

Captain Plum lifted his hand again and word by word repeated the oath. When it was done the other took his place.

"Your name?" asked Captain Plum.

"Obadiah Price."

"But you are a Mormon. You have the Bible there?"

Again the old man disappeared into the adjoining room. When he returned he placed two books side by side and stood them on edge so that he might clasp both between his bony fingers. One was the Bible, the other the Book of the Mormons. In a cracked, excited voice he repeated the strenuous oath improvised by Captain Plum.

"Now," said Captain Plum, distributing the gold pieces among his pockets, "I'll take that package."

This time the old man was gone for several minutes. When he returned he placed a small package tightly bound and sealed into his companion's hand.

"More precious than your life, more priceless than gold," he whispered tensely, "yet worthless to all but the one to whom it is to be delivered."

There were no marks on the package.

"And who is that?" asked Captain Plum.

The old man came so close that his breath fell hot upon the young man's cheek. He lifted a hand as though to ward sound from the very walls that closed them in.

"Franklin Pierce, president of the United States of America!"

CHAPTER II.

The Seven Wives.

Hardly had the words fallen from the lips of Obadiah Price than the old man straightened himself and stood as rigid as a gargoyle, his gaze penetrating into the darkness of the room beyond Captain Plum, his head inclined slightly, every nerve in him strained to a tension of expectancy. His companion involuntarily gripped the butt of his pistol and faced the narrow entrance through which they had come. In the moment of absolute silence that followed there came to him, faintly, a sound, unintelligible at first, but growing in volume until he knew that it was the last echo of a tolling bell. There was no movement, no sound of breath or whisper from the old man at his back. But when it came again, floating to him as if from a vast distance, he turned quickly to find Obadiah Price with his face lifted, his thin arms flung wide above his head and his lips moving as if in prayer. His eyes burned with a dull glow as though he had been suddenly thrown into a trance. He seemed not to breathe, no vibration of life stirred him except in the movement of his lips. With the third toll of the distant bell he spoke, and to Captain Plum it was as if the passion and fire in his voice came from another being.

"Our Christ, Master of hosts, we call upon thy chosen people the three blessings of the universe—peace, prosperity and plenty, and upon Strang, priest, king and prophet, the bounty of thy power!"

Three times more the distant bell tolled forth its mysterious message and when the last echoes had died away the old man's arms dropped beside him and he turned again to Captain Plum.

"Franklin Pierce, president of the United States of America," he repeated, as though there had been no interruption since his companion's question, "the package is to be delivered to him. Now you must excuse me. An important matter calls me out for a short time. But I will be back soon—oh, yes, very soon. And you will wait for me. You will wait for me here, and then I will take you to St. James."

He was gone in a quick hopping way, like a cricket, and the last that Captain Plum saw of him was his ghostly face turned back for an instant in the darkness of the next room, and after that the soft patter of his feet and the strange chuckle in his throat traveled to the outer door and died away as he passed out into the night. Nathaniel Plum was not a man to be easily startled, but there was something so unusual about the proceedings in which he was as yet playing a blind part that he forgot to smoke, which was saying much. Who was the old man? Was he mad? His eyes scanned the little room and an exclamation of astonishment fell from his lips when he saw the leather bag, partly filled with gold, lying where his mysterious acquaintance had dropped it. Surely this was madness or else another ruse to test his honesty. The discovery thrilled him. It was wonderfully quiet out in that next room and very dark. Were hidden eyes guarding that bag? Well, if so, he would give their owner to understand that he was not a thief. He rose from his chair and moved toward the bag, lifted it in his hand, and tossed it back again so that the gold in it chinked loudly. Then he went to the narrow aperture and blocked it with his body and listened until he knew that if there had been human life in the room he would have heard it.

The outer door was opened and through it there came to him the soft breath of the night air and the sweetness of balsam and wild flowers. It struck him that it would be pleasanter waiting outside than in, and it would undoubtedly make no difference to Obadiah Price. In front of the cabin he found the stump of a log and seating himself on it where the clear light of the stars fell full upon him he once more began his interrupted smoke. It seemed to him that he had waited a long time when he heard the sound of footsteps. They came rapidly as if the person was half running. Hardly had he located the direction of the sound when a figure appeared in the opening and hurried toward the door of the cabin. A dozen yards from him it paused for a moment and turned partly about, as if inspecting the path over which it had come. With a greeting whistle Captain Plum jumped to his feet. He heard a little throat note, which was not the chuckling of Obadiah Price, and the figure ran almost into his arms. A sudden knowledge of having made a mistake drew Captain Plum a pace backward. For scarcely more than five seconds he found himself staring into the white terrified face of a girl. Eyes wide and glowing with sudden fright met his own. Instinctively he lifted his hand to his hat, but before he could speak the girl sprang back with a low cry and ran swiftly down the path that led into the gloom of the woods.

For several minutes Captain Plum stood as if the sudden apparition had petrified him. He listened long after the sound of retreating footsteps had died away. There remained behind a faint sweet odor of lilac which stirred his soul and set his blood ngning. It was a beautiful face that he had seen. He was sure of that and yet he could have given no good verbal proof of it. Only the eyes and the odor of lilac remained with him and after a little the lilac drifted away. Then he went back to the log and sat down. He smiled as he thought of the joke that he had unwittingly played on Obadiah. From his knowledge of the Beaver Island Mormons he was satisfied that the old man who displayed gold in such reckless profusion was anything but a bachelor. In all probability this was one of his wives and the cabin behind him, he concluded, was for some reason isolated from the harem. "Evidently that little saintess is not a flirt," he concluded, "or she would have given me time to speak to her."

The continued absence of Obadiah Price began to fill Captain Plum with impatience. After an hour's wait he reentered the cabin and made his way to the little room, where the candle was still burning dimly. To his astonishment he beheld the old man sitting beside the table. His thin face was propped between his hands and his eyes were closed as if he was asleep. They shot open instantly on Captain Plum's appearance.

"I've been waiting for you, Nat," he cried, straightening himself with spring-like quickness. "Waiting for you a long time, Nat!" He rubbed his hands and chuckled at his own familiarity. "I saw you out there enjoying yourself. What did you think of her, Nat?" He winked with such audacious glee that, despite his own astonishment, Captain Plum burst into a laugh. Obadiah Price held up a warning hand. "Tut, tut, not so loud!" he admonished. His face was a map of wrinkles. His little black eyes shone with silent laughter. There was no doubt but that he was immensely pleased over something. "Tell me, Nat—why did you come to St. James?"

He leaned forward over the table, his odd white head almost resting on it, and twiddled his thumbs with wonderful rapidity. "Eh, Nat?" he urged. "Why did you come?"

"Because it was too hot and uninteresting lying out there in a calm, Dad," replied the master of the Typhoon. "We've been roasting for 36 hours without a breath to fill our sails. I came over to see what you people are like. Any harm done?"

"Not a bit, not a bit—yet," chuckled the old man. "And what's your business, Nat?"

"Sailing—mostly."

"Ho, ho, ho! of course, I might have known it! Sailing—mostly. Why, certainly you sail! And why do you carry a pistol on one side of you and a knife on the other, Nat?"

"Troublous times, Dad. Some of the fisherfolk along the Northern End aren't very scrupulous. They took a cargo of canned stuffs from me a year back."

"And what use do you make of the four-pounder that's wrapped up in tarpaulin under your deck, Nat? And what in the world are you going to do with five barrels of gunpowder?"

"How in blazes—" began Captain Plum.

"O, to be sure, to be sure—they're for the fisher-folk," interrupted Obadiah Price. "Blow 'em up, eh, Nat? And you seem to be a young man of education, Nat. How did you happen to make a mistake in your count? Haven't you 12 men aboard your sloop instead of eight, Nat? Aren't there 12 instead of eight? Eh, Nat?"

"The devil take you!" cried Captain Plum, leaping suddenly to his feet, his face flaming red. "Yes, I have got 12 men and I've got a gun in tarpaulin and I've got five barrels of gunpowder! But how in the name of kingdom-come did you find it out?"

Obadiah Price came around the end of the table and stood so close to Captain Plum that a person ten feet away could not have heard him when he spoke.

"I know more than that, Nat," he whispered. "Listen! A little while ago—say two weeks back—you were becalmed off the head of Beaver Island, and one dark night you were boarded by two boat-loads of men who made you and your crew prisoners, robbed you of everything you had—and the next day you went back to Chicago. Eh?"

Nathaniel stood speechless.

"And you made up your mind the pirates were Mormons, enlisted some of your friends, armed your ship—and you're back here to make us settle. Isn't it so, Nat?"

The little old man was rubbing his hands eagerly, excitedly.

"You tried to get the revenue cutter Michigan to come down with you, but they wouldn't—ho, ho, they wouldn't! One of our friends in Chicago sent quick word ahead of you to tell me all about it, and—Strang, the king, doesn't know!"

He spoke the last words in intense earnestness.

Then, suddenly, he held out his hand.

"Young man, will you shake hands with me? Will you shake hands?—and then we will go to St. James!"

Captain Plum thrust out a hand and the old man gripped it. The thin fingers tightened like cold clamps of steel. For a moment the face of Obadiah Price underwent a strange change. The hardness and glitter went out of his eyes and in place there came a questioning, almost an appealing, look. His tense mouth relaxed. It was as if he was on the point of surrendering to some emotion which he was struggling to stifle. And Nathaniel, meeting those eyes, felt that somewhere within him had been struck a strange chord of sympathy, something that made this little old man more than a halfmad stranger to him, and involuntarily the grip of his fingers tightened around those of his companion.

"Now we will go to St. James, Captain Plum!"

He attempted to withdraw his hand but Captain Plum held to it.

"Not yet!" he exclaimed. "There are two or three things which your friend didn't tell you, Obadiah Price!"

Nathaniel's eyes glittered dangerously.

He gazed steadily into the old man's unflinching eyes.

"I said something like this: 'Casey, I'm going to see Strang before I come back. If he's willing to settle for five thousand, we'll call it off. And if he isn't—why, we'll stand out there a mile and blow St. James into hell! And if I don't come back by to-morrow at sundown, Casey, you take command and blow it to hell without me!' So, Obadiah Price, if there's treachery—"

The old man clutched at his hands with insane fierceness.

"There will be no treachery, Nat, I swear to God there will be no treachery! Come, we will go—"

Still Captain Plum hesitated.

"Who are you? Whom am I to follow?"

"A member of our holy Council of Twelve, Nat, and lord high treasurer of his majesty, King Strang!"

Before Captain Plum could recover from the surprise of this whispered announcement the little old man had freed himself and was pattering awfully through the darkness of the next room. The master of the Typhoon followed close behind him. Outside the councilor hesitated for a moment, as if debating which route to take, and then with a prodigious wink at Captain Plum and a throatful of his inimitable chuckles, chose the path down which his startled visitor of a short time before had fled. For 15 minutes this path led between thick black walls of forest verdure. Obadiah Price kept always a few paces ahead of his companion and spoke not a word. At the end of perhaps half a mile the path entered into a large clearing on the farther side of which Nathaniel caught the glimmer of a light. They passed close to this light, which came from the window of a large square house built of logs, and Captain Plum became suddenly conscious that the air was filled with the redolent perfume of lilac. With half a dozen quick strides he overtook the councilor and caught him by the arm.

"I smell lilac!" he exclaimed.

"Certainly, so do I," replied Obadiah Price. "We have very fine lilacs on the island."

"And I smelled lilac back there," continued Nathaniel, still holding to the old man's arm, and pointing a thumb over his shoulder. "I smelled 'em back there, when—"

"Ho, ho, ho!" chuckled the councilor softly. "I don't doubt it, Nat, I don't doubt it. She is very fond of lilacs. She wears the flowers very often."

He pulled himself away and Captain Plum could hear his queer chuckling for some time after. Soon they entered the gloom of the woods again and a little later came out into another clearing and Nathaniel knew that it was St. James that lay at his feet. The lights of a few fishing boats were twinkling in the harbor, but for the most part the town was dark. Here and there a window shone like a spot of phosphorescent yellow in the dismal gloom and the great beacon still burned steadily over the home of the prophet.

"Ah, it is not time," whispered Obadiah. "It is still too early." He drew his companion out of the path which they had followed and sat himself down on a hummock a dozen yards away from it, inviting Nathaniel by a pull of the sleeve to do the same. There were three of these hummocks, side by side, and Captain Plum chose the one nearest the old man and waited for him to speak. But the councilor did not open his lips. Doubled over until his chin rested almost upon the sharp points of his knees, he gazed steadily at the beacon, and as he looked it shuddered and grew dark, like a firefly that suddenly closes its wings. With a quick spring the councilor straightened himself and turned to the master of the Typhoon.

"You have a good nose, Nat," he said, "but your ears are not so good. Sh-h-h-h!" He lifted a hand warningly and nodded sidewise toward the path. Captain Plum listened. He heard low voices and then footsteps—voices that were approaching rapidly, and were those of women, and footsteps that were almost running. The old man caught him by the arm and as the sounds came nearer his grip tightened.

"Don't frighten them, Nat. Get down!"

The Telephone— A Friend in Need

WITH a telephone at home, the business man does not feel the urgent necessity of being at the office.

Without a telephone, frequently he goes to business when he should stay indoors, sometimes thus developing a serious sickness from a slight indisposition. A telephone would keep him in touch with his place of business, and his place of business in touch with him, so that all ordinary affairs of the day would go on as though he were at his post.

It does not matter how far a man lives from his office, for Bell Telephone Service is both Local and Long Distance.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

Feb. 6, 1873.

Mr. R. McDonald, Grocer, on the corner of Front and Peace streets, states that at 5 o'clock on the morning of Thursday last, the thermometer at his residence stood at 28 degrees below zero.

Mr. Schepflin, of the firm of Schepflin, Baldwin, Tweedy & Co., has purchased of Mr. E. Marsh, a strip of land on Front street, next to Marsh's block, whereon he contemplates shortly to erect a four-story brick building to be occupied by the above firm in connection with their business, their present space not being large enough to accommodate their rapidly increasing business.

Mr. I. Cicle fell from the roof of our office to the ground on Tuesday last, and broke his back. His remains were gathered up by some urchins and taken away with them.

We regret to learn of a serious accident which happened to Assessor Joseph A. Hubbard, on Monday last. It appears he was leaving his residence after dinner, and when just about stepping from the steps of his porch, his foot slipped on the icy pavement throwing him heavily to the ground, rfom which he sustained to his back, that will confine him to his bed for some time.

A large audience, considering the weather, was assembled at the Congregational church, on Tuesday evening last, to listen to Miss Anna E. Dickinson, while she discoursed about "What's to Hinder?" She told some harsh truths, a number of which we doubt not, were appropriate to a portion of the audience. Her remarks were received with breathless attention until the close.

A train of some sixteen cars, loaded with ice, passed through this city toward New York, this morning. Ice must be scarce in that vicinity.

Vineland has a school teacher who allows the lady scholars to amuse themselves by pulling his whiskers. The view when a dozen girls all hang in festoons all pendent from his moustache, is decidedly picturesque. The victim has taught for 30 years, and strange as it may appear, he has some hair left.

We are reliably informed that William K. Williams, who was an applicant for the appointment of post master for this city has withdrawn from the contest, and will give the newspaper business his personal attention again.

On Thursday afternoon last, Mr. Van Deventer, of the firm of Shaw & Van Deventer, was taking a sleigh ride behind a favorite horse, when on Cherry street, near the railroad crossing, while in the act of decreasing the speed of the horse, the loops on the shafts, to which the hold-back straps were connected became detached, causing the sleigh to run against the horse, who started on a run and continued until he same in contact with a passing coal train, receiving injuuries which killed him instantly. Mr. V. fortunately jumped from the sleigh thus escaping personal injury.

COMPLETING THE PLANS FOR GETTYSBURG CAMP.

Trenton, July 2.—Arrangements are being completed by the adjutant-general and quartermaster-general for the encampment of New Jersey troops who will participate in the maneuvers of the regular army and organized militia at Gettysburg, from July 9 to July 30. Governor Fort will attend the encampment when it opens and will be accompanied by his military and personal staffs.

The New Jersey representation will consist of Brigadier-General Dennis F. Collins and the Second Brigade staff, Second and Third Infantry and Battery B, Field Artillery, July 9 to 17; First Troop, Cavalry, July 16 to 23, and Second Troop, Cavalry, July 23 to 30, inclusive.

The Second Brigade, Second and Third Infantry, and Battery B, Field Artillery, will be on the extreme left of the camp, with the Second and Twenty-ninth United States Infantry on their right. The troops from Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia will be on the right of the regular troops. This arrangement will bring the national guardsmen into close touch with the regulars.

The camp will be in command of Brigadier-General W. W. Wotherspoon, United States Army. The observers assigned for duty with the New Jersey organizations are as follows: Second Infantry headquarters and First Battalion, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Lejeune, U. S. Marine Corps; Second Battalion, Major D. J. Baker, Jr., Eleventh United States Infantry; Third Battalion, Captain G. A. Youngberg, Corps of Engineers. Third Infantry headquarters and First Battalion, Lieutenant-Colonel C. M. O'Connor, Eighth United States Cavalry; Second Battalion, Captain E. A. Helmick, Tenth United States Infantry; Third Battalion, Captain W. K. Naylor, Ninth United States Infantry; First and Second Troops Cavalry, Major W. C. Brown, Third United States Cavalry, Battery B., Field Artillery, Major G. LeR. Irwin, Third United States Field Artillery.

The assistant secretary of war has expressed a desire that intoxicating liquor be kept out of the camp. He is in favor of prohibiting altogether its use within the camp limits, and particularly desires the co-operation of all officers and men to discourage in every way possible the introduction of intoxicants into camp.

Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler has issued instructions to the organization commanders which contain matters of first importance. Some of these instructions relate to discipline in and out of camp, which General Sadler believes can best be insured by putting the officers and men on their mettle. Others deal with sanitation, every officer and man being instructed to see that the sanitary regulations are carried out in the broadest spirit.

BLEW SAFE TO PIECES, GOT EIGHTEEN DOLLARS

Woodbridge, July 2.—Thieves blew a safe to pieces and wrecked the bottling establishment of Paul Koegel, on Hackensack street, Thursday night, to be rewarded with $18 in cash which was inside the steel receptacle. The thieves appropriated $10 worth of whisky and departed.

When Mr. Koegel arose yesterday he found the outer doors of his shop had been blown to the sidewalk. The interior was in wreckage, and the safe had been ruined by exposives. The safe door was blown to pieces. Mr. Koegel, who lives next door to his shop, heard a muffled noise while in bed, but attributed it to his horses stamping in their stalls and did not arise. The robbery is supposed to have been perpetrated by two strangers who were seen loitering in the vicinity Thursday night.

DENY USING MAILS TO DUPE PATRONS.

Trenton, July 2.—Charged with using the United States mail to defraud, William H. Ruffhead, of Stirling, and Samuel D. Simpson, of Jersey City, were arraigned before Judge Cross in the United States District Court yesterday, and each pleaded not guilty. They were indicted last week by the United States Grand Jury.

Judge Cross remanded them for trial next Thursday, with the understanding that if they shall obtain satisfactory bail trial may go over, to the September term of court. Bail for Ruffhead was fixed at $1,500 and for Simpson at $1,000.

It is alleged that, posing as a business firm, the two men ordered goods by mail, and then disposed of them without paying for them, thus pocketing the entire proceeds.

YOUNG PHILA. LAWYER IS KILLED AT CAPE MAY.

Cape May, July 2.—John William Hallahan third, one of the most prominent of the junior members of the Philadelphia bar, was killed late Thursday night when he stepped from a hotel elevator after the car had started. He was caught between the car and the floor, his neck being broken.

Mr. Hallahan, who was twenty-nine years old, was in Cape May attending the annual meeting of the Penssylvania Bar Association, which ended its sessions Thursday night. He was the son of a wealthy shoe manufacturer of this city.

Mr. Hallahan married Florence O'Day, a daughter of the late Daniel O'Day, the Standard Oil millionaire. Mrs. Hallahan is spending the summer at New London.

BOY BICYCLIST STRUCK BY SLEVIN'S AUTO

Michael Martin, a nineteen-year-old Italian, is lying in the hospital today with a broken nose and a badly lacerated body as a result of being struck by an automobile driven by John Slevin, of Franklin place, on Somerset street, Saturday evening. Slevin is under $1,000 bail.

The accident took place at about 7 o'clock near Jackson avenue. Slevin was driving his machine down Somerset street at a moderate speed when Martin, who was going in the same direction tried to pedal in front of him and then pass in front of him into Jackson avenue.

Martin pedalled faster and got a good distance in front of Slevin but in turning into Jackson avenue his rear wheel caught in the car tracks and the other wheel slipped in the mud. By this time Slevin was upon him and the momentum of the automobile was so great that it could not be stopped immediately. A collision resulted in which the bicycle was almost demolished and Martin sustained several bad cuts and bruises by being shoved along the roadbed for a short distance.

The ambulance was summoned and Martin was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where it was found that no bones were broken. Slevin was arrested by Borough Chief Weiss and at the hearing before Borough Recorder Charles M. Dolliver was held in $1,000 for his appearance for trial Friday. Bonds were furnished by David Carney.

BIG CROWD WITNESSES DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS

Aside from the golfing and tennis events at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday, there was an attractive program of music and fireworks, making the whole affair the most successful in the history of the organization. Beginning at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Van Baar's Old Guard Band, of New York, gave a fine concert at the clubhouse which was enjoyed by hundreds of members and guests. The band also played in the evening for dancing which was continued until nearly midnight.

Superintendent John Hilton, assisted by a large and efficient corps of waitresses, was in charge of the luncheon and dinner araringements. Nearly 200 were served with dinners in the evening, the service and menu leaving nothing to be desired.

Soon after sunset the elaborate display of fireworks began and continued for several hours. Everyone agreed that it was the finest exhibition yet witnessed here. The committee, of which George S. Clay was chairman, arranged every detail perfectly and there was not a single hitch. More than 600 members and guests enjoyed the display from a point of vantage at the clubhouse, while thousands of people from the city and borough, as well as this vicinity thronged the grounds and roadway to witness the fireworks. The Arlington avenue trolley line did a record-day's business carrying patrons, while stages carried guests of the club from the trolley to the clubhouse free of charge.

The clubhouse was elaborately decorated in the national colors for the celebration and Superintendent Hilton carried out the general scheme in the interior decorations which was greatly admired by everyone.

Praise Work of Local Soloists.

The Bound Brook Chronicle of last week's issue in speaking of the work of Miss Ruth Harris and William Holmes, of this city, in the musical program at the Knights of Pythias' memorial service at Bound Brook, says: "Miss Orrel Wrench was unable to sing in the quartet, because of an attack of laryngitis, and at the last moment Miss Harris was secured, and her extremely sweet soprano voice was admired by all within the sound of it. The solo by William Holmes cannot be passed by without favorable comment. Mr. Holmes possesses a deep bass voice, and on this occasion it was under simply perfect control and a pleasure to listen to him."

MRS. C. F. ABBOTT DEAD

Survives Her Husband, Former School Commissioner, But One Month.

AFTER A LINGERING ILLNESS.

Prominent in Crescent Ave. Church Work—Leaves Four Children— Funeral Services Were Held Today

Mrs. Charles F. Abbott, aged 63 years, died Saturday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James R. Blake, 325 Franklin place, following a long illness. She survived her husband just four weeks, Mr. Abbott passing away a month ago at the Berkeley Hotel, Fifth avenue, New York, after a short illness. Mrs. Abbott had been making her home with her daughter here since March. Although she had been seriously ill a long time, her death was quite sudden.

Mrs. Abbott was born at Gray, N. Y., in 1847, and with her husband removed to this city twenty-nine years ago. Excepting for the intervals of time that she was away from Plainfield, this city was her home almost continuously during that time. She was a woman of rare Christian qualities and beloved by a large circle of friends. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and actively associated with all its many interests, being a regular attendant at services until ill health prevented.

Mrs. Abbott is survived by a daughter, Mrs. James R. Blake, of this city, and three sons, C. Westley Abbott, of Paterson; Gordon W. Abbott, who has been making his home with the family, and Robert Abbott, of Bridgeport, Conn.

The funeral services were held at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon from the home of Mrs. Blake on Franklin place, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, officiating. The interment was in Hillside cemetery, where Mr. Abbott was buried a month ago.

DAILY PRESS BULLETIN SERVICE IN THE CITY

Through the excellent wire service furnished by the Postal Telegraph Company, the Daily Press gave the returns of the prize fight at Reno, Nevada, yesterday afternoon, ahead of all others receiving special service. Nearly a thousand people gathered in front of The Daily Press office read the returns by rounds as they were displayed on the big bulletin board in front of this office.

The chief operator gave her personal attention to the service and as a result it was thorough and prompt.

Although the interest was at a fever point, the crowd was most orderly. As each round was reported in detail, the supporters of Jeffries and Johnson cheered lustily as their favorite showed his fighting ability. As the result of the battle shows, the Jeffries contingent, however, had little opportunity to give their throats exercise.

There were but two arrests for disorderly conduct occasioned by the result of the fight. Robert Skinner, colored, attempted to make a disturbance in a bar room and was knocked down by a white man. Skinner was given a suspended sentence in court this morning. Richard Norwood, colored, about the same time, was placed under arrest by Sergeant Overbaugh, when he declined to be quiet and to move on. Like Skinner, he received a lecture and a suspended sentence from the court.

Baptism at Grace M. E.

Infant baptism was a part of the service at the Grace M. E. church Sunday morning. Five infants were baptised by the Rev. Orra M. Shoop, and one member was taken in by letter. The infants baptised are: William Smalley Schuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Schuck; Richard Henry LeMatty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles LeMatty; Elizabeth Livzey Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore; Merriam Neier, and Carleton Winteroth Neier, children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett Neier. Seber L. Bronnen was taken in by letter.

Wandered from the 'Plains.

An ideal day and one of the biggest crowds that has invaded the town in years made the Fourth of July celebration at Scotch Plains, yesterday one of the most successful affairs the old town has ever held. From that time on, until this morning at 1.30, when the dance ended, which marked the closing of the celebration, the festivities continued. At 9 a. m., Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. The Juniors then marched back to their lodge room.

Scott, of Plainfield, won. The one hundred yard dash for boys was won by Edward Hatfield. Ernest Wahl won the 50-yard dash. At 12 o'clock the greased porker was turned loose and gave the crowd one of the most exciting eevnts of the day. James Corrona finally got a grip on the hind leg and the pig's ras was run. After dinner the married men and single men played their much-talked-of game, the single men winning the contest after a hard struggle by the score of 16 to 10. The events on the program were many featured, including aquatic races of all kinds and field events as well. A band located in Vail's grove furnished music all day long. In the evening there was a display of fireworks. The committee that arranged the affair was composed of: C. I. Rogers, C. E. Drake, Rene Von Minden, W. Van Nuis, A. M. Johnson.

At South Plainfield the celebration there did not get started until well along in the afternoon. Here the events included field sports and at night a firework's display. Dancing was also enjoyed under covered pavilion.

At Dunellen a carnival was held under the auspices of William C. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. in the field beyond Taylor's hotel. A merry go round, a band and similar carnival attractions furnished the amusement for a large number of people who visited the borough.

Miss Clarissa Lissignola, of East Front street, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital on Sunday suffering from typhoid fever. She planned to leave today for Belmar, where she expected to spend her vacation.

WANTED TO ADMINISTER JUSTICE WITH SHOT GUN

For an alleged attempt to take the law into his own hands by means of a shot gun, Michael Kennedy and an accomplice, Patrick Donohue, were held in $250 bonds to keep the peace when arraigned this morning before Justice Snape. Kennedy was disappointed with the attitude of Charles Drake and William Goff, who, it is alleged, have been harboring his wife at Drake's home over the second mountain and became dissatisfied with the slowness of the courts in pushing the case. Accordingly, under the influence of drink, it is alleged, he decided to punish Drake on his account, and in his testimony this morning said that he got Donohue to go with him.

They mistook the home of a neighbor of Drake's for Drake's house and fired two charges from the doubled barrelled shot gun. The borough police were summoned and both were arrested. In court this morning William G. DeMeza made a plea for Kennedy, his client, that the latter was not responsible for what he did under the influence of drink. After a severe censure by the court and by Mayor Smalley, Kennedy was released under $250 bonds to keep the peace. The bonds were furnished by Mayor Smalley. Donohue was held under similar bonds; and William G. DeMeza stood as his bondsman.

SAFE AND SANE 4TH PROVES A SUCCESS

The safe and sane Fourth of July ordinance was given its first trial in Plainfield yesterday and the experiment was a marked success. There were few violations and fewer still arrests. All day long Mayor Fisk and Chief of Police Kiely rode about the city in an automobile to see that the law was being respected. All told about a dozen pistols were taken away from youths celebrating the fourth and in other instances those who were using prohibited fireworks were warned to cease. In each case the name of the dealer from whom the goods were purchased was ascertained. Acting on the information obtained, Chief Kiely stationed policemen near the stores of dealers and the officers warned prospective purchasers that while they could buy the goods they could not discharge them within the city limits.

Mayor Fisk today expressed himself as highly pleased over the safe and sane ordinance experiment. He stated that he much regretted that the ordinance did not prohibit the sale of the fireworks which could not be used in the city. It is his purpose to work for an amendment to the ordinance in order to punish those who sell prohibited fireworks.

In the police court this morning, Andrew Mango, who pleaded guilty to throwing a lighted giant firecracker from a trolley car on West Front street, was sentenced by Judge Runyon to pay a fine of $5 or suffer 20 days imprisonment in the county jail. He paid the fine.

The arrest was made by Special Officer Daily. John Diano and Harry Lewis arrested for discharging firecrackers in the street, pleaded guilty and were given a lecture and a suspended sentence.

Y. M. H. A. HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC AT RIVERSIDE RETREAT.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association held its annual picnic for the benefit of the Hebrew School, at Riverside Retreat, along the banks of the Passaic river, yesterday. The party was comprised of about eighty-five relatives and friends of the children, three stages being engaged to make the trip. During the day there was a baseball game between a nine composed of Y. M. H. A. members and a picked team. The former won by a score of 4 to 2.

The party enjoyed boating, canoeing and dancing, music being furnished by Squires' Orchestra, of this city. At noon all enjoyed a fine spread, there being an abundance of goo dthings. The party reached home about 8:30 o'clock last night.

Bicycle Racer Injured.

J. R. Pike, of Rahway, who took part in the cycle races at that place yesterday afternoon, had a bad spill on one of his rounds, and received several bad cuts, lacerations and contused wounds about the head and body. He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was treated in the clinic by Dr. N. H. Currie. He was able to leave the hospital afterward and returned home.

DIXON'S SORRY FOURTH

Dewey Park Man in the Hospital with Gash in His Forehead.

TELLS DISCONCERTED STORY.

Says He Was Waylaid, Beaten and Robbed—Prosecutor Hunts for Dutch Ides' Pal as His Assailant.

Clement Dixon, white, a resident of Dewey Park, celebrated Independence Day in glorious fashion, and concluded his festivities by landing in Muhlenberg Hospital with a gash in his forehead and other slight injuries. It required three stitches to close the wound in the forehead.

Dixon told a disconnected story at the hospital. He said that during the day he had laid a bet on the Johnson-Jeffries prize fight, picking the negro to win. While on his way home with the money he is alleged to have won, he says that an unknown man held him up, struck him and took all his money. He was not sure as to the amount taken, however. Dixon will be at the hospital for a few days.

Dixon, it is said, got in a crap game near Dunellen, yesterday, with William Rose, who was a member of the old 'Dutch Ides" gang, and who was recently discharged from State Prison after serving two years, and Rose, it is alleged, made a murderous attack on Dixon. These facts were obtained from the office of the prosecutor at New Brunswick and it was said that Middlesex county detectives are now in search of Rose.

New Market residents say that the trouble in which Dixon was a participant took place on a public street in New Market; that Dixon was about looking for trouble and got it.

At Muhlenberg Hospital it was stated today that Dixon was not seriously injured and that he would probably leave the hospital within a few days.

Leon Todd, aged 13 years, son of Fred Todd, of Watchung avenue, was celebrating with a blank cartridge pistol in the vicinity of the West End avenue bridge, yesterday afternoon, when a charge from a cartridge entered his hand. He stopped at the home of Frederick S. Thompson, on West End avenue, where he received first aid to the injured. The police patrol was then summoned and the lad was removed to Dr. C. B. Lufburrow's office, where he was treated. He afterward returned home.

So far as reported but two accidents as a result of celebrating the Fourth were treated at the hospital. One was James McDonald, of New Market. He was shooting off cannon crackers Saturday night, when one went off in his hand, lacerating the fingers and palm. He was treated and sent home. The other case was that of William Trayno, aged 10 years, of Scotch Plains, in whose hand a blank cartridge pistol went off. The injury was slight and after treatment was sent home.

The list of victims of Fourth of July accidents this year is considerably shorter than that of previous years. No very serious cases were reported and of the minor accidents very few required the services of a physician. If this be a criterion of success, the Fourth of July ordinance has proved itself in its first year of trial to be very efficient.

The first accident occurred Saturday evening when a giant firecracker exploded in the hands of James McDonald, of New Market. He held the lighted cracker in his hand just previous to tossing it into the air to explode there, when it went off prematurely. As a result his right hand was badly lacerated and his face was burned. Fearing tetanus his physician ordered him to be taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where his wounds were dressed.

$5 to Visit Father-in-Law.

Thomas Rowe was fined five dollars by Recorder Dolliver in the borough police court this morning for being drunk and resisting an officer Saturday night. He went to visit his father-in-law, Charles Hope, of Pearl street, and while there acted in a disorderly way. Marshall Keller was called to make the arrest and with Chief Marshall Weiss landed Rowe in the borough police headquarters after a tussle. Rowe lives on Fourth street, this city.

New Bass Singer.

Robert S. McAfee, of Oxford place, basso, will sing in the quartet choir of Trinity Reformed church, during July and August, taking the place of F. S. Cutter who will be away.

O. A. Moore, of Westervelt avenue, has returned from Blakeley, Pa.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Members of W. G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and other fraternal organizations, listened to a special patriotic sermon by Rev. Ernest Brown in the Presbyterian church last night. The other orders were Sons of America and Daughters of Liberty.

The baseball victory of the Dunellen club over the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Saturday was witnessed by a record crowd of fans. The locals are now champions for this section.

Local commuters who bought their July tickets early in June have had the excess charge of twenty-five cents returned to them.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Garretson and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Benward have returned from an automobile trip to Asbury Park.

James McDonald was the first Fourth of July victim. A giant cracker exploded in his hands.

An account of the Dunellen and New Market celebrations will be found in another column.

Every boat on the lake was in demand yesterday.

Mrs. Mary Squire is ill.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Only two accidents marred the day's sport yesterday. In the morning, John, the young son of William Trayno, shot himself in the hand with a blank cartridge pistol. Medical treatment was given at once and no serious results are anticipated. Marguerite Jahn was shot in the arm with a firecracker by an Italian on the picnic grounds at noon. The Italian was one of the reckless kind and his carelessness landed him in the lock-up for the balance of the day. Judge Clark discharged him with a reprimand at 7 o'clock.

Chief Meyer, of the fire department, was ready for emergency calls yesterday. A horse was kept hitched to the Chemical Engine all day. Fortunately there was no alarm, but the precaution taken shows the chief was not to be caught napping.

The date set for the big Union Excursion has been set for July 19th. Asbury Park will be the destination and all the Sunday school scholars are anxiously awaiting the day.

The locals put up a fast game at Crescent oval yesterday afternoon. The contest went to Plainfield after a 13 inning contest, the score being 4 to 3, in favor of Plainfield.

The cake sale held by the Ladies' Circle of the Baptist church Saturday afternoon on the lawns at the home of the Misses Hayes in the borough was a success in every way.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Muir, of Newark, were the guests over the Fourth of Mrs. Muir's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Meyer, of Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Carrona, of Bridgeport, spent Sunday and the Fourth with Mr. Corrona's brother, M. A. Carrona, of Stanbury avenue.

Dunellen Wins Easily.

Dunellen defeated the Battleship Connecticut team by the overwhelming score of 24 to 4 yesterday afternoon. The Dunellenites had things their own way throughout the game and played with their opponents as a cat would play with a mouse. At no stage of the game were they hard pressed as they completely outclassed their opponents. In the same way they defeated the Westfield club team in the morning game.

Funeral of Alfred C. Harral.

The funeral services of Alfred C. Harral were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the late home on Lafayette place, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, officiated at the service. The burial was in Hillside Cemetery, and the pallbearers were Charles Timpson, Theodore Gray, Augustus Runyon and George Dufford.

DUNELLEN CONQUERS LOCAL Y.M.C.A. 14 TO 6

Dunellen sprang a surprise Saturday when it defeated the local Y. M. C. A. team at Dunellen by the score of 14 to 6. The excessive heat seemed to have a depressing effect on the players and as a result the game was slow and was marked by errors. Slocum pitched but two innings for the Y. M. C. A. when his arm went back on him. The game was practically won by Dunellen in the third inning when a big lead of six runs was tallied. On the whole Dunellen played the better game, and Montross pitched a good game. The score and summaries follow:

The links of the Cranford Golf Club have been crowded with players the past week. On Saturday sixteen golfers qualified out of a field of forty-five for the President's cup. J. H. Greene, Jr., of this city, won a small silver mounted stein in the Class B competition, defeating Stewart Wrenn, 3 up and 2 to play. F. B. Riley plays with Mr. Greene on Saturday. Yesterday the golfing enthusiasts were out in force. The event was a medal play handicap. In the evening there was a fine display of fireworks, witnessed by a large attendance of members and friends.

Miss Edith Kiple and George Conover, of Philadelphia, spent the week-end with Harry S. Kartsher, of 316 Grant avenue.

GOD'S PROTECTION NEEDED BY AMERICA

The first of the series of union services to be held during July and August by the First M. E., First Baptist, First Presbyterian and Trinity Reformed churches took place Sunday night at Trinity Reformed church. Considering the excessive warm spell the attendance was fair and all enjoyed the excellent sermon by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, who took for his theme, "The Mountains of God." During the service, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss offered prayer; Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson read the Scriptures and Rev. J. Y. Broek announced the hymns.

Dr. Herring spoke of the mountainous nature of Palestine and the lesson the Bible teaches concerning them. Among other things, he said, "In the 48th Psalm, the psalmist has a message for posterity. He tells us to walk about Zion, go round about her, count well her towers and mark well her bullwarks." The great Assyrian army had besieged the city and had failed for this reason that God had protected the city which had been faithful to Him.

What is there in this psalm for our nation? We think we are a great people because of past successes, and that nothing can undo us. We are the greatest people on earth but we are a great people because the God of our Fathers has been blessing us.

There are conditions in this country today which indicate that we are forgetting Him and His laws but we need His power more than anything else. Did you ever think what it might mean to us if for any reason war should arise between us and Japan with her one million trained fighting men and other millions in reserve, while we have just 65,000 soldiers. Let us sing the old national anthem that has the proper ring to it:

'Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light
PROTECT US BY THY MIGHT GREAT GOD OUR KING.'

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE AT EAST END CHURCH

The first anniversary services were held at the Netherwood Reformed church on Sunday, marking the completion of the first year of this energetic religious body of worshippers in their church, of which Rev. Royal A. Stout is the pastor. Mr. Stout preached both morning and evening. At the first service he referred in an interesting way to the success of the church during its first year and hoping for greater things in the future. He congratulated the members for what they had accomplished. In the evening he outlined plans for the coming year.

In connection with the morning service, John Johnson, treasurer, presented a statistical report for the past year. This showed receipts from collections to be $438.66; from donations, $251.58, making a total of $684.24. The total disbursements were $522.95, leaving a balance of $61.29. With $72.25 in bills payable, there was a deficit of $11.96, but this amount was raised on Sunday so that the new year is started free and clear of debt.

It was planned to raise $1,000 for the coming year, and it was also announced that the Board of Domestic Missions would contribute $800 toward the salary of the pastor, raising the amount $300 over last year, when Mr. Stout was not personally on the field all the time.

Ebel and Terry Differed Over Cow.

The hearing of Carl Ebel, of Grove street, arrested on the complaint of Alonzo Terry for disorderly conduct yesterday, will be held Friday morning in borough police headquarters. Ebel and Terry got into an argument over a cow, words and blows followed and as a result a warrant was sworn out for Ebel's arrest. S. S. Swackhamer is the counsel representing Ebel and William G. DeMeza has been engaged to represent Terry.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Slater, Jr., of Allentown, Pa., spent the Fourth with Mr. Slater's mother, Mrs. Ida Slater, of Jackson avenue, the borough.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

The Mt. Olive Baptist church deplores that a New York morning paper, of this date, has lent its columns to a slander not only on the 4,000 or more colored residents, but on the fair name of our well governed, law-abiding and enlightened community by publishing a tissue of lies. The paper in question contains a long account of an alleged race riot here over the result of the prize fight in Nevada stating that sixty of our race were arrested and that seventy-five policemen with drawn night sticks charged on the mob. The only foundation for the malicious article appears by the police court records to be that one negro was arrested for causing a disturbance in a bar room, and that another was arrested for refusing to move on when ordered to do so by an officer of the law who was detailed to keep traffic open through an orderly crowd watching the returns from the fight in front of The Daily Press office. That there was no semblance of disorder, other than this, every man in our city knows. Our city has been slandered and we wish to go on record as censuring the paper for publishing such an outrageous lie.

M. W. VAUGHAN,
Pastor Mt. Olive Baptist Church.
WM. A. KLINE,
Church Clerk.

Great Sketch at Proctor's.

"The Tie That Binds," is the title of a fine sketch at Proctor's theatre, presented by Isabelle Evesson & Co. There is a strong plot dealing with the cruelty of divorce and teaches a great lesson. The Gregsons present a good singing and dancing act; Ross & Ross, singing, dancing and talking comedians are funny and Iva Donnette and "Pick" an old colored mammy and her canine picaninny, are clever. Proctor's theatre is the coolest place in town.

JEFF KNOCKED OUT IN FIFTEENTH ROUND

Reno, Nev., July 5.—Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, turned over the sporting world yesterday. He knocked out James J. Jeffries in the fifteenth round.

It was sudden, this defeating of a hitherto unbeaten man. It came swiftly, like the dropping of some bolt that wrecks a 10,000-horsepower dynamo.

Hardly had the bell sounded when the lightning movement of the negro's right arm in an uppercut ended in a thud. The tremendous head of the white fighting man swung back as the glove landed on his jaw just to the right of the mid-chin. His torso relaxed, his knees trembled, then crooked. Down he went.

Sixteen thousand persons leaped to their feet, and the great dish of the arena was so still that those sitting next to the ring could hear the click of the black champion's teeth as he snapped his jaw shut and stood waiting over the fallen fighter.

The timekeeper had counted nine, Jeffries, his head swinging from side to side on his thick neck, struggled to his knees—to his feet. Hardly ha dhe straightened when two terrific blows shot over his feebly-rising guard. A right and left upper cut to the chin followed. Down the white man tumbled. This time his body was outside the ropes and his legs were crooked over the white strands. He sat hunched in this spot, eyes closed, hands drooping over knees.

The spell was broken. The arena roared.

Rickard, the referee, was rattled. He stood by the side of the beaten pugilist counting in a dazed sort of way. Nobody watched him. Everybody had his eyes on Jeffries.

In the uproar Timekeeper Harting counted Jeffries out. Nobody heard him. Abe Attell ran over from Jeffries' corner and lifted up the ropes, while the fighter clambered blindly through.

The man stood, half crouched, knowing nothing. Jim Corbett yelled something at him. The words were unheard.

Then came the black man, not knowing that his antagonist was counted out. He came lightly, stepping swiftly like a cat stalking. He jumped to the side of the bloodied, half-conscious man and with his arms jerking back and forth with the thrust of an engine's piston, he pounded and pounded the drooping head of the former champion.

Uppercuts, each one of them. First with the left, and then with the right, Johnson swung back the lolling head. Again the tremendous bulk of the "Big White Man" tottered.

Sam Berger, Jeffries' manager, jumped into the ring and rushed to Jeffries' side. Rickard understood and he waved the tigerish Johnson back to his corner. At the same time he held up his hand andmotioned toward the black, retreating. That was the end. The fight was won.

COURT SENDS TO JAIL A BRUTAL HUSBAND.

Weakened by a nine-hour nose bleed, Mrs. Thomas Kane, of Duer street, appeared in the borough police court this morning to testify against her husband who savagely beat her last night. Kane admitted in his testimony that he had laid in wait for his wife behind the grape arbor and had then sprung on her, giving her a hard blow in the face which caused her nose to bleed until 4 o'clock this morning. The police were called and Marshal Culver arrested the man.

For the trial this morning the Charity Organization Society, represented by Miss Holly, which has been watching over Mrs. Kane for three years, had engaged S. S. Swackhamer to appear against Kane. The result of the matter was that Kane got the most severe penalty the court could inflict, 20 days in the county jail and a fine of seven dollars. Kane is a machinist at the Scott Printing Press works, and when sober treats his wife as he should. He has a mania for drink, it is alleged, however, and when under its influence beats his wife. This has happened so many times, and leniency has been shown Kane so repeatedly by the court that after a severe heart to heart talk by Mayor Smalley during which Kane winced repeatedly the maximum penalty was imposed.

Cigarettes Cause Two Fires.

Two small fires together doing a damage of about $15 called out the fire department last evening. A cigarette, so far as is known, caused both. The awning in front of the Kensington hotel caught fire at 7:28 o'clock, and was smothered out by one of the firemen. At 8:25 o'clock the department had a run to Crescent Oval where the grandstand was on fire, caused by a cigarette butt smouldering at the foot of one of the props. The fire was put out by an extinguisher.

K. M. Culp, proprietor of Grace Poultry Farm, has been ill for several days with a bad attack of quinsey sore throat.

INDEPENDENCE DAY AT THE PARK CLUB.

Independence Day was celebrated in a quiet and enjoyable manner by the members and friends of the Park Club. Instead of the usual display of fireworks in the evening, the club planned to have a concert by Muller's Orchestra, followed by dancing, and a large number of people participated in the festivities of the occasion. The weather was ideal for the affair, it being possible for the members and their guests to dance on the pavilion, adjoining the clubhouse.

The clubhouse was appropriately decorated for the celebration, the national colors being prominent everywhere. In addition to the fine music and dancing, the house committee arranged for the serving of refreshments, an added pleasure, and altogether the day was one of the best in the history of the club.

Nearly Lost Sight of Eye.

Dudley S. Miller, the druggist, while with his family visiting his brother-in-law, Charles VanWinkle, of West Fourth street, yesterday, suffered a painful injury to the eye in a peculiar way. He, with Mr. VanWinkle, was interested in a toy aeroplane, and while the minature machinery was in operation, a wing of the flying ship struck him in the eye. He narrowly escaped losing the sight. Today the eye and flesh about it is discolored and very sore.

For Benefit of New Convent.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Flatley, of West Fifth street, gave a euchre party at their home, Saturday night for the benefit of the new convent of St. Mary's church parish. There were forty guests. Miss Brennon received first honors, Miss Byron second, for the women, while Frank Macklone and Martin Regan received first and second honors for the men.

SIX FRATERNAL ORDERS HEAR PATRIOTIC SERMON

Members of Plainfield, Franklin, Benevolent and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., and of Old Glory, Daughters of Liberty and Martha Washington, Daughters of America, listened to an able sermon by Rev. Orra J. Shoop in the Grace M. E. church Sunday night. Each council came to the church in a body, and, for the occasion the church was attractively decorated.

"The Supreme Act," was the subject of the sermon and the text was taken from Matthew xi, 29, "Learn of Me." "Life needs for its highest development a most encouraging environment," he said. "Of the influence of environment he pointed out particularly the need of a congenial physical environment, if clean and well developed bodies are to obtain; the need of intellectual and aesthetic environment if minds are to be cultivated and disciplined, and life enriched by the beautiful; and the need of moral and spiritual environment if the religious nature of man is to be given a proper unfolding and development.

Then Rev. Mr. Shoop showed the influential part the Junior Order of United American Mechanics have played in bringing about most encouraging conditions. Chief among these he mentioned the emphasis in the love for our country and her institutions; the position taken by the order in standing as the protector of our public school system from all sectarian influences; and the demand for the reading of the Bible in the public schools.

The sermon was direct and to the point and was attentively listened to by the large number of fraternity men and women who attended despite the hot weather. At the conclusion of the service many of the congregation remained to shake hands with Rev. Mr. Shoop, who is himself a Junior.

CHILDREN CHEER WHEN PLAYGROUNDS ARE OPENED

The two city playgrounds were opened at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The opening was wholly informal. At the yards of the Bryant and Stillman Schools the two supervisors, Miss Harriet Moe and Miss Mary Childs, greeted the small army of youngsters who came to visit the playgrounds for the first time. No sooner had the youngsters been greeted than they began to play. When the gates were thrown open the large crowd of children gave a lusty cheer. Then they made for the pieces of apparatus. As soon as possible the play was organized. This delighted the children. Peals of laughter could be heard almost constantly, and each child individually seemed to be having the time of his life.

Many older children and parents visited the opening and the universal verdict was: 'Why did Plainfield delay so long in having them?" If the opening is any postive prophecy of what may be expected, Plainfield's playgrounds are great successes. Both playgrounds will be open every week day for the remainder of the summer from 9:30 to 12 o'clock, and from 2 to 6 o'clock.

WHAT "IN GOD WE TRUST" ON OUR COINS SIGNIFIES.

An interesting talk on the motto "In God We Trust" on our coins by Rev. Charles S. Kemble was a feature of the patriotic service held Sunday evening at the Monroe Avenue church.

"Before Roosevelt took the motto off the coins," said Dr. Kemble, "it was there by virture of no authority. When the people rose up almost unanimously against the removal and demanded its use again, it resulted in its being put on by action of Congress. Thus it was tangibly shown that the underlying note of our nation is Christian. The motto was put on the coins by virtue of the wishes of the people by our governing body. Now it has much significance; now it means that the keynote of our people is Christianity.

The church was tastefully decorated in red, white and blue bunting. A large flag suspended from a pole on the platform and so arranged as to give the effect of being blown by the wind, added much to the effectiveness of the decorations.

Supt. Walter McGee Returns.

Supterintendent Walter McGee, of the Monroe Avenues Sunday school, who has been ill with typhoid fever for some time past, attended the session yesterday for the first time since his illness. The Rev. Mr. Kemble made a short address in view of this and Mr. McGee responded with a few words. The session of the Sunday school was patriotic in nature. "Have you ever seen the flag used for ignoble purposes?" asked Dr. Kemble. The children said that they had and agreed that such usages were heinous. "It is just as reprehensible," said Dr. Kemble, "to use the name of God profanely."

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER
COPYRIGHT 1906 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

He crouched until he was only a part of the shadows of the ground and following his example Nathaniel slipped between two of the knolls. A few yards away the sound of the voices ceased and there was a hesitancy in the soft tread of the approaching steps. Slowly, and now in awesome silence, two figures came down the path and when they reached a point opposite the hummocks Nathaniel could see that they turned their faces toward them and that for a brief space there was something of terror in the gleam he caught of their eyes. In a moment they had passed. Then he heard them running.

"They saw not!" Captain Plum exclaimed.

Obadiah hopped to his feet and rubbed his hands with great glee. "What a temptation, Nat!" he whispered. "What a temptation to frighten them out of their wits! No, they didn't see us, Nat—they didn't see us. The girls are always frightened when they pass these graves. Some day—"

"Graves!" almost shouted the master of the Typhoon. "Graves—and we sitting on 'em!"

"That's all right, Nat—that's all right. They're my graves, so we're welcome to sit on them. I often come here and sit for hours at a time. They like to have me, especially little Jean—the middle one. Perhaps I'll tell you about Jean before you go away."

If Captain Plum had been watching him he would have seen that soft mysterious light again shining in the old councilor's eyes. But now Nathaniel stood erect, his nostrils sniffing the air, catching once more the sweet scent of lilac. He hurried out into the opening, with the old man close behind him, and peered down into the starlit gloom into which the two girls had disappeared. The lovely face that had appeared to him for an instant at Obadiah's cabin began to haunt him. He was sure now that his sudden appearance had not been the only cause of its terror, and he felt that he should have called out to her or followed until he had overtaken her. He could easily have excused his boldness, even if the councilor had been watching him from the cabin door. He was certain that she had passed very near to him again and that the fright which Obadiah had attempted to explain was not because of the graves. He swung about upon his companion, determined to ask for an explanation. The latter seemed to divine his thought.

"Don't let a little scent of lilac disturb you so, young man," he said with singular coldness. "It may cause you great unpleasantness." He went ahead and Nathaniel followed him, assured that the old man's words and the way in which he had spoken them no longer left a doubt as to the identity of his night visitor. She was one of the councilor's wives, so he thought, and his own interest in her was beginning to have an irritating effect. In other words Obadiah was becoming jealous.

For some time there was silence between the two. Obadiah Price now walked with extreme slowness and along paths which seemed to bring him no nearer to the town below. Nathaniel could see that he was absorbed in thoughts of his own, and held his peace. Was it possible that he had spoiled his chances with the councilor because of a pretty face and a bunch of lilacs? The thought tickled Captain Plum despite the delicacy of his situation and he broke into an involuntary laugh. The laugh brought Obadiah to a halt as suddenly as though some one had thrust a bayonet against his breast.

"Nat, you've got good red blood in you," he cried, whirling about. "D'ye suppose you can hate as well as love?"

"Lord deliver us!" exclaimed the astonished Captain Plum. "Hate—love—what the—"

"Yes, hate," repeated the old man with fierce emphasis, so close that his breath struck Nathaniel's face. "You can love a pretty face—and you can hate. I know you can. If you couldn't I would send you back to your sloop with the package tonight. But as it is I am going to relieve you of your oath. Yes, Nat, I give you back your oath—for a time."

Nathaniel stepped a pace back and put his hands on his pockets as if to protect the gold there.

"You mean that you want to call off our bargain?" he asked.

The councilor rubbed his hands until the friction of them sent a shiver up Nathaniel's back. "Not that, Nat—O, no, not that! The bargain is good. The gold is yours. You must deliver the package. But you need not do it immediately. Understand? I am lonely back there in my shack. I want company. You must stay with me a week. Eh? Lilacs and pretty faces, Nat! Ho, ho!—You will stay a week, won't you, Nat?"

He spoke so rapidly and his face underwent so many changes, now betraying the keenest excitement, now wrinkled in an ogreish, bantering grin, now almost pleading in its earnestness, that Nathaniel knew not what to make of him. He looked into the beady eyes, sparkling with passion, and the cat-like glitter of them set his blood tingling. What strange adventure was this old man dragging him into? What were the motives, the reasoning, the plot that lay behind this mysterious creature's apparent faith in him? He tried to answer these things in the passing of a moment before he replied. The councilor saw his hesitancy and smiled.

"I will show you many things of interest, Nat," he said. "I will show you just one tonight. Then you will make up your mind, eh? You need not tell me until then."

He took the lead again and this time struck straight down for the town. They passed a number of houses built of logs and Nathaniel caught narrow gleams of light from between close-drawn curtains. In one of these houses he heard the crying of children, and with a return of his grisly humor Obadiah Price prodded him in the ribs and said:

Three Dahlias in One.

Henry Frazee, of Terrill road and East Second street, a well known veteran of the Civil War, is today exhibiting with a great deal of pleasure a dahlia of peculiar formation. The flower or flowers, consisting of three, have grown together on three stems joined in one stem. They are greatly admired by all who have seen them.

PARK GOLF CLUB'S DAY

W. V. Byard Captures the Summer Cup, U. G. Tingley Being Second.

SOME OTHER COMPETITIONS.

Miss Ethel Millar and Rev. C. L. Goodrich Win in the Approaching and Putting Contest.

A full list of events on the golf course, together with social features yesterday attracted a large number of members and guests to the Park Golf Club. The conditions were ideal for the Independence Day celebration and not a thing occurred to mar the pleasures of those at the club. In the afternoon the women members served tea at the clubhouse and enjoyed a social time.

In the golfing competitions, the program marked the final play for the Summer cup. This was won by W. V. Byard with a total of 22½ points and U. G. Tingley finished second with 18½ points. It was a great day for Mr. Byard for he also won the bogey handicap, being 2 down to bogey and the driving contest with an average of 200 yards. Miss Lydie Loizeaux won the driving competition for the women players, her average being 145 yards.

There was a large field of competitors in the approaching and putting contest and many tie scores resulted. After considerable excitement, Miss Ethel Millar and Rev. C. L. Goodrich were the winners with a score of 9.

These scores were returned for the President's, golf club and Summer cups:

W. V. Byard, 96, 23-73; U. G. Tingley, 100, 27-73; Nelson A. Miller, 107, 30-77; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 101, 23-78; A. M. Morrell, 108, 30-78; W. R. Faber, 101, 22-79; W. E. Lough, 105, 24-81; R. B. Titsworth, 100, 19-81.

More than ordinary interest was shown in the driving competition, which was won by Henry D. Hibbard with an average of 496 1-3 yards for three drives. R. G. Morse was second with 380 and H. F. Fox third with 378 2-3. The driving was against a strong headwind and several times the ball was forced out of bounds. This was also true in the approaching and putting contest. The competitors had great difficulty in driving the ball true owing to the wind. William T. Glenney was the winner with a score of 9, a remarkably good figure considering the conditions. The distance was from the 18th tee to the 18th green.

W. V. Byard won the Spring championship at the Park Golf Club Saturday, defeating R. B. Titsworth, 6 up and 5 to play in the final round. It was a close and exciting match. These scores were returned for the President's, golf club and Summer cups:

U. G. Tingley, 96, 26-68; W. V. Byard, 94, 24-70; W. R. Faber, 96, 22-74; A. M. Morrell, 108, 30-78; Miss Lydie Loizeaux 102, 23-79; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 107, 23-84; Alexander Gilbert, 111, 26-85.

The leading scores for the Ladies' Summer cup, nine holes:

Miss Harriet R. Shreve, 58, 16-42; Miss Grace A. TenEyck, 61, 16-45; Miss Bess R. Ten Eyck, 78, 30-48; Miss Lydie Loizeaux, 53, 3-50.

IN 13 INNING GAME PLAINFIELD WINS 4 TO 3

In a fast thirteen inning game Plainfield defeated the Scoten Plains team on Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon before a fairly large-sized crowd of rooters who made up in enthusiasm for anything they might have lacked in numbers.

The 'Plains boys took the lead with two runs in the second inning and Plainfield answered in the fifth with three runs. In the next session Scotch Plains tied the score and for six more innings the score card did nothing but present goose eggs. In the thirteenth inning though, a long drive by Nelson brought in two runs—only one of which necessarily was counted. Boyd made the winning run and Emery followed close behind him; while Nelson's drive looked like a sure three-bagger.

The three runs scored by Plainfield in the sixth inning were made by Nelson, McLaughlin and Schott, while the Alberts brothers and Baldwin scored the tallies for the Scotch Plains men. A two-base hit by Joe Alberts brought in his brother; and Vanderbilt's pop brought in Joe Alberts in the second inning. In the sixth a passed ball let in Baldwin.

William Deegan twirled for the 'Plains boys but became rattled at times. He was caught by Henry Alberts. McLaughlin and Nelson was the battery for Plainfield. The score by innings:

AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

A Band Concert, Dance and Other Events Are Enjoyed by Hundreds of the Members.

The Independence Day celebration at the Plainfield Country Club was the biggest thing of its kind in the history of the club, throughout the whole day and evening the grounds and clubhouse were thronged with members and friends. The welcome change in the weather was hailed with delight by all and was enjoyed to the limit. There were many golfing events all day on the course and in the afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock Van Baar's Old Guard Band, of New York gave a concert, followed in the evening by a dance, and the most elaborate display of fireworks witnessed here in many years.

Thousands of people from this city and surrounding towns enjoyed the gorgeous display of pyrotechnics. The display began immediately after dark and continued until nearly 10 o'clock.

BY 2 TO 1 SCORE Y. M. C. A. DEFEATS SOMERVILLE.

Y. M. C. A. defeated Somerville 2 to 1 in a slow game yesterday afternoon. Despite the score the locals had the advantage throughout. After there were two outs Fritts singled, Adams and Miller walked in the fourth inning, and on a double steal, while the infielders were trying to catch Adams out at second, Fritts stole home. In the eighth, Slocum got to first on an error, went to second on Peacock's sacrifice, got to third on Hand's infield shoot and edged in home while Hand was getting to first. Miller featured with a two-base hit. Both teams had six men left on bases. Henderson scored the only tally for the Somerville aggregation.

For the locals Miller pitched well striking out 12 men to Henderson's nine. Both teams made five hits and both scored two errors. The batteries were: Y. M. C. A., Miller and Hand; Somerville, Henderson and Halstead. The score by innings:

Y. M. C. A.	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	—	2

SAILORS LOSE TO LOCALS IN SLOW 6 TO 0 GAME.

Plainfield shut out the boys from the Battleship Connecticut in a rather slow game on Crescent oval yesterday morning by the score of 6 to 0. Jack Martin played second bag for the locals and Carlstrom at short stop played an especially creditable game as did also Barnes and Boyd. Six hits were made by Plainfield and four by the sailors. Jim Emery pitched for the locals and Walter Nelson caught him in good style, while the battery for the sailors was Purcell and Nolan. The score by innings:

CITY PLAYGROUNDS OPEN

About 150 Children Between Ages of Two and Ten Years Attend.

ORGANIZED GAMES A FEATURE.

Joseph W. Gavett, Herbert E. Parker and Mrs. S. H. Voorhees, Playground Promoters, Enthusiastic Over its Success.

A convincing evidence of the popularity, the efficiency and the need of recreation places in this city was manifested to all who visited the Bryant and Franklin school yards yesterday afternoon when Plainfield's first two playgrounds were opened. If the success that met the first efforts of the commission yesterday may be taken as a prophecy, Plainfield will soon have to locate playgrounds in the schoolyards of the other schools of the city to reach many children who now cannot easily be reached.

All of the children, yesterday, had a good time; all took readily to the apparatus and all were eager to learn the "games," as the organized play is technically known. Some came to the playground starched and stiff with neatly tied hair ribbons, others came barefooted. Then, too, some colored children availed themselves of the fun that was to be had; and one distinctly noticeable fact was the spirit of wholesome fellowship with which all the children, hair-ribboned or barefooted, entered into the sport. All were there to have a good time; and all had a good time. Here and there some unfortunate youngster, a cripple, perhaps, with crutches beside him, looked mournfully on as his more fortunate companions played on the slides and teeters; but there was an opportunity even for such to have a god time, too.

At the Franklin yard, Mrs. Elory Bowers and Miss Mary Childs, the supervisor, taught the children some of the "games." These afforded a chance for all to take part, an opportunity for one to be singled out prominently every few minutes, and a frequent occasion for all to clap their hands and make a noise together. Thus in a subtle way was the child's interest approached from several wholesome standpoints. The group games unquestionably were the most interesting feature of the playgrounds.

Of the apparatus the sand bins and the slides were by far the most popular. The swings, too, were in constant demand; and the giant strides were looked at a trifle askance by the children though frequently used by the older boys.

At the Bryant school Miss Harriet Moe met with instant success with the children. She organized them so that each piece of apparatus had a "monitor," whose duty it was to see that all of the children playing on his particular piece of apparatus had a fair chance and a good time.

Most of the children who attended the playground were betwen the ages of two and eleven years. The average age was probably five or six. As between 89 and 100 visited the Bryant school and between 38 and 60 visited the Franklin school yard; between these ages—the age that the playgrounds are especially intended for—it may easily be sen how successful the first afternoon was. Drinking fountains will be installed shortly. At the Bryant yard water was furnished yesterday through the courtesy of Chief Kiely.

Joseph W. Gavett, Herbert Parker and Mrs. S. H. Voorhees, who has been one of the principal workers for playgrounds in this city, were enthusiastic over the success of the initial venture, yesterday.

The playgrounds will be open for the rest of the summer on week days from 9.30 o'clock to noon; and from 2 o'clock until 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Cause of the Trouble.

That the differences existing between Carl Ebel, of Grove street, and Alonzo Terry, who had Ebel arrested Monday for disorderly conduct, and whose case will come up in the borough court, Friday morning, is not the result of a dispute over a cow, as was reported, but arose from a war of words is the true state of matters. Ebel was shooting fireworks off early Monday morning near Terry's home, when the latter requested him to stop. The former it appears used insulting language in retort, for which Terry had him arrested.

OWNERS OF UNLICENSED DOGS FINED $1 EACH

Following up their recent activities in the same line, the borough police yesterday afternoon and evening rounded up the owners of six dogs, who had failed to comply with the ordinance requirements, in taking out licenses. Those arrester were George Howe, of 16 Stone street, Salvie Loccisano and Lillian Ammon, of 8 Howard street, Everett Marsh, of 217 Somerset street, Harry Barry, of 18 Howard street, and David L. Coleman, of 2255 Somerset street.

In the borough court this morning, the delinquent ones were each fined $1. This fine, however, was imposed upon the condition that they take out licenses for the dogs at once; the fines were immediately paid and the owners of the canines proceeded to take out the required licenses for their pets, the price of which was $2. This is the largest number of arrests made at one time by the borough officers, since the time expired for taking out licenses in accordance with the law, which was June 20th.

MAY PROHIBIT SALE OF FIREWORKS HERE

Just before the Common Council meeting adjourned last night, Mr. Mygatt offered a motion suggesting that the committees on laws and ordinances take up the fireworks ordinance for action at the August meeting, it being proposed to amend the ordinance to prohibit the sale of fireworks next year. Mr. Mygatt explained his reasons for this motion to be that he thought it wise to act on the matter now instead of waiting until just a few weeks before the next Fourth of July.

In a jocular vein, Mr. Clay moved that the matter be referred to the public affairs committee, of which Mr. Mygatt is chairman, but the latter said laughingly that there would be serious objection to such action.

While Mr. Mygatt's motion was not seconded, it is believed that the committee will take up the matter at an early date and frame a proposed ordinance as will meet with the approval of the members.

Mr. Buxton moved that the city clerk be requested to communicate with the landlord of the building with a view to having the main hallway lighted in the future. The hallway has not been lighted by the landlord for sometime, it is said, owing to some difference of opinion, and Mr. Buxton's motion will probably bring about the desired result.

DRIVING ASSOCIATION HONORS RETIRING SEC'Y

Thomas F. Quinn, who for the past three years has been the efficient secretary of the Plainfield Driving Association, was handsomely remembered at a meeting of the association last night, following his resignation as secretary. President Harry W. Evans on behalf of the members, presented Mr. Quinn with a gold fob, suitably inscribed. The face of the fob bears the heads of two horses as they pass under the wire. The gift was a great surprise to Mr. Quinn, but he showed his appreciation in a short speech.

The association decided to hold a matinee meet here on Saturday, July 23, and it was announced that a meet would be held at Westfield on Saturday, July 16. Prizes will be offered at both meets. Reports from the Fourth of July meet here showed that it was a success. All bills have been paid and there is a good balance on hand.

Young Woman Faints.

Miss Elizabeth Traynor, of New York, who has been stopping with a family named Fullerton on Tapping avenue, the borough, had a fainting spell at West Front street and Washington avenue, last night, while walking home. A nearby resident saw the woman fall and assisted her to the home of Richard Richmond on West Front street, near Washington avenue, where Dr. C. B. Lufburrow gave her temporary treatment. Later she was removed to her home in a carriage. Miss Traynor came to Plainfield for her health. She explained that while passing Grove street on Front just before she had a fainting spell, she narrowly escaped being hit with an automobile, and she was in a highly nervous condition.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Minor Matters Considered by the Common Council Last Night.

SOME PETITIONS RECEIVED.

Civil Engineer is Engaged to Revise the City Map—Patrolman Dunlap's Resignation is Accepted.

Patrolman Joseph Dunlap, who recently resigned from the police department and was re-appointed to his old position, again resigned at the July meeting of the Common Council; last night, the same to take effect at 7 o'clock, last night. He explained that the action was purely for personal reasons. The resignation, which was accepted, did not cause any public comment, although Mayor Fisk and some of the Councilmen seemed to be at a loss to understand Mr. Dunlap's action.

Following this, Mayor Fisk appointed Charles Wicht, formerly with the Clarkhurst Dairy, as a special policeman, his term to expire on January 1 next. Mr. Wicht was a resident of Harrison avenue, the borough, but he removed to North avenue recently.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, H. C. Van Emburgh, civil engineer, was engaged to take care of the city maps for the coming year, making all necessary changes and marking new buildings. His salary is to be $225 $125 for making changes on the maps and $100 for marking the new buildings.

A petition from residents of East Front street and Bank place for an electric light at that point was referred to the light committee with power. Another petition from residents of Woodland and Thornton avenues and Randolph road for the grading of those thoroughfares was referred to the street committee.

Residents of Randolph road and Lennox avenue again protested against the levying of a sewer assessment on both sides of that street, stating that they had paid the assessment on the Randolph road side and did not believe that they should be assessed on Lenox avenue. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Residents of Essex street petitioned the Common Council to macadamize that thoroughfare. The matter was referred to the street committee.

L. Moraller & Son, the Park avenue jewelers, were again engaged to take care of the town clock for the coming year for the sum of $30. This action was taken in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Buxton. Mr. Clay asked for the privilege of withdrawing the notice given at the last meeting that he would at this session move to amend rule 38 and it was granted.

On motion of Mr. Gloak it was decided that when council adjourn it be to meet Monday night, July 11 at 8 o'clock.

RICHMOND STREET STORM SEWER BIDS RECEIVED.

Three bids were received at the July meeting of the Common Council, last night, for a construction of the addition to the Richmond street storm sewer, one being from A. Vicchiarelli, of Philadelphia, who bid $1,200; another from J. C. Schrade, of Williamsport, Pa., whose figure was $1,250 and the third from Edmund F. Sexton, of Brooklyn and New York, who offered to do the work for $900. The last named bid will probably be accepted, as the checks for the other two were ordered to be returned.

The city furnishes the materials for this work, which is to be done under the direction of Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett.. November 1 next is the time set for the completion of the contract and this will about finish the storm sewer improvement for Richmond street, which is greatly needed in times of heavy rain.

First Excursion to the Shore.

The first excursion from this city to Asbury Park leaves to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock, when the members and friends of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Grace, Seventh-Day Baptist, Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's, Holy Cross churches and Bethel chapel will spend the day at the shore. The excursionists will leave the shore at 6.30 o'clock tomorrow night.

PLAINFIELD TRUST CO. DECLARES A DIVIDEND

The liberal inducements offered by the Plainfield Trust Company to depositors, the courteous treatment, together with the safe and conservative management of the Board of Directors, are reflected in the statement of the Company issued today which shows great growth in business.

The dividend of 5 per cent. declared by the board is a just reward to the stockholders who have allowed their earnings to accumulate for the past eight years until the surplus has doubled the capital. With the present addition of $110,000 to surplus, the amounts stands at $200,000, which, with the capital of $100,000, means security for depositors.

RE-ELECT MR. GILBERT PUBLIC LIBRARY HEAD

Mayor Charles J. Fisk at the meeting of the Board of Public Library Directors, last night, appointed the following members to succeed themselves for a term of three years: Alexander Gilbert, L. V. F. Randolph, William M. Stillman. The annual appointment of officers and committees follows:

President, Alexander Gilbert; vice-president, L. V. F. Randolph; treasuer, J. Herbert Case; secretary, William M. Stillman; library committee, Dr. Leonard Waldo, chairman; W. F. Merrill and W. H. Larrabee; art committee, C. Boardman Tyler, chairman; J. Herbert Case and L. V. F. Randolph.

Steps are being considered whereby all library books will be more thoroughly diinfected where there has been any question of their being exposed to contagious disease.

COUNCILMAN MAKES GOOD POLICE OFFICER

For causing a disturbance with dogs on Sunday morning on Stine's bridge near the home of Councilman William L. Smalley, Jr., of the borough, Charles Carr, of Jefferson avenue, was severely reprimanded by Recorder Dolliver in the borough police court last night. Carr had been throwing sticks into the water and sending the dogs after them, when requested by the councilman to discontinue the practice on Sunday morning. Carr paid no attention to Smalley and refused to move on, whereupon Mr. Smalley called up borough police headquarters and Carr was arrested.

At the hearing last night he appeared rather penitent and for this reason the court suspended sentence. Last week Councilman Smalley also played the role of policeman when he dispersed a crowd of roughs on Somerset street who were obstructing the way of other pedestrians.

EDUCATION BOARD ENGAGES TEACHER; HEARS REPORTS

The collector of taxes reported school taxes for June of $1,240.84. The balance on hand, June 30 with the custodian is $42,-262.34.

HIS FINGER SMASHED; DOCTOR AMPUTATES IT.

While cleaning a milling machine in the works of the Spicer Universal Joint Company plant, on Madison avenue, this morning, Louis Kane, of Second street, caught the middle finger of his right hand in one of the cogs and smashed it badly. Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, who was called in to attend the injured man found the finger in such an injured state, that he decided that the only means of saving part of it was to amputate the finger at the second joint. This, he successfully did, and the injured man was taken to his home.

HUGH BALDWIN DIES OF TYPHOID FEVER IN TEXAS.

Hugh Baldwin, who formerly lived at the corner of Park avenue and Crescent avenue, but who recently married and moved to Texas where he engaged in the lumber business, died Sunday, according to news received in this city today, and was buried this morning. Mr. Baldwin was making a success of the lumber venture in Galveston, it is reported, and was reecntly taken seriously ill with typhoid fever. The best medical attention was given him, but he was in too weak a condition to recuperate and the end came Sunday.

Electric Fan Needed.

The patients at the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society's Camp have probably felt the recent excess of heat just as much, if not more than others in Plainfield. The committee in charge of this camp is desirous of alleviating all possible suffering of these unfortunates and feels that an electric fan would be the most useful means of preventing all unnecessary hardships. A small fan can be purchased for $9 and contributions to a fund for the purchase of one will be gratefully received by Miss Phillips at the Chartity Organization, 544 West Front street.

Martin Benson in Trouble.

Martin Benson, who was arrested by the borough police last night, received a suspended sentence in the borough court this morning on a drunk and disorderly charge.

RAID ON POOLROOM; SIX FINED IN COURT

As the result of a descent upon the poolroom of George Gates, at 76 Somerset street, last evening by Borough Policemen Culver, Keller and Hope, George Gates, the proprietor was fined $5, and five frequenters, Lew Gates, John McKenna, Henry Larney, Edward Conklin and Fred Coverley were each fined $2, in the borough court this morning by Recorder Dolliver. The charges preferred against the last named was that of gambling while Gates was charged with keeping a gambling house.

The raid was made about 11.30 last night. Gathered about one of the tables in the room were the proprietor and the other five men, engaged in shooting crap. The dice and money, which was small in amount, were gathered in by the officers, and brought in along with the prisoners. This was sufficient evidence to make out a prima facie case against the accused ones, and this morning's fines resulted.

CITY NATIONAL BUYS MUNICIPALITY'S BONDS

The offer of the City National Bank to take the proposed issue of $30,000 worth of street improvement bonds at par and interest, was accepted at the July meeting of the Common Council last night. The city will issue the bonds in various amounts as it may need the money for street work, and the offer of the City National Bank was considered an excellent one. The bonds are to run three years, 5 per cent. interest-bearing, and the interest is to be paid from date of issue.

Resolutions were offered by Mr. Buxton, of the finance committee, approving the action of the Board of School estimate in determining that $67,000 would be needed for the maintenance of the schools for the coming year. Mr. Buxton also offered an ordinance incorporating the above amount as a supplment to the regular tax ordinance. This was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised. The amount is to be raised as other tax money.

The report of Andrew F. Jennings, treasurer of the pension fund of the Plainfield Fire Department, showed a balance on hand of $7,489.88. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $66.98 for the past month, with expenditures of $17.78. The balance $49.20, was turned over to the city treasurer.

ARREST POUND KEEPER ON A CRUELTY CHARGE

In the City Court this morning, William B. Kitchen, keeper of the pound, was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon, on a charge of cruelty preferred by E. H. Clevely, of North avenue. In his complaint, Clevely alleged that on Monday, June 29, Kitchen attempted to kill his (Clevely's) dog, which he had just taken from the pound.

Instead of using the most painless instrument as is required by law, Kitchen, it is alleged, struck the dog on the head with an ax or other blunt instrument. The blow lacked the necessary force to kill the dog, simply stunning him for the time.

Later in the day, the canine recovered its senses, and with a badly battered head, returned to its master's home on North avenue. Mr. Clevely then took the animal to a veterinary surgeon, who after some treatment brought the dog around, so that it is now well on the road to recovery.

The case was brought up before Judge Runyon this morning. He adjourned the hearing for one week.

JUDGE RUNYON SEEKS CONGRESSIONAL HONORS

Popular Plainfielder Formally Announces His Candidacy to Succeed Charles N. Fowler.

In a public statement today, Judge William N. Runyon announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the House of Representatives for the Fifth, New Jersey, Congressional district. He pledges himself, in his formal brief statement, if elected, to constantly and faithfully help to fulfill the party's promises and declares that he will be guided by his own convictions and that "neither fear no favor shall sway" him in the performance of his duty.

When seen by a representative of The Daily Press today, the popular judge said that he is already making plans for a vigorous campaign and that he deeply appreciated the honor paid to him by many Plainfielders, irrespective of faction, who had personally urged him to become a candidate. He added that the petitions received by him during the last few days had convinced him that it was his duty to become a candidate. These petitions contained the names of Republicans in all walks of life, many of whom disagree on party policy. Among the signers are some of the most notable residents.

That Judge Runyon's candidacy will be received well by all factions, there appears to be little doubt. In fact it is believed that his announcement, will, in a great measure, heal the breach in the party so far as the congressional nomination is concerned. Organization and Progressive Republicans, alike, today expressed their pleasure over the announcement. That he will prove acceptable to the "organization," although not identified with its forces, there seems to be no question. It is reported that County Chairman Frank H. Smith would gladly welcome Judge Runyon as a candidate. Mr. Smith is at Westerly, Rhode Island, at present and it was impossible to learn his views today.

Morris county it is believed by the political wiseacres will be equally pleased with Runyon. There is no candidate there, inasmuch as James H. McGraw has positively declined to run. It is expected, therefore, that a suitable man from Union will receive that county's endorsement. Warren, the other member of the district, has no candidate.

Some days ago, the present incumbent, Charles Newell Fowler, of Elizabeth, made formal announcement that he would be a candidate at the primaries again, although in the last campaign he declared that he would not ask for an eighth term. In his statement he bitterly assailed the "organization" leaders in the district. United States Senator John Kean, of Union county, and State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris county, were roundly denounced by him. He stigmatized County Chairman Frank H. Smith as "an echoing parrot" and insinuated that he "handled the long green." The aspersions he made regarding Mr. Smith were hotly resented by the latter's friends in Union county and lost Mr. Fowler many friends.

Judge Runyon's announcement follows:

To the citizens of the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey:—

I hereby offer myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Fifth District of New Jersey, and respectfully solicit the support of all citizens, irrespective of individual differences of opinion, who believe in the principles of the Republican party, and who feel

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET

Through an inadvertant oversight the results of the Dunellen games on the Fourth were not given in any detail yesterday. In the Westfield-Dunellen game in which the locals won by the score of 12 to 4, Harvey and Ramsberger was the battery for the locals. The Westfield battery was composed of Codding and Young. The score by innings was:

Dunellen ..1 0 1 1 5 0 4 0 x—12

The game with the Battleship Connecticut sailors was a victory for the locals by the overwhelming score of 24 to 4. The batteries were: Dunellen—Montross and Ramsberger and Connecticut, Vincent, Pratt and Nolan. Scott umpired both games, and the score by innings was:

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Fourth of July committee expect to report a clean slate when they make their report. This is evidence enough that the town is in favor of the old-fashioned picnic day celebration and the success of the first one will no doubt make the affair an annual event. Owing to want of space the full details of the day could not be chronicled. The fireworks and the band concert at night by Charles Suhr's Imperial band was one of the most enjoyed events of the day's program. Fully a thousand people "listened to the band," and enjoyed the set pieces and bombs.

A PROPHECY OF PEACE

Local Pastor Tells Why War Should and Will Be Abolished.

U. S. A. LEADS MOVEMENT.

Rev. J. W. Musson Gives Three Reasons Why Wars Should Not Be Resorted to by Nations.

"A Prophecy of Peace," was the subject of an interesting discourse delivered by Rev. J. W. Musson at the Temple Baptist church, Sunday morning. The text was from Isaiah 2:4: "And He shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift upward against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Among other things, Mr. Musson said:

"The United States has the honor of leading the world in efforts for international arbitration and the abolition of war. The first peace society in the world was organized in this country in 1815. Christ is called the 'Prince of Peace,' and He came to establish peace between God and man, man and man, nation and nation."

Mr. Musson discussed the peace movement from two points of view. Its desirability and its progress. Under the first head he quoted Washington, who said that it was his first wish to see this plague to mankind banished from the earth and to see the whole world in peace. Referring to Col. Roosevelt, the only living ex-president, the preacher quoted the former as saying in an address before the Nobel Peace Prize Committee at Christiana, Norway, on May 5, 1910. "The ruler or statesman who should bring about such a condition, that is to make it possible to establish peace between the nations, would have earned his place in history for all time and his title to the gratitude of all mankind."

"War should be abolished for three reasons. First, because of its inhuman and barbarous cruelties; second, because of its wastefulness and third because it is unneccessary. Grant, Sherman and the Duke of Wellington all said that war is a detestable thing and it is preferable to settle disputes by arbitration. Fifteen billions of lives have been sacrificed in war since the beginning of history, or as many people as have lived upon the earth in the last 600 years. Two-thirds of the revenue of the United States is expended upon wars past and prospective or four hundred millions of dollars annually."

Mr. Musson answered the argument that war kills off the surplus population by stating that there is no surplus population. All of the inhabitants of the earth could live in the single State of Texas allowing one-half acre to a family of five persons. Napoleon Bonaparte said after his banishment to St. Helena, "The more I study the world, the more I am convinced of the inability of brute force to create anything durable." John Hay said, "War is the most futile and ferocious of human follies."

In regard to the progress made toward the abolition of war, the preacher said that the union of tribes into States enlarges the peace areas. Wars used to last thirty and even one hundred years, but now the period is much shorter. Emerson said, "History is a record of the decline of war, but of the slow decline." The greatest advance made is the establishment of a permanent international court of arbitration.

CHRISTIAN FIELD

The union service will be held at the First M. E. church Sunday night, and Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, will preach.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold an all-day meeting at the Park Club on Friday to plan for the work next fall.

A new carpet will be laid in the Grace M. E. church shortly. This is in line with a number of minor improvements to be made during the summer months.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss will have charge of the prayer-meeting at the First Baptist church, this evening. The topic will be "What is the Place and Benefit of Quietude in the Christian Life?"

Owing to the fact that Monday was a holiday the trustees of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church did not meet that evening. Instead they will meet tonight for the transaction of regular monthly business.

Danish Lutheran services will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by Rev. Theodore Beck, of Brooklyn. Heretofore the congregation has been meeting at the W. C. T. U. rooms, but decided to make a change.

GOLF.

Over the short course of the New Haven Country Club members of the League of Connecticut Golf Clubs will gather from today to Saturday for their annual championship tournament. As usual, there will be a medal play qualification test, followed by a match play. Final rounds in the various divisions will be at thirty-six holes.

Foreign advices show that there were several ties among the leaders in the recent open championship tournament of Great Britain, held at St. Andrews. James Braid, with his total of 299, won the title easily enough, while Alec Herd, with 303, beat George Duncan a stroke for second place. Lawrence Ayton, a new claimant for honors, got fourth, with 306, and then came Willie Smith, E. Ray, and F. Robson in a triple tie for the next three moneys. Donald Ross, who finished only a stroke behind Smith, was tied with J. Kinnel and T. G. Renouf.

There were eight moneys. In addition to a cup and a medal worth £10 Braid received £50.

WHY MR. DUKE'S FARM IS CLOSED TO PUBLIC

In a communication to the Motor Record G. E. Marsh, a member of the N. P. J and M. C. No. 174, makes the following explanation why J. B. Duke has closed his handsome country estate at Raritan to the public excepting on Tuesdays and Fridays:

"Possibly you will recall some time ago I wrote you that J. B. Duke was contemplating closing his beautiful park to the autoists if the vandalism did not stop. Well, the worst has come to pass. Mr. Duke is having heavy bronze gates erected at all of the entrances to his grounds to protect himself from the depredations of the public, especially the autoist. As I said before, these are some of the troubles he had to put up with:

"Auto parties making the grounds a picnic ground and leaving their rubbish behind.

"Driving over the soft sods and ruining the lawns.

"Breaking carefully trimmed bushes.

"Stealing by the arm-full roses and other flowers.

"Speeding through the drives, and generally making HOGS of themselves.

"Mr. Duke says that he is sorry to deprive any one of the pleasure of driving through his vast park, but that he cannot longer stand the nuisance, and the abuse personally he has had to take from more than one autoist. That is why he closed his grounds to all, on June 1st. It will be entirely discretionary with Mr. Duke if he permits any one to drive in his grounds hereafter.

"I am also sorry to say that a party stopped there and on its auto was carrying the N. J. Auto Club flag. These people gathered an arm full of flowers. That is pretty bad on the rest of us club members. I am sorry that I have not the number of that car.

"The closing of this beautiful private park with its fifteen miles of macadam roads, beautiful lakes, flowers and statuary, will mean the loss to the lover of the beautiful, the respectable, law abiding autoist and others of one of the most lovely and beautiful spots in New Jersey. And for what reason? Because some brainless people, to gratify their own selfish ends, are the means of closing this park to all, by speeding, by theft, by vandalism. It's too bad that the majority must suffer because of these dogs; no other term applies to them that exactly fits them."

Mrs. Paige, wife of Dr. H. Worthington Paige, of Oneonta, N. Y., is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, of Grove street. She accompanied her sister, Miss Ida Yerkes, on her return home after a visit to her of several weeks length at Oneonta.

Pelham C. Wilmerding, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Clinton Wilmerding, of Belvidere avenue, has left the warm waves of this vicinity for the cool and invigorating breezes of the Maine woods at Camp Kineo on Long Lake, where he will enjoy fishing, canoeing, and camp life coupled with mountain climbing etc., in this ideal resort for gentlemen's sons until September 1.

A Plank road trolley car, southbound in Grand street, Jersey City, Monday, crashed into a rig owned by the Zeranba Baking Company, of 139 Morris street, killing the horse and smashing the wagon. Michael Merzinski, of 139 Morris street, who drove the rig, was thrown, but escaped injuries.

THE FORUM.

Mr. Norwood's Explanation.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Kindly allow me space in your paper to put before the public a true version of just what occured and the cause of my unjust arrest which was made on Monday, July 4, and for which there was no legal cause. When the last bulletin announcing Johnson the victor was posted, I came across Park avenue from The Daily Press office on my way home and directly in front of Boice and Runyon's office I saw two colored men whom I knew and I said to them, "I see that Johnson won in the fifteenth round." One of the men, whose name I will now withhold, said to me, "I would'nt say much about that for they have just locked up one colored man." I answered: "I have just heard something about that over at a hotel, a couple of white men beat the colored man up and the cop went in and arrested the colored man and let the white men get away. Policeman Overbaugh who was standing about twenty feet away overhearing the remark rushed over to me and in commanding tones demanded that I shut up. "For what," said I; "what have I said. I am free to speak and you nor any other man has a right to order me to shut up when I have violated no ordinance." Then I repeated what I had said concerning the fight as I had heard it and he in turn admitted that the white men had gone.

Judge Runyon did not lecture me as he saw very plainly the officer's imposition.

Miss Ethel A. Lorton a Bride.

Miss Ethel A. Lorton, daughter of Mrs. Amy E. Lorton, of Watchung avenue, and Gifford W. Beers, formerly proprietor of the lunch room on East Front street, opposite Roth & Co.'s store, were married Wednesday, June 29, at 1741 Amsterdam avenue, New York. The announcement came as a surprise to most of the friends of Miss Lorton. She was formerly a stenographer for Mayor Charles J. Fisk and later took a similar position in the correspondence department of the banking house of Harvey Fisk & Sons, New York.

W. S. Bullock Under Operation.

A monster chestnut log was recently converted into garden posts at P. M. French's mill, on Somerset street. The length of the log was 48 feet, and measured six feet across the butt. Four hundred garden posts was sawed from it, the butt cut alone producing 125 posts. The tree was obtained from the farm of John Stines, between this city and the "Rock." It took two men a whole day to saw the tree through and after being separated from the stump, the tree remained standing over two weeks before the wind blew it over.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

If you suffer from backache—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Plainfield people testify.
Here's one case of it:

Mrs. J. Mottley, 546 West Sixth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble three years ago and I have never had a return of it since. I am glad to confirm the public statement I gave in favor of this remedy at that time."

The endorsement to which Mrs. Mottley refers was given on August 26, 1905, and was substantially as follows: "About two months ago I was seized by a severe backache and dull pains in the top and back part of my head. I could not rest well and had no strength or energy to do my housework. Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at Randolph's drug store, gave me prompt relief and I am convinced that they are a first-class remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

On next Sunday the locals will cross bats with the Union Field club, of New Brunswick. The last game with the Unions had to be postponed on account of the death of the president of the organization.

William Bohl returned to his home in Newark yesterday, after spending the holiday with friends here.

Joseph Kelley, of New York, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Galligan.

Dog Attacks an Italian.

An Italian in the employ of William C. Smith, the contractor for masonry at Trinity Reformed church, was bitten in the calf of the leg by a dog, soon after starting work this morning. An employe of the Endress Company, asked the Italian to assist him in getting one of the butcher wagons out of the barn, and as he did so one of the dogs in the barn ran out and planted his teeth in the Italian's leg. The victim was taken to the office of Dr. Albert Pittis, where the wound was cauterized.

Carnival Netted $300.

The Firemen's Carnival, which was held at South Plainfield, Monday, was one of the most successful affairs of this kind ever held in the village, over $300 being cleared. The feature event of the day's sporting program was the victory of the married men over the single men by the score of 11-10 in their annual baseball game.

Trolley Car in Collision.

An Arlington avenue trolley car collided with the oil-sprinkling automobile on Arlington avenue, this morning, with the result that Motorman James Regan's face was cut and scratched with broken glass and the fender as well as other parts of the car were considerably damaged.

SEWERAGE EXTENSION SCHEME IS POSTPONED

The Common Council at its July meeting, last night, granted a public hearing on the proposed ordinance to extend the sanitary sewer system of the city, and R. H. Hood, of Stelle avenue, was present to offer his objections to the extension of the sewers in the vicinity of Stelle and Plainfield avenue. In consequence, Mr. Gloak announced that that section of the proposed improvement would be held up for further consideration on the part of the sewer committee with Mr. Hood.

"It is more as a taxpayer than a property-owner that I object to this improvement in my neighborhood," said Mr. Hood. "It takes in a property of many acres where no houses have been built for ten years and there is absolutely no need of sewers there. It will probably be a year or two before there will be a demand for sewers in that section, and at present it would be a needless expense. Besides, in addition to the cost of construction there would be the cost of maintenance, which would be considerable."

Mr. Hood referred to the pumping system being introduced here and which is proposed in this extension of the sewer system. He said that in the future the pumping stations would offer serious objections to other and more modern means of sewage disposal and he believed it to be a mistake to install them to any extent in the city. In speaking of maintenance, Mr. Hood said that it would cost 8 per cent. per annum on the first cost for maintenance. Mr. Hood's remarks were listened to with considerable interest and it was thought best to hold up the proposed improvement for a time, at least.

There was also a public hearing on the ordinance relating to the storage of gasolene, but no one appeared to speak either for or against the proposed measure. The ordinance will probably be passed at an early meeting of the Common Council.

GO TRAMPING ON HONEYMOON.

A tramping honeymoon is the latest idea for wedding trips. The couple who will try it are Mrs. Gertrude McCloskey Kufer, formerly of Woodville, O., and George E. Kufer, of Baltimore. The young persons have been prominent because of the rapid-fire romance that ended in their marriage. Kufer made a wager with friends in Baltimore more than a year ago he could cover 16,000 miles before October 23, 1910. He was to win $4,000 with this feat, but the promoters offered $500 more if he could win a bride while on the journey. When he reached Woodville on his trip he was taken to the McCloskey home by the girl's father. She had seen his picture in the newspapers and enjoyed at least a newspaper acquaintance with him. He spoke but little to her during the dinner and after the meal he and the girl talked of his undertaking. "How would you like to finish the journey with me?" he suddenly asked. As Miss McCloskey is fond of outdoor life and had learned much of her newly acquainted friend, when he pressed his inquiry more zealously she consented, and they were married within an hour. Now they are on their journey together, and already have completed 14,000 miles of the long hike. At the end of the jaunt, as there is a prize of $4,500 for them, as there is no doubt the conditions will be fulfilled.

USES FOR THE SAWDUST.

Don't throw away the sawdust that comes around things in packing cases.

It may be utilized in many ways about the house.

It is good for removing sediment in glass and earthenware.

A handful thrown on a dying fire will help to revive it.

Well dried and heated and sprinkled over grease spots in carpets, etc., it is useful in removing these marks.

Heated on a sheet of paper in the oven, it is an excellent remedy for mildew and damp spots on metals or other polished goods.

Slightly moistened sawdust, sprinkled on kitchen, larder and veranda floors, and brushed off with a hard broom, will clean the floor without much trouble.

No Sale.

"I thought surely you'd sell that lot of sausage," declared the grocer. "You praised it highly enough."

"I praised it too darned much," said his assistant. "It overheard me and wagged its tail."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Miss Caroline Bye a Bride.

Miss Caroline Bye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Bye, of Clinton avenue, and Martin J. Lynch, of Brooklyn, were married Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's church. The couple will reside in Brooklyn.

—Charles Harned, of Perth Amboy, has taken a position with Mrs. James White, at 607 West Third street, who yesterday reopened a horseshoeing establishment at that address.

UTILITY LAW EFFECTIVE

Child Labor Regulations Also Went Into Effect Monday.

Monday every public utility corporation in the State was subject to the provisions of the public utility law which was passed by the last Legislature. Besides this law, there are fourteen others which became operative on the same day.

The public utility law is an amendment and supplement to the present railroad commission law and extends the powers of that commission to every railroad, express, street railway, traction, canal, subway pipe line, gas, electric light, heat and power, water, sewer, telegraph, telephone or other public utility corporation. No power is given to fix rates so that the new commission will not be able to do more than make recommendation in the present war against the increase in passenger commutation fares.

The main powers of the new commission will be: after hearing upon notice to corporations, by order in writing; to compel compliance with State laws, to require safe and adequate service; to require public utilities to keep their books and records in a manner intelligible to the commission and to adopt a uniform system of accounting; and to direct any utility corporation found granting rebates to cease therefrom.

Courts to Enforce Orders.

Orders of the commission are to be enforced in the State courts, with right of appeal given to the corporation. No privilege or franchise granted after yesterday to any public utility by any local municipal or county governing body will be valid until approved by the commission.

There will be no change in the personnel of the present railroad commission but their salaries will be increased from $5,000 to $6,000. The commissioners are Frank H. Sommer, Newark; Robert Williams, Paterson, and Thomas J. Hillery, Boonton. Alfred N. Barber, of this city, will remain as secretary, but his salary will be increased to $4,000. The apointments under the new commission must be made subject to the provisions of the civil service law. The latter commission will conduct an examination on July 11, for the office of chief inspector. He will receive a salary of $4,000.

Child Labor Law.

The new child labor law also took effect yesterday. The law provides that until July 4, 1911, children under 15 shall not be permitted to work in factories between 6 o'clock p. m. and 6 o'clock a. m. After July 4, 1911, the age is to be raised to 16 years. At present it is 14 years.

Regulation of Midwifery.

The regulation of midwifery is another law which went into effect yesterday. Under the new provisions candidates for examination as midwives must present to the State Board of Medical Examiners a written application setting forth moral character, the time spent in getting a common school education or its equivalent and also incorporates school midwifery in good standing, granted after at least two courses of instruction of at least seven months each. The penalty provided for practising without a license is a fine of $10 to $50 and imprisonment from ten to thirty days.

Other Laws Effective.

Other acts becoming effective Monday are as follows:

Relating to the transmission of money to foreign countries by individuals or private bankers and providing additional safeguards for patrons of such.

Relating to the sale of lands under a public statute or by virtue of any pudicial proceeding.

The Walsh act reforming the manner of printing of election ballots and prohibiting the placing of the term of office on the same line with the name of the candidate.

Regulating the taxation of fees and costs in the Supreme Court.

Regulating share of stocks in building and loan associations when issued to persons in trust and providing that the earnings of such shares shall be the sole property of the person for whose benefit they may be issued.

Permitting governing bodies in municipalities to adopt ordinances regulating or prohiibting the sale of fireworks and providing a penalty of not exceeding a fine of $200.

Regulating street improvements in towns.

Supplement to the 1908 law concerning cities and providing that resolutions of the boards of police and fire commissioners shall be approved by the mayor before becoming effective. This supplement does not, however, apply to all cities, it only being effective in cities where the provisions of the 1908 law were accepted.

New Cigar Holder.

A new cigar holder is of so-called French amber, which is made of cheese and sour milk, and put through some process that makes it look like amber. The holder is inexpensive and non-breakable.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The petit jurors of Gloucester County have been recalled for July 7.

Former Governor Stokes was the orator of the day Monday at Port Norris, in his home county, and he got a great ovation.

Frederick Bird, five years old, of Mt. Grove, was badly burned about the arms and body when his clothes caught fire from the kitchen range.

A number of prominent residents and active young Republicans of Millville, are urging Assemblyman B. Frank Buck to become a candidate for Mayor.

The Seventh Day Adventists of New Jersey, who have been holding camp meeting services in Trenton for a week, baptized fifteen converts in the Delaware River here Sunday.

Bitten on the upper lip by an insect, Ella Monroe, six years old, of 947 Kaign avenue, Camden, was admitted to the Homeopathic Hospital, Monday with a badly swollen face. The child was soon relieved from pain.

Falling about fifteen feet from a building at Tenth street and Atlantic avenue, Camden, Monday, James Bland, forty years old, of 1708 Matter street, escaped with a sprained back. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Six public playgrounds were thrown open to the boys of Trenton yesterday. The grounds are on public school property and each will be in charge of a superintendent. An additional playground for girls only will be opened Friday.

Seized with cramps Bernard Blevstine was almost drowned while bathing in Newark Bay off City Park, Bayonne, Sunday. He was rescued by Frank Wendell, a member of the City Park division of the United States Volunteer Life-saving Corps.

On the way to a fire in Holsman street, Paterson, Sunday, the steamer attached to Engine Company No. 3 plunged into the store at Twelfth avenue and Straight street, wrecking the front of the building and badly injuring two of the three horses. Driver Bergen escaped injury.

Word has reached Paulsboro that James Smith and Emil Zent, two of four men who went to Seattle to work for the Du Pont Powder company, were killed in an explosion last Thursday. William Milstead and Joseph O'Brien, the other two, escaped, according to a telegram.

The mangled body of Arthur Brothers, colored, who had been working at the Roebling plant, at Roebling, was found on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Kinkora Sunday morning. He had been killed during the night by a train while on his way to White Hill. His home is in Port Royal, Va.

Daniel Sullivan, nineteen years old of 115 Walnut avenue, Trenton, a brakeman in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, narrowly escaped death Monday when he came in contact with the bridge across the railroad at Chestunt avenue. He was knocked down from the train and almost rolled under the wheels of the car. He was carried to Chestnut avenue and removed to St. Francis Hospital in a cab.

A serious accident was averted at Ocean City Sunday evening by the coolness displayed by Director Lake, of the city orchestra. The music pavilion was jammed to the doors and a great crowd overflowed on the hanging balconies around the building. Without an instant's warning the heavy girder supporting the balcony on the north side of the building snapped, and the crowd was lowered, fifteen feet directly over the ocean. Director Lake stuck to his post, and, as the orchestra played the crowd made an orderly exodus from their perilous position to the boardwalk.

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
Illustrations by MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"Good old Israel Laeng lives there—two wives, one old, one young—11 children. The Kingdom of Heaven is open to him!" And from a second he heard the sound of an organ, and from still a third there came the laughter and chatter of several feminine voices, and again Obadiah reached out and prodded Nathaniel in the ribs. There was one great, gloomy, long-built place which they passed, without a ray of light to give it life, and the councilor said: "Three widows there, Nat—fight like cats and dogs. Poor Job killed himself." They avoided the more thickly populated part of the settlement and encountered few people, which seemed to please the councilor. Once they overtook and passed a group of women clad in short skirts and loose waists and with their hair hanging in braids down their backs. For a third time Obadiah nudged Captain Plum.

"It is the king's pleasure that all women wear skirts that come just below the knees," he whispered. "Some of them won't do it and he's wondering how to punish them. Tomorrow there's going to be two public whippings. One of the victims is a man who said that if he was a woman he'd die before he put on knee skirts. After he's whipped he is going to be made to wear 'em. By Urim and Thummin, isn't that choice, Nat?"

He shivered with quiet laughter and dived into a great block of darkness where there seemed to be no houses, keeping close beside Nathaniel. Soon they came to the edge of a grove and deep among the trees Captain Plum caught a glimpse of a lighted window. Obadiah Price now began to exhibit unusual caution. He approached the light slowly, pausing every few steps to peer guardedly about him, and when they had come very near to the window he pulled his companion behind a thick clump of shrubbery. Nathaniel could hear the old man's subdued chuckle and he bent his head to catch what he was about to whisper to him.

"You must make no noise, Nat," he warned. "This is the castle of our priest, king and prophet—James Jesse Strang. I am going to show you what you have never seen before and what you will never look upon again. I have sworn upon the Two Books and I will keep my oath. And then—you will answer the question I asked you back there."

He crept out into the darkness of the trees and Nathaniel followed, his heart throbbing with excitement, every sense alert, and one hand resting on the butt of his pistol. He felt that he was nearing the climax of his day's adventure and now, in the last moment of it, his old caution reasserted itself. He knew that he was among a dangerous people, men who, according to the laws of his country, were criminals in more ways than one. He had seen much of their work along the coasts and he had heard of more of it. He knew that this gloom and sullen quiet of St. James hid cutthroats and pirates and thieves. Still there was nothing ahead to alarm him. The old man dodged the gleams of the lighted window and slunk around to the end of the great house. Here, several feet above his head, was another window, small and veiled with the foliage of a vine that clung in dense masses to the log wall. With the assurance of one who had been there before the councilor mounted some object under the window, lifted himself until his chin was on a level with the glass, and peered within. He was there but an instant and then fell back, chuckling and rubbing his hands.

"Come, Nat!"

He stood a little to one side and bowed with mock politeness. For a moment Captain Plum hesitated. Under ordinary circumstances this spying through a window would have been repugnant to him. But at present something seemed to tell him that it was not to satisfy his curiosity alone that Obadiah Price had given him this opportunity. Would a look through that little window explain some of the mysteries of the night?

There came a low whisper in his ear.

"Do you smell lilac, Nat? Eh?"

The councilor was grinning at him. There was a suggestive gleam in his eyes. He rubbed his hands almost fiercely.

In another instant Captain Plum had stepped upon the object beneath the window and parted the leaves. Breathlessly he looked in. A strange scene met his eyes. He was looking into a vast room, illuminated by a huge hanging lamp suspended almost on a level with his head. Under this lamp there was a long table and at the table sat seven women and one man. The man was at the end nearest the window and all that Nat could see was the back of his head and shoulders. But the women were in full view, three on each side of the table and one at the far end. He guessed the man to be Strang; but he stared at the women and as his eyes traveled back to the one facing him at the end of the table he could scarcely repress the exclamation of surprise that rose to his lips. It was the girl whom he had encountered at the councilor's cabin. She was leaning forward as if in an agony of suspense, her eyes on the king, her lips parted, her hands clutching at a great book which lay open before her. Her cheeks were flushed with excitement. And even as he looked Captain Plum saw her head fall suddenly forward upon the table, encircled by her arms. The heavy braid of her hair, partly undone, glistened like red gold in the lamplight. Her slender body was convulsed with sobs. The woman nearest her reached over and laid a caressing hand on the bowed head, but drew it quickly away as if at a sharp command.

In his eagerness Nathaniel thrust his face through the foliage until his nose touched the glass. When the girl lifted her head she straightened back in her chair—and saw him. There came a sudden white fear in her face; a parting of the lips as if she were on the point of crying out, and then, before the others had seen, she looked again at Strang. She had discovered him and yet she had not revealed her discovery! Nathaniel could have shouted for joy. She had seen him, had recognized him! And because she had not cried out she wanted him! He drew his pistol from its holster and waited. If she signaled for him, if she called him, he would burst the window. The girl was talking now and as she talked she lifted her eyes. Nathaniel pressed his face close against the window, and smiled. That would let her know he was a friend. She seemed to answer him with a little nod and he fancied that her eyes glowed with a mute appeal for his assistance. But only for an instant, and then they turned again to the king. Not until that moment did Nathaniel notice upon her bosom a bunch of crumpled lilacs.

Keeping in Touch With Home

THE bread-winner is frequently delayed beyond his regular hour. This disturbs the household arrangements. The family does not mind a reasonable delay provided there is notice in advance.

With a telephone in the home a man can advise his family of any delay. A residence telephone also provides the means for the family to communicate with him through the day. Not a week passes that the family has not some urgent message to send to the man of the house.

The cost of residence telephone service is negligible as compared with its convenience.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually,

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

Hallet & Davis Player-Piano

on board
U. S. S. MICHIGAN U. S. S. SOUTH CAROLINA

Withstands the terrible strain of the firing of the big guns. Marvelous durability of so finely constructed an instrument the wonder of all.

One would naturally think when a 12-inch gun is fired directly over a player-piano it would at least displace some of the delicate mechanism, but the officers of these battleships have written that they have found no such trouble with their Hallet & Davis Player Piano.

A jar that will snap a 1-inch steel bolt like a match had no effect on the Player Piano. Fears were entertained after the firing, but a quick test proved that the player-piano responded to the finest shading of accent and the purest quality of tone just the same as before firing.

No severer test could be devised. Take also into consideration that the salt air alone will spoil an ordinary player-piano in a short time, and you will realize what a truly wonderful player-piano the Hallet & Davis really is.

The player-pianos on these battleships were chosen from our regular stock. Not a piece of reinforcement went into them. Since the remarkable demonstration several of the officers have purchased these instruments for their homes.

The Price of the Hallet & Davis 88-Note Player-Piano is $750. Other Player-Pianos at $385 to $585.
Very Easy Terms Allowed.

Come in and Try a Little Musicale. Those who are not familiar with the delight of a player-piano are requested to drop in any time and try their favorite selections.

We will make you an attractive offer for your upright piano.

If you cannot call, write for interesting literature.

Reason for Wonderful Showing

The chief charm, the basic superiority of the mechanical construction of the Hallet & Davis Player-Piano, lies in its simplicity. No unnecessary parts to cause trouble. For the rest, the quality of the tone, the construction of the regular piano, is Hallet & Davis throughout. Three levers and two buttons absolutely control any accent or tempo required. Will repeat perfectly on the softest tones. This instrument has several patented devices which you must get to secure satisfaction. No amount of money can buy a better player-piano.

CONGRESSIONAL HONORS

that I would make them a worthy representative.

An opportunity to do such service for his fellow citizens as is afforded a Representative, is not to be lightly considered at any time. And when, as in my own case, promises of support are given by Republicans of widely different ideas and callings, given unqualifiedly and without a single attempt to dictate terms or exact conditions, I believe that an affirmative response is a duty which I owe to those who, by petition and personal interview, have requested me to stand as a candidate for this high office.

If nominated and elected, I pledge myself to a constant and faithful discharge of my duties in helping fulfill the promises to which the Republican party stands committed, and I beg to assure my fellow citizens, one and all, that my acts shall be the result of my own convictions, and not simply the expression of others' mandates; that neither fear nor favor shall sway me, and that so far as in me lies, I shall at all times be truly a representative of the people. With this statement I offer myself for your consideration, and shall be well content to abide by your verdict.

Respectfully, yours,
WILLIAM N. RUNYON.
Plainfield, N. J., July 6, 1910.

Judge William N. Runyon is considered today the most popular man in Plainfield, if not in Union county. Since obtaining his majority he has devoted a large share of his time in the interests of all that is best for social, religious and civic betterment, and he has a strong personal following. He is the eldest son of former Judge Nelson Runyon and is now in his fortieth year.

Born in Plainfield, the judge was graduated from the High School of this city in 1888, and was the president of his class. That fall, he entered Yale University and was a classmate of Lee McClung, now Treasurer of the United States, and of Henry S. Graves, now chief Forester of the United States. During his college course, he was elected a member of the Scroll and Keys, one of the most coveted honors that could come to an undergraduate, and was also chosen a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon, one of the most prominent college fraternities in the country. For two successive years he was a soloist of the Yale Glee Club and at the commencement of his class he was a member of the senior promenade committee. After receiving the degree of bachelor of arts in 1892 from Yale, he matriculated at the New York Law School. He was chosen vice president of his class and was graduated two years later with the degree of bachelor of laws, being president of his class at the time. While pursuing his legal education he was chosen a member of the editorial board of the New York Law School Journal. The same year he was admitted to the bar in New York. After practicing in that city for a time he associated himself with his father in the practice of law in Plainfield, having been admitted as an attorney in 1898. Three years later he was made a counselor.

During the first McKinley campaign, in 1896, Judge Runyon organized the Young Men's Republican Club in Plainfield and was elected as its president. For the following two years he served as a member of the Common Council in this city, and in 1899 was chosen by an overwhelming vote as City Judge, which position he has continuously held for four consecutive terms, polling the largest vote of any candidate of his party on the same ticket, and in two instances being elected without the minority party's opposition.

Judge Runyon is prominent in fraternal organizations. He organized and was the first exalted ruler of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E. He is a past chancellor of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, and is past worshipful master of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M. After serving for sixteen years as teacher of the William N. Runyon Bible Class at Hope Memorial Chapel, where he did a great work among the young men of this city, he resigned to assist in the unbuilding of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, of which he has been a member for twenty years. His whole life has been devoted practically in helping his fellow man and his loveable chacateristics, extreme modesty, eloquence and sincerity have endeared him to the community which holds him in the highest esteem.

LOCAL YOUNG WOMEN ARE AT LAKE GEORGE

Eleven young women from the local Y. W. C. A. are today enjoying the experience of attending the large Eastern City Conference of the Y. W. C. A. at Silver Bay, Lake George. The party arrived at the lake yesterday morning after a delightful trip up the Hudson by night steamer and a trip on Lake George by steamer, and no accidents of any sort were reported.

Those in the party are: Miss Amy Tapping, general secretary; Miss Van Blarcom, assistant secretary; Miss Margaret Mosher, physical directors and the Misses Myrtle Fedderman, Laura Hangliter, Mary Gray, Lizzie Joos, Nettie Steiner, Helen George, Florence Prior and Clara Runyon.

The young women will remain at Silver Bay until July 15, during which time they will attend conference and participate in the numerous social activities at the lake. One of the features will be the Plainfield stunt in which the young women will garb themselves as Jersey mosquitoes. In letters received today from some of the delegates they say that the weather is ideal at the lake and that the "Plainfield stunt" will furnish the only mosquitoes at the lake; for there are none of the other kind there.

During the absence of the secretaries, the association rooms will be open as usual, and books may be drawn any day after two o'clock, and during the evening. The rooms are cool and attractive and it is hoped that they will be freely used.

MR. SCHWED THEIR GUEST

AFFAIR WAS ELABORATE.

Representative Men Paid Tributes to Guest of Honor—An Ovation for Judge Runyon.

Herman S. Schwed, of 99 Westervelt avenue, was paid a glowing tribute by some seventy-five fellow merchants last night, at the Hotel Waldorf, who assembled to bid him "bon voyage" on his trip to Europe, which he, in company with Mrs. Schwed, is to take shortly. The dinner was given by the members of the Board of Trade and the Merchants' Association, of which organizations, Mr. Schwed is a member. The invited guests were selected from the various walks of life, with whom Mr. Schwed in his long successful career in this city, has come in contact.

Mr. Schwed has been in the clothing business in Plainfield for over a quarter of a century. During this period, he has been actively identified with the civic affairs of the city, devoting much time and attention to the work of both the Board of Trade and the Merchants' Association. That his efforts and endeavors have not gone unappreciated, was manifested splendidly last evening, as evidenced by the tributes, which were paid him by the speakers on the toast list.

Of these Judge William N. Runyon was perhaps the most forceful, as he dwelt to no little extent upon Mr. Schwed's good work in the city. A. E. Force, president of the Merchants' Association, was the toastmaster and the other speakers of the evening were: Judge Newcorn, William Jeffery, president of the Board of Trade, Judge William N. Runyon, ex-Sheriff Coriell, Prof. A. S. Herr, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Francis Blatz, M. C. Van Arsdale, Postmaster Bird, H. C. Duttenhoefer, W. A. Clark, president of the Borough bank, John Becker and Charles Schwed, a brother of the guest of the evening. The latter comes from Somerville, and was well pleased at the esteem which his brother was held in by his townspeople, as evidenced at the evening's gathering.

When Judge Runyon, who announced his candidacy for Congress yesterday morning entered the banquet hall after the other guests were seated, he was given a tremendous ovation and hailed as "Our next Congressman." Cheers rang through the hall and the judge was visibly affected.

The menu as offered by the management of the Waldorf was splendid, and the committee in charge of the dinner, consisting of A. E. Force, H. Adelberg and George W. Christian, expressed themselves as well satisfied with everything. Suhr's orchestra furnished the music.

The menu card contained this list of speakers:

"Our Assets," Watch Dog Arnold; "Our Guest," Bill Oldcorns; "Nothing," Bill Clark; "Ourselves," Georgie Grief-in; "What I Am Doing and Who I Am Doing," Anna S. Herr; "How I Made Plainfield Circles," Jeff; "Just Something," Be Frank Coriell; "Where I Get On," Suspended Sentence Runyon; "Cut Me Out," Highman Adelberg.

Those present were: Moses Hellman, F. M. Ward, Charles R. Goldsmith, John Becker, Isaac Schweed, Charles Schwed, Somerville, A. E. Force, F. A. Duttenhofer, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Wm. Jeffery, J. J. Shirley, J. S. Johnson, Herbert Schuldenfried, W. A. Clark, M. C. Van Arsdale, J. Weinberger, C. Levy, J. Fass, Elias H. Bird, William N. Newcorn, J. P. Emmons, Steven Schlief, F. J. Blatz, B. F. Coriell, Henry Liefke, A. S. Herr, L. B. Woolston, H. Adelberg, K. S. Sacher, Leo Slonim, C. Applegate, W. N. Runyon, George Christian, Thad Doane, Jr., V. G. Pierson, George Griffin, William F. Arnold, Herman Schwed.

In answer to a communication received by The Daily Press today, this paper is authorized to announce that the Johnson-Jeffries fight pictures will not be shown at Proctor's theatre. Manager Harry S. Sanderson, of that theatre, is away on his vacation, but two days before the pugilistic encounter at Reno, Nevada, he stated positively that such moving pictures would not be allowed to be shown in any playhouse he controls.

"The reproduction of such pictures," said Mr. Sanderson, "has a demoralizing and degrading tendency. They are harmful to the youth and far from any benefit to the grown-ups. My policy has been, during the thirty-five years that I have been in the show business, to amuse and instruct but at the same time to give a purely moral and uplifting entertainment. During the time I have been in business here, and for all future time, my policy is to give a clean show, such as any man would like to have his wife, mother or daughter see."

ENCOURAGING REPORT FROM HEALTH BOARD

Fewer cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria were reported than during the previous month at the July meeting of the Board of Health last night as shown by this table: Scarlet fever, 5; diphtheria, 1; tuberculosis, 8; chicken-pox, 3; measles, 2; typhoid fever, 1; total, 20. During June 105 inspections were made in connection with plumbing, 174 in connection with the milk supply and 547 in connection with general work. The last named work included inspections on complaints, rear yards, vaults and cesspools, house-to-house bakeries, ice cream manufacturers, butcher shops, dumping grounds, restaurants, etc.

The sample of city water taken for analysis showed it to be of the usual excellent quality. Fifty-nine samples of milk and five of cream were analyzed during the month. The average fats was about the same as last month, but the bacteria was considerably lower.

These returns were made to the office during the month: Marriages, 29; births, 44; still births, 2; deaths, 24. Over fifty per cent. of the deaths were of persons over sixty years of age.

Jacob Voehl, Jr's., plumbing bond was accepted and ordered filed. These men were granted permits to conduct barber shops in the city: William C. Burns, Michael J. Devine, Angelo Brancati, James H. Bolling and Eugene Phillips. These were granted permits to sell milk: A. Kunzman, to sell from store, and Morris Deutsch to sell milk from a restaurant and Russell Edson to sell a few quarts of milk. A permit was also granted to Isaac White to collect small dead animals.

Permits were granted to the following to sell ice in this city: John Morton, Plainfield Ice and Supply Company, Frank T. Ostrom, Crystal Ice and Coal Company, B. Epstein and George R. Schenck. The 1909 annual report of the Board of Health has been distributed among many taxpayers of the city. Copies will be furnished to anyone on application.

WANTS HER CHILD'S BODY

Mrs. de Festetics Brings Suit to Recover Remains of Dead Boy.

GYULA DE FESTETICS TALKS.

He Makes a Manly Statement Deploring Notoriety But Declares Facts Will Become Known at Trial on Monday.

The publication in a New York newspaper this morning of an attempt on the part of Mrs. Elsie H. de Festetics, wife of Gyula de Festetics, of this city, to recover the dead body of their son from the vault where it lies in Hillside cemetery has brought forth the following statement from Mr. de Festetics which is self explanatory.

"You ask me for a reply to the article in the morning paper of this date respecting an action brought by Mrs. de Festetics in the Court of Chancery in this State, claiming the remains of my beloved child now resting, as I supposed, at peace in the vault at Hillside, and again I must reply to you that I cannot deviate from my course not to resort to the newspaper columns for my vindication.

"Indeed I have attempted none, even in the courts. I have suffered silently and patiently as I could every assault upon my honor, which the tricks and devices of malice and untruthfulness could produce, at first in the hope that Mrs. de Festetics may yet suceed to rehabilitate her mind with a better sense of fitness, and at all times to save the child's name from the reflection which the disclosure of the actual facts might easily injure, worse than the fiction in which they have been clothed.

"You must still be content with this reply to your inquiries until Monday next when I can no longer hinder you and the people to glean from the records of the courts such enlightenment upon the case as I must deny you of my own volition."

The story to which Mr. de Festetics refers appeared in the New York Sun of this morning, and referred with minuteness to the troubles of Mr. and Mrs. de Festetics, which date back to September, 1900. Their little son who died here on June 12, was the idol of her father and had made many friends in this city through his manly disposition and character. It goes without saying that Mr. de Festetics worshipped the little fellow and the annoyance caused by his wife's continued bitter animosity seems to be the last straw.

The Hillside Ceemtery Association of this city is made a co-defendant with Mr. de Festetics in the action which is brought by Richard Boardman, a lawyer of Jersey City. Mrs. de Festetics says that as the custody of her son while he was alive was given to her she is entitled to the permanent possession of his body. She declared that she was willing to have the body interred in any cemetery within fifty miles of New York, but objects to its being placed in a metallic casket.

CHARLES KOFORD HAS HAND BADLY LACERATED.

Suffering from a severe laceration of the hand, Charles Koford, of 178 Welsey avenue was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital shortly after 3:30 yesterday afternoon. He is a carpenter employed at the Hall Printing Press Company, and while working around a circular saw in some manner or other caught his hand in its teeth.

Blood flowed freely from the wound, and Mr. Koford was taken to the hospital, where it was dressed. Although the laceration is serious, it is assured that he will not lose the use of the hand.

Dr. Pocock Wins Foot Race.

Dr. Pocock and C. A. Weaver, of the Hotel Kensington, to decide a bet, engaged in a foot race on Park avenue, Tuesday night, the distance being a half mile. The race was warmly contested, and on the last lap, the doctor showed a great burst of speed, winning by over a minute. The race was to have been run on Monday night, but, owing to the disability of one of the contestants it was postponed until Tuesday night.

BIG EXCURSION TO SEA

Twenty-three Carloads Left This Morning for Day at Asbury Park.

8 SUNDAY SCHOOLS ON TRIP.

Train in Two Sections Behind Scheduled Time—Due to Arrive Home Again Tonight at 8 O'clock.

The first and what will probably prove to be one of the largest Sunday school excursions from this city to Asbury Park, this season, left this morning for the shore. The Sunday schools included comprise the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian, Grace Episcopal, Seventh Day Baptist, Bethel chapel, Heavenly Rest, St. Stephen's Holy Cross, of this city, and the Dunellen Presbyterian church, while friends of the schools were picked up at Dunellen, as well as at all three stations in Plainfield.

There were two sections, the first in charge of Conductor Thomas Flanagan, comprising fifteen coaches, all filled, and the second in charge of Conductor Lester Brightman, comprising nine coaches. About one carload of excursionists was picked up at the Netherwood station, including the members and friends of St. Stephen's church.

The trains were scheduled to leave here at 8 o'clock, but the first section followed the 8.30 club-car train, while the second section did not get away until 8.45 o'clock. Although the crowd was one of the largest that ever gathered at the North avenue station on such an occasion, it was orderly and so far as known not a single person who planned to go was left behind. There was plenty of room for everyone and the prospects for a fine day at the shore were fine. Harry Slausson was the chairman of the general committee and every detail was attended to so that there was not the slightest hitch of any kind. The excursionists will leave the shore tonight at 6.30 and should reach home about 8 o'clock.

FOURTH OF JULY DANCE HAS SEQUEL IN COURT

An echo of the Fourth of July celebration held in a dance hall on Plainfield avenue by some of the colored population was aired in the police court this morning with the result that James Spring, of West Third street was fined five dollars which was paid.

Patrolman O'Keefe told the story of the arrest and the abuse heaped on him by Spring, but the policeman did not know of the motive actuating the assault of which Spring was accused by two colored boys and which resulted in the imposition of the fine.

On the evening of Independence Day some colored folks had a dance in the Plainfield Hall and during the evening William Peterson and Thos. Jones had an altercation with Spring, during which it was alleged by Peterson that Spring threatened to shoot him. What the trouble was about did not appear, but it is sure that it was of a nature calculated to arouse the demon jealousy in Spring.

Spring in an endeavor to drown his disappointment over what he termed was a frustrated love affair engulfed all the whiskey that he could hold and started up the street with fire in his eye. After knocking Peterson into the gutter with a right hand uppercut he attempted to administer the same dose to Jones. The latter eluded the punch and started to run. Jones alleged that Spring drew a knife on him, but the officer who made the arrest failed to find any weapon. All the above came out in the stories told in court this morning before Judge William N. Runyon.

Pinto in a New Role.

Effingham Pinto, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pinto, of West Eighth street, who scored such a success in the "Climax," which had a phenomenal run in New York and throughout the country, is now rehearsing a new play entitled "Baby Mine," to be produced in about three weeks by William A. Brady. The company is rehearsing the play at Atlantic City, where it will be seen for the first time. "Baby Mine" is a comedy and gives promise of being a success.

BAR ASSOCIATION SPLIT?

Stormy Session at Annual Election With Many Uncomplimentary Remarks.

TWO FACTIONS ARE BITTER.

Samuel S. Swackhamer Elected President—Opposition to Judge Newcorn—Borough Gets All the Offices.

Whether or not a new Bar Association will be formed in this city will depend altogether upon the action to be taken later by the younger element in the membership. It developed at the meeting of the association this morning that the present operations of the Plainfield Bar Association are not acceptable to the new members, and in fact two factions are opposed to each other in the matter relating to the social side of the membership. Some are content to allow the present condition of inactivity to continue while the younger men want more action.

At the meeting of the association in the court room of the district court this morning some bitterness was shown when the nominations of the association as prepared at a caucus held on Tuesday night were put before the meeting. According to the original plan the young lawyers had outlined a series of meetings, the changing of the by-laws, an annual dinner and a reference library, but these innovations did not strike the older members as being the best thing for the association and the ticket which had been prepared was sidetracked and the wishes of the older members prevailed.

Judge William Newcorn, whom the younger men wished to have as president of the organization, made a speech in which some of the members of the older organization were scathingly rebuked.

A tilt between Judge Newcorn, W. V. Nash, Jr., Judge Isaac P. Runyon and F. J. Blatz followed the nominations and many bitter things were said. Some of the lawyers present were characterized as shysters and political tricksters, and in fact, the meeting was one of the kind where professional courtesy appeared to have been thrown to the winds.

According to the best information obtainable, the young men of the association had believed that the old bar association had become defunct. But they discovered that after a four years' silence and apparent desuetude they had suddenly come to life and were on the job to frustrate the plans in view. It was suggested by Mr. Nash that the object of the organization ought to be one in which all the membership could concur without friction. In support of this opinion he offered an amendment to the present by-laws which would make every lawyer in the city a member. In supporting his idea Mr. Nash said that if all were agreed on a tariff of fees there would be none of the petty scurrying after petty cases and a more complete and fraternal understanding would ensue.

Another suggestion which found favor with the young lawyers was the establishment of a reference library. This seemed to please the majority and will in all likelihood become a part of the common property of those who want information on cases and topics which no one lawyer would care to keep in his book-case unless he had one bigger than the average Carnegie library.

It was a matter of common report this morning on the street that illegality was complained of in the matter of the election of the young lawyers who had selected Judge Newcorn as their president: F. J. Blatz, vice-president: W. V. Nash, Jr., secretary, and A. C. Randolph, treasurer.

The explanation was simple. There were many who believed that the old organization which was formed in 1906 had ceased to exist, as it was known that no meeting had been held during the past four years and its activities apparently had become a thing of history. The young men, therefore believed it incumbent upon them to establish a bar association upon a permanent basis with something besides the plain routine of business to occupy their time in it. They even went so far as to suggest an annual banquet and other diversions, which coming to the ears of the original organizers caused the fracas.

The new officers of the association, elected this morning were: President, Samuel S. Swackhamer; vice-president, Judge Isaac P. Runyon; secretary, Charles M. Dolliver and treasurer, A. C. Randolph. The trustees elected were: Craig A. Marsh, Nelson Runyon and W. R. Codington.

CITY BOND RESOLUTION DISAPPROVED BY MAYOR

It was learned today that Mayor Fisk had vetoed the resolution passed by the Common Council awarding to the City National bank a proposed issue of $30,000 street improvement bonds, which that institution had offered to take purely as an accommodation to the municipality at par and interest.

Owing to the absence of the corporation counsel, the city fathers had not been informed of an act passed by the last Legislature which prohibits the sale of municipal bonds excepting when advertised for ten days in advance of a public sale of the same unless the disposition of such bonds are made according to some act providing otherwise. The acceptance in this case was made in accordance with the statute of 1898, and therefore the sale would not be valid.

On this ground and because he considered that bonds should be disposed of in such manner only as money is actually required for street improvements, he therefore returned the resolution unsigned.

PTOMAINE POISONING KILLS W. W. TITSWORTH

William W. Titsworth, aged forty-two years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. B. Titsworth, of the Babcock building, died at 9 o'clock last night at his home in Brooklyn of ptomaine poisoning. He was taken ill Sunday night after eating some chopped meat purchased from a Brooklyn butcher the night before. Mr. Titsworth's wife and children, as well as a friend visiting them, were all ill from the same cause, but in their case the attack was not so severe.

Mr. Titsworth was born at Dunellen and resided in this city for many years, being employed here as a carpenter by John Abbott, the contractor. He left Plainfield twenty years ago, going to Brooklyn. He was married there eight years ago. Mr. Titsworth was a member of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum. He is survived by a wife and three children, Thomas William, Clara Elizabeth and Harold Crandall, the last named being two months old. He also leaves his parents.

The remains will be brought to this city on Saturday and a short service will be held in the afternoon at 1.45 at the grave in Hillside cemetery, conducted by Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of the Sabbath Recorder.

ORGANIZATION SUPPORT FOR JUDGE W. N. RUNYON

Many Leaders Declare Themselves in Favor of Plainfielder as G. O. P. Congressional Candidate.

Offers of support and congratulations have kept Judge William N. Runyon's time occupied more than ever since the formal announcement of his candidacy for a congressional nomination was made by him yesterday afternoon through the public press. Already a movement is on foot here among the business men to organize a club to boom him for the Republican nomination. As predicted yesterday, the "organization" leaders throughout the district today announced that the judge would make an ideal candidate and that he would receive their support.

Republican County Chairman Frank H. Smith, who Charles N. Fowler, in the public announcement of his candidacy labelled an "echoing parrot" and insinuated that he handled 'the long green," was wired last night for his opinion. This was the telegram sent to Westerly, R. I., where he is spending his vacation: "Judge Runyon today announced his candidacy for Republican nomination for Congress. As Union county chairman, what have you to say." This is the prompt reply received early this morning:

"Heard of Runyon for Congress last week when I was in Plainfield. I found sentiment for him in other parts of the county. My opinion is that he would make a good man and would reflect credit on our district. He has marked ability, a sound education, is an eloquent speaker and a man of good judgment. Sometimes he has been opposed to me in matters of party policy, but I have always respected him. I don't know of a better man. He will help the party to win this fall if he is nominated. I will do everything I can to elect him."

State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morris county, stated to a reporter that a high class man should be the standard bearer of the Republican party in the Fifth district and that in his own opinion Judge Runyon measured up to the requirements. He said that it is essential that the party win the congressional fight this fall for President Taft would need strong men at Washington to help him carry out the Republican promises and policies.

"Judge Runyon is well known to us over here in Morris county," said Mr. Voorhees, "and I think we all agree that he is an efficient, capable and conscientious man. No, so far as I know, there is no man in Morris seeking the congressional nomination. We had hopes that James H. McGraw would announce himself but he is not in the best of health and has decided to spend the summer abroad recuperating. John D. Capstick would also have been a first rate man but he does not desire to be nominated. So far as I can learn there is no candidate over here. I consider Judge Runyon well qualified to serve as our congressman."

William Jeffery, president of the Plainfield Board of Trade, stated that he could only talk in his private capacity as a voter and exercising that privilege he desired to say:

"I think that Judge Runyon not only possesses every qualification for the office but he possesses rare ability. In my opinion, his candidacy should appeal to every voter, irrespective of party affiliations, and I believe that he will receive an overwhelming majority at the primaries. I am going to pull off my coat and work for him in all three counties."

A. E. Force, president of the Plainfield Merchants' Association, is enthusiastic over the announcement made by Judge Runyon. To a representative of this paper he said this morning:

"I tell you, you can't beat him. It made my heart glad to read the judge's public letter in the papers last night. I have talked to a whole lot of the business men and not one of them had anything but the best thing to say about the judge. Everybody seems to be for him. You ought to have seen the ovation he got when he appeared at the banquet last night. It was simply great. We want him nominated and we want him elected."

When asked for his opinion on Judge Runyon's candidacy, Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., chairman of the City Republican Committee, said today:

SOMERVILLE.

Rev. A. A. Pfansteihl, pastor of the Second Reformed Church, is camping at Lake Hopatcong for ten days with thirty of his boys from the intermediate department of the Sunday school. These boys are banded in a club called the Y. Y.'s. The party left in seven automobiles and are now in camp at Nolan's Point, on an elevation back of the Central Railroad station. The club is quartered in five tents and the camp is under splendid discipline. Six young men of the Bon Ami Club, composed of older men of the Sunday school, are acting as Dr. Pfansteihl's lieutenants, and are in charge of the tents. Interested mothers and women of the church are sending cakes and good things each morning to the boys. This is in addition to the many things which are being made by the camp cook. Dr. Pfansteihl held services in camp on Sunday, when there was a large attendance of visitors as well as all the club members.

The engagement is announced of John V. Hall, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Hall, of West Cliff street, and Miss Marion Price, daughter of Frank E. Price, of East Orange.

Mrs. John Fowler and children, of Florida, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Case, on Bridge street.

Mrs. Estelle Van Burne and Mrs. D. C. Sinclair and son, Ronald, have gone to Royalton, Vt., for the summer months.

Mrs. Henry P. Hoagland, of West Main street, is visiting her son, Dayton Hoagland and family, at Lake Hopatcong.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and family have gone to Spring Lake, where they expect to spend the summer.

Mrs. William Sutphen and Miss Isabel Whitenich are attending the School of Methods at Asbury Park.

Mrs. E. F. Luzon and daughter are spending two weeks in New York State and in Vermont.

Miss Annie Cole, of Asbury Park, is visiting Mrs. Alexander McWilliam, on South street.

Mrs. William Stockton Camner, Miss Cranmer and Miss Helen Case are at Harvey Cedars.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brokaw and children are spending a month at Lake Hopatcong.

Miss Lydie Garretson has returned from Virginia, where she spent two weeks.

Mrs. C. H. Bateman and children are spending a week at Asbury Park.

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Ziba Osmun, who was arrested for running a bus to New Market, Monday, was released by Recorder Campbell when arraigned yesterday. Mr. Osmun has not a license for a bus; but as he only did the work between New Market and Dunellen with a bus Monday for the celebration, sentence was suspended.

Clement Dixon, who figured in a fracas at New Market, on the Fourth of July, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday. His child died yesterday.

Boating on New Market lake yesterday attracted a large number of Plainfielders. The weather was ideal, and most of the boats were engaged.

Work is progressing on the foundation of the new building on North avenue to be erected by Walter Apgar.

The Common Council met in July session Tuesday night. Business of a routine nature was transacted.

Councilmen Richards and Berkheiser have completed auditing the books of Recorder Campbell.

The bank directors will meet Monday night.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Painting and improvements are being made on the home of Thomas Duffy, of this place.

Edward Norman, of Front street, visited in New Brunswick yesterday.

Improvements are being made on the First Baptist church here.

To Remove Paint and Ink.

Paint can be removed from glass by rubbing it with hot, strong vinegar. Stains on the hands can be removed by acetic acid or salts of lemon, and ink marks will soon yield to pumice stone.

To remove ink stains from linen, dip the articles in milk and let it soak for about two hours, then take out and wash with soap while the milk still remains on the spots of ink. This will remove any long-standing stain.

Mrs. Ernest Sharp, of Evergreen avenue, is sojourning at Portaupeck for the summer.

Strange Sight of Ants.

It was proved long ago that ants have the power of seeing the—to human beings—invisible rays of the ultra-violet portion of the spectrum. They fear the light for their larvae and when allowed choice between different degrees of light always carry them to the darkest place accessible. When given the choice between a compartment lighted with yellow light and one dark to human eyes, but under the actinic ray, the ants unhesitatingly choose the yellow light, showing that to their eyes it is darker than the other, to man invisible.

Always Wheat Trouble.

Wheat, corn, breadstuffs, the staff of life—this has always been the agony of humanity whenever it progressed into advanced civilization with dense populations. And along with the breadstuffs, of course, all farm products rose till the people, wherever on earth they were, groaned under the increased cost of living and cried in vain for relief.—Harper's Weekly.

Picture of Olden Times.

A most unique sight of old Boston must have been the celebration of the fourth anniversary of a society for "Promoting Industry and Frugality," when 300 young female spinsters decently dressed brought their spinning wheels to the common one afternoon and plied their homely craft, a female at each wheel, to the accompaniment of music and the delight of many spectators.

Purely Social.

Embarrassed preacher (reading the first chapter of Jonah, and making the best of the seventeenth verse)—And the Lord prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah; and Jonah was in the—er—a—and Jonah was in the—er—And the Lord prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah; and Jonah was in the society of the fish three days and three nights.—Life.

Wedding Anniversaries.

The different wedding anniversaries are as follows: First, paper; fifth, wooden; tenth, tin; fifteenth, crystal; twentieth, china; twenty-fifth, silver; fiftieth, gold; seventy-fifth diamond. The sixtieth is usually celebrated as the diamond wedding, as it falls to the lot of very few to live together for three-quarters of a century.

To Clarify Rainwater.

To clarify the cloudy rainwater and render it fit for washing and household purposes, measure two ounces of powdered alum and two ounces of borax, for each barrel, and add it to the water. In a few hours the sediment will settle, and the water will be clarified and fit for use.

Inconsistency.

A lazy man will go up to the lakes for the summer and claim that he has not had time to send even a picture postcard to dear friends at home, and yet he will go out, day after day, and drop a line to fishes who love him not.

Discretion in Speech Needed.

"There's one thing we will have to change if these ladies who wish to vote have their way," said Senator Sorghum. "What is that?" "We'll have to quit talking about 'the wisdom of the plain people.'"

Banking Nations.

France, like England, is a great lending country. It has an enormous accumulation of wealth, and uses it to finance less affluent foreigners, who return annually a large income to French bankers and investors.

Women to Blame.

Women are blamed by a Brooklyn preacher for the high divorce rate. We understand that they also are to be blamed for most of the marriages.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Diplomacy.

The wife of a man who came home late insisted upon a reason. "When I go out without you," he said, "I do not enjoy myself half as much and it takes me twice as long."—Success Magazine.

The Philosopher of Folly.

"We waste lots of time," says the Philosopher of Folly, "doing things before they are started, and then doing doing them again after they are done."

Lazy Man's Tribulations.

"De lazy man," said Uncle Eben, "tries to save trouble an' merely succeeds in savin' it up so's to git it in a bunch."

Pretty Painful.

"What selection is that the orchestra just finished?" "I don't know. Sounded to me like neuralgia expressed in music."

Uncle Ezra Says:

"The chief reason thet some folks don't hatch out a big scheme is becuz they set on it too long."—Boston Herald.

Slow Growth of Forests.

The annual growth of the forests of the United States is not more than 12 cubic feet an acre.

JULY CLEARANCE SALE

We Have Inaugurated the Greatest Stock Reductions and Price Pruning Event. Attend.

The price axe has dropped—leaving in its course a stupendous array of shattered, cut and chipped off costs on all lines of Summer goods. Everything must go—it is clearance time throughout the store. Not a few bargains here and there, but a huge comprehensibe price reduction affecting all departments.

Freely and deeply we have pared the prices, spurred by our determination to completely clean the decks—disregarding cost and profit is the sole purpose of effecting a final clearance of all Summer goods. GOLF.

International golf of a nature hitherto unknown in this country, unless the visit of the Oxford-Cambridge team in 1903 be excepted, is practically a certainty for next season. This time the invading forces will represent Australia, and they will be headed by Dr. F. G. Brathwaite, the American Vice-Consul, who will act in the capacity of manager. In addition to the golfers there will be at least two lawn tennis players in the party.

There has been considerable correspondence between the two countries, and a warm welcome for the visitors is assured. The United States Golf Association was communicated with, and Robert C. Watson, the secretary, has written Dr. Brathwaite suggesting that the Australians compete against an American team the week immediately preceding the amateur championship tournament of 1911. That this proposal will meet with favor there can be no doubt, for Dr. Braithwaite has written to know when and where next year's fixture will be held.

The plan thus far mapped out is for a team to visit this country early next summer and tour America from coast to coast, taking part in team matches and tournaments, but arranging the schedule so as to take in both the amateur and open championships. The personnel of the Australian team as made up at present consists of eight golfers and two lawn tennis players, but it is possible that this number may be increased.

Prominent among the visitors will be Michael Scott, the amateur champion of Australia, and open champion of New South Wales and Victoria. He is a brother of O. Scott, who has been runner-up in the amateur championship tournament of Great Britain. Next on the list is Clyde Pearce, who has been both open and amateur title holder of Australia.

Then there is the sensational Felstead, a left-handed golfer, who recently broke the record for the course of the Royal Melbourne Club. Last year Felstead won the open championship tournament of Australia, beating all the professionals. Another equally well known golfer booked for the trip is Duncan, five times champion of New Zealand and runner-up in the Australian amateur tournament in 1908.

Bruce Pearce, the youthful phenomenon of many titles, also enjoys an international reputation. This eighteen-year-old lad, who will be a member of the team, is champion of Tasmania and South Australia, and altogether he holds no less than thirteen minor championship titles.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Brotherhood of the First M. E. church will not meet again until September.

"Quit You Like Men, Be Strong," was the subject of the prayer meeting at the Temple Baptist church, last night.

Rev. J. O. MvKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, conducted the prayer meeting at the chapel last night. The Men's Association was in charge.

The Boys' Battalion of the First Baptist church will meet on the church lawn tomorrow night for its weekly drill. Any young man interested is invited to join the company.

One hundred members and attendants of the Congregational church are now out of town enjoying a summer vacation. This fact has had an appreciable effect on the attendance at the services.

HURT AT RAILROAD CROSSING.

Abram S. Case, a leading citizen of Flemington, was struck and seriously injured at a grade crossing on the Lehigh alley Railroad near Pennington Junction Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Case saw a fast express approaching when he was within a few feet of the tracks. He quickly turned the horse he was driving, but the engine struck the animal, killing it almost instantly and wrecking the wagon.

Mr. Case was hurled many feet. One of his arms was broken and he was cut and bruised about the face. He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition and removed to his home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Phillips, of Rockview Terrace, are at Racquette Lake, N. Y.

HERE AND THERE.

Central Park in New York cannot claim to have all the tame squirrels in the country and get away with it. Up on Norwood avenue for the past two weeks a pair of gray squirrels have become so tame that they will come from the trees and eat peanuts from the hands of some of the children of the neighborhood. Last night the little animals gave an exhibition of sagacity seldom seen. Mamma Squirrel remained hidden in the hedge of the Edgerton estate while papa squirrel sought out the children and coaxed for nuts. Seated on the steps of a stoop across the avenue were three little girls each of whom held a peanut in her hand. Cautiously and with furtive glances up and down the street on the lookout for automobiles, Mr. Squirrel crossed the street, accepted the proffered peanut and scampered back to the hedge where the morsel was duly turned over to his waiting spouse. This performance was repeated until all the peanuts were gone. The pair were then seen to climb one of the nearby firs and disappear in their nest. Passersby did not seem to cause them any apprehension.

SUPPORT FOR RUNYON

"Personally I regard Judge Runyon as a strong man and a vote-getter. He should prove acceptable to all and his candidacy I really believe will have the effect of ending any factional difference. I am elated over the judge's announcement, for with him the Republican party here should sweep the city—he's the strongest man that could be named so far as Plainfield is concerned and I believe this is true in Union county."

"There is no one I would rather see run for Congress than Judge Runyon, of Plainfield," said Captain Robert Kirkland, of Elizabeth, the sheriff of Union county. "He is a good, capable man and without a particle of doubt he will get the nomination. The judge is a crackajack candidate and I am sure he will make a good run."

Prosecutor Addison C. Swift, of Elizabeth, said: "The judge is a most capable man and is peculiarly fitted for Congress. He is an excellent candidate and I am sure the party will give him liberal support."

"Farmer-Orator" James E. Martine greeted Judge Runyon this morning and told him how he had watched his career and was overjoyed to hear of his announcement.

"Judge, I want to say to you," said Mr. Martine, in the presence of a Daily Press reporter, "that I am darned glad to hear the news. I never did take any stock in that man Fowler. Charlie Fowler, I believe is a fakir. You're an honest fellow, a conscientious fellow, a clean fellow. It is too darned bad that you are not a Democrat. You ought to be one. I always give the devil his due and that is why I give the Republican 'machine' its due for approving of Will Runyon. You're the strongest man that band of pirates could agree upon. I say this, although Bill, I won't vote for you, as much as I admire you."

Proctor's Fine Bill.

The Lamberti Trio will appear today at Proctor's theatre in a musical sketch, "A Symphony at Home," which is an artistic offering full of music, mirth and melody. Little Miss Lamberti is the feature of the act. Her mother is an accomplished pianist, while her father plays the 'cello in a delightful manner. "Bargains," presented by Ed. & May Woodward is a good comedy satire full of songs and clever talk. Gates & Blake, in "The Hebrew and the Traveling Man," are very funny Jewish comedians. Al Leonhardt, the comedy juggler in the dress suit, is clever. Go to Proctor's and be as cool as a cucumber.

NEW SLIPPER TRIMMINGS.

Pumps and slippers owe much of their effect to their bows, buckles or rosettes.

For evening wear the favorite slipper adornment is the large rhinestone or steel cut buckle. Antique gold and silver buckles are also turned to account for footgear.

Another stylish shoe buckle is an oval affair of seed pearls. These are particularly fashionable when worn with belt and neck buckle to match ornaments on the hair ribbon.

The typical shoe decoration is a stiff bow of ribbon. These must be fresh and immaculate, therefore frequently renewed. While they can be bought at any shoe store, it is often more convenient to make them.

Ribbon especially for these bows should be kept on hand for an emergency. Heavy black and white grosgrain or ribbed, one and one-eighth inches wide, is the best choice. Black velvet, the same width and the next size wider, is also used. Ask for shoe-bow quality.

A half yard of ribbon is needed for one set of bows. Cut into two pieces four and one half inches long and two pieces three inches long.

Fold the longer piece into a stiff looped bow and sew the ends flatly together. Make a length-wise fold in the shorter piece and pass over the centre of the looped bow. Do not draw in, but fasten neatly at back in a flat seam overcast together.

Sew the bow firmly to the slipper. Many girls use smal safety pins for this purpose, but sewing is neater and more secure. If the foot is large it is well to catch the loop flat on ends, as well as in the middle.

Though stiff slipper trimming is in first favor, many think fluffy rosettes decrease the apparent size of the foot. These are made of ribbon, chiffon or lace. The two former match the color of the slipper.

A rosette for the white satin slippers of the June bride can be made of inch-wide lace. Valenciennes, Spanish, narrow princess or Mechlin, all are suitable. Two yards of lace are needed for the ordinary sized slipper.

Divid the lace into equal parts, one for each rosette. Gather along the upper edge with a strong silk thread or buttonhole twist. Fasten into a seven and a half-inch length, then coil into a rosette. Sew firmly at back to hold in place, or fasten to a small round of lawn.

These rosettes are worn plain, or can have a bit of orange blossom showing from the centre. Occasionally lace dyed to match colored slippers is used instead of chiffon for rosettes. This is less perishable, but not so smart.

Chiffon rosettes are made from double width chiffon of good quality. Half the width is used for each rosette and the depth should be five inches.

Turn in the raw edges of the chiffon and baste them together in centre of wrong side. Fold over to make the strip look like a double tuck, one slightly deeper than the other. Gather along upper edge with buttonhole twist, fasten in a seven-inch length and coil into a rosette.

Sew in place at the back, or, if easier, make the rosette on a tiny buckram foundation.

DAINTY COOKERY.

Many dishes which are dainty and at the same time nutricious are finding their way into the household menu. They are certainly more appreciated than the results of hasty dives into the mysteries of cookery which only a chef can unravel.

For instance consider this risetto made as follows:

Fry a small spring carrot, a small onion, a piece of celery and two shallots (minced fine) in about three tablespoonfuls of good olive oil till browned. Add a quarter of a pound of Patna rice, which has been well washed, cooked in salt water for about eight minutes and strained. After adding the rice cook a few minutes longer, then add three-quarters of a pint of good stock, season it well with salt and pepper and boil for ten minutes, stirring frequently. Add two fresh tomatoes, peeled and cut into small slices, boil again for five minutes and then sprinkle in two ounces of grated cheese. Stir all the ingredients together, put the lid on the pan and draw it away from the fire. After standing two or three minutes pour the risetto into a hot dish and serve. A couple of anchovies washed and boned and rubbed through a seive, with an ounce of butter, are an improvement, but, when anchovies are added less salt is required.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

Lovely scarfs are fashioned from the Persian bordered chiffons and marquisettes combined with marabou.

The tones known as natural and the white feathery stuff combine prettily with the fragile fabrics.

In using the rpinted materials only a border of the marabou is necessary for good effect, while when a solid color forms the foundation a third strip must be added through the centre of the scarf. Otherwise the little wrap may look skimpy and lack character.

Another pretty idea in scarfs is to place two different colors over each other and then edge all round with the marabou.

The "umbrella" is the newest fad in shoulder shawls. These are circular in shape and of a generous size, though extremely light in weight because the wool is fine and the design of the crochet is light and lacy. They are serviceable as a light protection for the shoulders when staying in the mountains or strolling on the beach.

They come in black, white, cardinal and the chinchilla grays at $3.50 each, but orders will be taken for any color combination.

NEW HAT POINTS.

One of the new French hats shows around the upper—instead of the under—edge of the brim a quilling of taffeta with a flat bow in the front, a little to the left.

Large velvet flowers, especially such blossoms as daisies and other flat-petaled blooms, are chic. Often these are in blues or greens instead of the natural color.

The new high toques are fashionable with fine straw for the puffed top and rough, flat straw for the portion next to the face. A loose, wide band of velvet conceals the union of the two varieties.

Another of these toques is trimmed simply with a large Asatian or windmill bow of velvet or changeable taffeta in black.

Still a third toque of black, faced with white satin, has at its left an upstanding cockade, oblong in shape and covered with three vertical rows of accordion-pleated white satin.

A pretty fad is the trimming of a hat with artificial flowers in season, and then wearing it with a boquet of the natural flowers. This is especially charming in the less usual flowers but it is effective also with such as roses and violets.

Straw buttons, large and round, and in natural-colored or otherwise tinted straw, are the latest for hat decoration. Straw buckles are also fashionable, but in all sorts of odd and queer shapes instead of the common straw.

CRETONNE SLIPPERS.

Cretonne comes to the rescue once more, offering a cheap and pretty material for the bedroom slipper.

They are built upon a firm foundation—one of the best pairs of slipper soles that come—care being taken not to have them the least bit too large.

No pattern will be required by the ordinary expert seamstress if she will plant the foot securely on the sole and fit a deep vamp of cretonne over the front of the foot, covering toes and instep.

At its upper edge, across the instep, a casing conceals the elastic that holds the slipper more firmly, and on the centre front there is placed a small, close bow of three-inch ribbon.

Round the back section of the leather sole there is a binding of the same ribbon in narrower widths; this is sewed on by hand over the usual tape-covered edge.

The variation in cretonne coloring makes it possible to match either the hangings of the room or the negligee, which last is even better.

Way to Serve Them.

He—Do you know how to serve mushrooms?

She—Yes; on toast.

"And do you know how to serve toadstools?"

"Yes, leave 'em alone."—Yonkers Statesman.

MUSLIN AND CHIFFONS.

Cheap and dainty muslins, tinted or figured, are combined this year with chiffon instead of lace.

If lace is used it is in the form of plaited frills on neck and sleeves.

Embroideries this year are not so much in evidence—striking effects as to color and material being sought for instead.

Shoulder wraps of silk and marabout continue in favor. Decidedly handsome ones are all marabout—the centre being white—edged with a double row of dark brown.

These wraps are now made in all materials and all degrees of elegance. One of the daintiest seen this season, evidently intended for boudoir wear, was of white crepe de chine, scalloped on the edges and embroidered in a buttonhole stitch.

Heard Them.

"If the walls of your flat were so thin why didn't you move?"

"We did, and the other tenents complained that my wife was always dropping pins on the floor."—Harper's Bazar.

Honey's Many Virtues.

"Honey, one of the most nutritious and delicate of foods, should be eaten more than it is," writes a cooking expert. "Bought in the comb, it is bound to be unadulterated, and will keep one free from sore throat and bronchial troubles. I know a number of women who use honey as a cosmetic. They apply it to the skin, rub it in well, then wash it off with hot water. The result is a finer-textured complexion, a glowing color, a young, fresh look."

Mesopotamia to Boom.

Egypt, whose climate in winter is quite similar to that of Mesopotamia, is the goal each season of vast numbers of tourists and other visitors. This country of Mesopotamia and Babylonia is not less interesting from the view point of antiquarians and archeologists, while to the business man and capitalist it offers even more of interest, for it is apparently just on the verge of tremendous commercial developments.

New York's Truancy Problem.

Truancy is on the increase in New York city, and the board of education complains of the indifference of parents. About 120 parents) are taken before the city magistrate each month for violating the law. The largest number are from among the Italians, where there are the most children, and the next highest number comes from native born parents.

His One Chance.

The popular opinion of a critic is of one who has not learned any science or succeeded in any art, and is therefore empowered to sit in judgment on those who have. "Can you sing?" asked the maestro of the aspiring pupil. "No!" "Can you play?" "No!" "Then I don't see anything for you but to teach music."

Not to Be Believed.

"The court does not see the necessity for according you time to speak on behalf of your client, since he has formally confessed his guilt." "Only a moment, your honor," insisted the lawyer. "I only want to call your attention to the fact that my client is an awful liar."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Boss of the Place.

"Yes," said the determined man, "when that waiter resented the smallness of my tip I took the case to the proprietor of the restaurant." "And what did the proprietor do?" "He gave the waiter some money out of his own pocket and apologized to him for having such a customer."

Flattering!

Women, according to a German philosopher, are the poetry of the world, in the same sense as the stars are the poetry of heaven. Clear, light giving, harmonious, they are terrestrial planets that rule the destinies of mankind.—Woman's Life.

Armor.

"Do you wear glasses because your eyes are defective or because you think they add to your appearance?" asked the outspoken woman. "For neither reason," replied the patient man. "I wear them to protect my eyes from hat pins."

Live Now.

Don't spend all your time getting ready to live, but "live now!" There will never be a time when you will be any nearer ready. The mere fact that you are aiming in the right direction proves it.

Note for the Girls.

Statistics show that baldness and higher education go together. In other words, the woman with a haystack of hair on her head doesn't know as much as the woman with a coiffure of doorknob size.—Atchison Globe.

A Dilemma.

"A pessimist never seems to have a good time?" "How can he? All the comfort he can possibly get out of life is hoping that his opinions are entirely erroneous."

Childhood's Early Years.

Sometimes children are sent to school to get rid of them; but the ideal is that the first seven years of the child should be spent at the mother's knee.

Foxy Dipps.

"What a queer title Dipps has given his new novel; he calls it 'Solid Cement.'" "Not so queer when you come to think of it." "How's that?" "It makes the best cellar."

On with the Dance.

She—"I'm afraid I'm tiring you rather." He—"Oh, not at all. I used to be attendant to the elephant house at the zoo."—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

The End.

When there is nothing left for a man to be enthusiastic over, he might as well be dead.

Bury and Forget.

Every man should keep a fair size cemetery in which to bury the faults of his friends.—Beecher.

Moonlight During the Arctic Night.

Truth Must Be Instilled.

It should not be necessary to teach a child to tell the truth; but it is.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Albert, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert MacCauley, who was bitten by a mad dog, Monday of last week, is taking the Pasteur treatment, being taken into New York daily.

On account of Monday being the Fourth of July, the monthly meeting of the B. & E. Company, which fell on that date was postponed until Monday night of the coming week.

The Fanwood Realty Co. will erect an office building on the corner of Park avenue and the trolley within the near future. The building will be of concrete blocks, one story high.

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Carrona, of Stanbury avenue, have been entertaining relatives from Bridgeport, Conn.

Miss Anna Ryan, who has been visiting Miss Sadie Lee, of Front street, has returned to her home at Dunellen.

Mrs. James Pope, of Grant avenue, spent yesterday with her mother, Mrs. John A. Marsh, of Park avenue.

The Pessimistic Argument.

"Here's an Alabama man, 97 years of age, says he has eaten hot biscuits regularly all his life," said the optimist.

"Oh, well," replied the pessimist, "just see how much older he would have been if he hadn't eaten hot biscuits."—Yonkers Statesman.

The small son of John Kesslar was knocked down yesterday and bitten by a savage dog at Millville.

Ann Starr, an aunt of Judge Lewis Starr, of Woodbury, was found dead in bed yesterday by the nurse. She was seventy-three years old.

Robert Wood and Thomas Corson, Millville trolley motormen, caught a seventy-pound sea turtle on a hook and line in Delaware Bay Monday.

Rev. Henry J. Zelly, president, of Trenton, has announced that the South Jersey Campmeeting Association's camp will open July 14 and close on July 25.

Taking poison in mistake for medicine, Andy Marsh, fifty-three years old, of 4 Park place, Camden, was taken to Cooper Hospital last night, where he soon recovered.

While petting a horse yesterday afternoon in Camden, Robt. Tweedy, fifty years old, of 184 North Thirty-fifth street, was bitten on the nose. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

For abusing his wife because she objected to him throwing his daughter and her little one in the street, George Fields, of 3530 Faragut avenue, was sent to jail for a month from the Camden police court yesterday.

T. A. Gardner, a pioneer settler and former postmaster of South Vineland, is in the hospital critically ill with lockjaw. A short time since he had a finger mashed in a corn sheller and then had the finger amputated.

The body of Edwin Cooper, who was drowned at Vineland, Monday, was recovered last night and viewed by Coroner Fitch, of Salem County. The young man was the only son of W. E. Cooper, of Vineland.

The family dog of Councilman Theodore F. Burkett, of Woodbury, went mad yesterday and created havoc in the store. It dashed around, snapping and frothing until it was finally driven to the street and was killed.

R. Harrigon's grocery wagon was side-swiped yesterday afternoon at Clayton avenue crossing by the Atlantic City express, the horse became frightened and dashed ahead, saving its owner's life. The train grazed the rear wheels, sliding the wagon from the track.

Thieves broke into the cold storage plant of Thomas F. Mayhew, Millville, Monday night and stole a half barrel of beer. The empty keg was found on the river bank yesterday and a half dozen men, unable to walk, were carted to jail to answer for the robbery.

Suffering from a fracture of the right arm and other injuries caused by a bundle of licorice falling on him at the licorice works, foot of Jefferson avenue, Camden, yesterday, Ernest Jackson, twenty-one years old, of 1736 South Seventh street, was treated at Cooper Hospital.

After a supposed mad dog almost tore the clothing from the five year old son of Ralph Davis, of Millville, and severely bit the child, a score of men and boys gave chase, and Nelson Morgan shot the beast. City Marshal Biggs sent the head of the dog to the tSate Board of Health for examination.

Admitting that he split his wife's lip with a blow because she told him to go to work, William Hickman, of 430 Liberty street, was committed to jail in default of $300 bail by Justice of the Peace Thompson in Camden yesterday. He pleaded with his wife to withdraw the charge, but without avail.

Knocked almost senseless by a blow on the jaw while on his way home in citizen's clothes in Camden yesterday, Policeman Greenan was a very much surprised man until Jacob Hammer explained that it was all a mistake. In the police court Hammer said he had been assaulted by two men in such a rough manner that one of his eyes was closed. He thought Greenan was one of his assailants and let loose in pugilistic fashion. Sentence was suspended.

DEMOCRATS OUTING.

Councilman George H. Schlotterer was elected chairman of the committee arranging the fifteenth annual outing of the Democratic City Committee of Elizabeth when the organization meeting was held at Democratic headquarters in that city. The other members of the committee are: Fred Zior, treasurer; John H. R. Corbet, sergeant-at-arms; John J. Ryan, James L. Butler, John J. Heck, Hugh F. Boyle, Edward A. FORT'S HEAD BREAKS A BATHTUB FAUCET.

"I've been working for the governor," said the plumber. "I been fixin' his bathtub. It was broke. The faucet was busted. It was broke sharp off. And I said to the governor, 'How on airth did you break off that faucet?' And he said, 'I hit it.' And I said, 'How'd you hit it?' And he said, 'I hit it with my head!' And I said, 'Did you knock that faucet off with your head, because if you did you must have hurt yourself awful?' And he said, 'Well, I was takin' a bath and I slipped and fell, and I hit the faucet with my head, and it broke off—the faucet, I mean.' And says I, 'Didn't it hurt your head?' And he says, 'No, it didn't. I don't know why, but somehow it didn't.'

"Then I started to go away, having fixed the faucet which had been broken off, and the governor, he says, 'Now don't you go and tell that t oanybody, because there are some fools that don't like me and they'll put it in the papers, and folk'll laugh and say my head's so hard it'd break a faucet.' And I told him I wouldn't say a word about it, and I won't. It was up to his house at Spring Lake, but, my, I did laugh, no mistake, to think of Governor Fort knockin' off a faucet with his head and not mindin' it a bit. He's got a good head all right, I tell you. But don't mention it."

PROBE IN TO THE RATES OF JERSEY ROADS, JULY 12

Washington, D. C., July 6.—Orders were issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday providing for a consideration on July 12 of the recent advances in commutation passenger fares out of New York City. The hearing will be held at the Commission's offices in this city. The defendants in the proceeding are the Erie, New York Central, Central of New Jersey, Philadelphia & Reading, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and Lehigh Valley Railroads, all of which operate out of New York city into or through New Jersey.

The important question to be determined is the jurisdiction of the Commission over commutation rates, and the arguments probably will be directed to that point particularly.

WITH MANICURE SCISSORS.

The small curved scissors is an invaluable little implement in the hands of the all-around capable woman. It belongs to the manicure tray.

We all know of its use as a stencil cutter, and it will prove equally necessary for the cutting out of embroidery, whether machine or hand made, and for the cutting away of material under laces to make them transparent.

Theer are curved lines in sewing that will be more safely cut out and small spaces into which no other scissors will so successfully get as the manicure blade.

A CENTRAL FASTENING.

To fasten the summer frock down the very centre of the back, as it should always be fastened if the best effect is to be got, reverse the old theory of plackets, which demanded a broad hem on top and a narrower one beneath.

Make now a one-inch hem on the left side at the back, and make a half-inch hem on the right side. Draw a line of basting thread down the centre of the wider hem, and to this line lap the right side half-inch hem.

Use either buttons and loops or hooks and eyes, and the fastening will be absolutely in the centre of the back.

Smart Bathing-Slippers.

"No longer are bathing-slippers hideous, unshapely things," says Grace Margaret Gould in Woman's Home Companion for July. "They are still made of canvas and sometimes of satin, but they are cut on trim plump lines and have well-cut soles of cork. They are trimmed, too, with a little frill of ribbon or tape at the instep curve and have long ribbons or tapes which lace across the instep and around the ankle in a truly sandal style, setting off a pretty ankle in a most charming manner, and concealing the defects of a homely one in a surprisingly simple way. These bathing-slippers of canvas can be had for only forty-eight cents, while those of satin cost $1.50. They come in black and white."

Commuters Lose Point.

The Board of Public Utility Commission was advised in an opinion by Attorney General Wilson yesterday that proceedings to prevent the Erie and the Susquehanna railroads from raising their commutation rates could not be successfully maintained in the Court of Chancery. The Commission recently gave a hearing to determine whether a lease between the roads authorized by an act of the Legislature in 1898 was still in force. Counsel for the railroads argued that it was not, and that therefore the Commission could not enforce a provision of the act of 1898 prohibiting any raise in rates.

Made to wear with the plainest of slip-like dresses, it now is so put together that it is ornamental, yoke as well as bib, in very fact the bib's the thing and holds all the embroidery baby needs at one time.

Tiny forget-me-nots in little perpendicular rows slope from the lower edge upward towards the neck opening, and between the rows are placed ornamental strips of narrow Valenciennes insertion. Round the extreme edge is a frill of lace to match the insertion, and this is joined to the bib by beading.

The shape of this neat bit of apparel is that of a rounded yoke cut deeper in the front, and the material handkerchief-linen lined, when all is finished, with a second layer like the top.

Fred Dixon, of West Sixth street, has returned from an extended business trip in the west for the Pond Machine Tool Company.

True Stuff.

"Here's a good one for your collyume," burbled a man who broke in the door of our office yesterday. "I went to a bankwet the other night. There were four wine glasses at my plate, but when I looked at the menu I couldn't find a wine. So I asked the waiter. He says: 'The menu is to take home to your wife. The glasses will be in use, all right.' Gee! Ain't this a good old world!"

In Youth and Age.

He that would pass the latter part of life with honor and decency must, when he is young, consider that he shall one day be old; and remember, when he is old, that he has once been young. In youth he must lay up knowledge for his support when his powers of acting shall forsake him; and in age forbear to animadvert with rigor on faults which experience only can correct.—Dr. Johnson.

Male Friendship.

Remarks have been made lately as regards the apparent decline of close personal friendships between men. Perhaps something in our busy modern life accounts for our lower note in masculine friendships. Perhaps, too, much that belonged to interchanges between man and man, is now possible between woman and man as equals.

Had No Opinion.

An attorney said to an Irishman, his client: "Why don't you pay me that money, Mr. Mulrooney?" "Why, faith, because I do not owe it to you." "Not owe it to me? Yes, you do. It's for the opinion you had of me." "That's a good un, indeed," rejoined Pat, "when I never had any opinion of you in all of my life."

China's Destructive River.

The Hoang-ho, the "Yellow river," of China, is probably the most destructive of rivers. In one flood it is believed to have killed 1,300,000 persons. It cut a new channel to the sea through hundreds of miles of densely populated country and swept away more than 1,000 villages.

In the vicinity of Concepcion and Taltahuano, Chile, there are more than 80,000,000 cubic meters of soft coal of fair quality within an area of 80,000 square meters, or about 30.7 square miles. The vein is 3.5 meters, or about 11.5 feet thick.

For Millionaires Only

"When" said the man who writes pieces for magazines and things, "by some strange and unprecedented chance I had got hold of a matter of $350 all at one and the same time it looked big to me. By an even more curious chance there wasn't anything that I really needed to do with the money, so I decided that I'd bank it.

"Now I knew in a general way that in order to put money in a bank you've got to be known and give your pedigree and look respectable and all that, and I hated to approach a bank without any sort of credentials. Therefore I went to the business manager of a certain magazine which occasionally prints pieces that I write and asked him what I'd better do.

"'Simplest thing in the world,' said he. 'I'll give you a note to our bank.'

"That sounded fine to me. He wrote me the note and I started for the bank a good deal tickled over how easy the little depositing proceeding had been made.

"The bank to which I had the note is in Wall street. I asked the uniformed man who was standing around where I'd find the receiving teller's window, and he pointed that window out to me. I got into line and watched the teller take in money.

"I must own that I was a bit stalled to note the great size of some of the deposits he was receiving. Why, fellows were giving the money to him by the satchelful. But I had my note in my pocket, and I remained complacent enough with that consciousness.

"When I reached the receiving teller I passed in my note, and the receiving teller, a decidedly civil young man, opened it and read it. Then he looked at me, after which he read the note again, this time with a sort of puzzled expression on his countenance. I didn't see why the receiving teller should be puzzled over such a simple matter. But puzzled he seemed. He rang a bell and the uniformed man who'd directed me to that window appeared.

"'Show this gentleman to the office of the cashier,' said the receiving teller to the uniformed man, at the same time regarding me with a pleasant smile; and the uniformed man led me down the passageway and took me behind a railing where there was a handsome gray-haired gentleman sitting at a desk.

"The handsome gray-haired gentleman received me cordially and invited me to be seated. I handed him my note, which the receiving teller had returned to me, and he leaned back in his chair and read it carefully. Then he, too, looked puzzled after he'd read the note a second time. Then he looked at me pleasantly over the tops of his spectacles.

"'Ahem!' said the handsome gray-haired gentleman, not disagreeably, but in a nice, bankerlike way. 'Might I—er—inquire, Mr. Penphist, without seeming to be unduly inquisitive, as to how—er—large a—er—balance you would usually be carrying?'

"Well, that was a civil enough question—nothing inquisitive about it.

"'Why, sir,' I said to the handsome gray-haired gentleman, 'I am opening an account with a matter of some $350, but I shall no doubt make some additions to that within the next few months, and probably I shall carry a balance of—well, say, $500 or $600 right along.'

"The kindly cashier with the gray hair fairly beamed upon me.

"'Er—just so, just so,' said he twiddling his thumbs. 'We feel complimented, Mr. Penphist, we really do, that you should have come to us. And it is unfortunate—er—really unfortunate that we are so utterly lacking in facilities for taking care of accounts of such a character.

"'You see, Mr. Penphist, our institution is of—er—a sort of special character. It is used as a depositary by— Well, perhaps I should put it in a more clear manner. I say to you quite in confidence, you understand, Mr. Penphist, but we have only 1,600 depositors on our books, and these 1,600 depositors' aggregate balances amount all the time to a matter of one hundred and ten millions of dollars.'

"Well, that was about enough. I saw the light then. I'd drifted into a millionaire's bank on the careless credentials of a business manager who'd written me that note no doubt in a thoughtless mood.

"The gray-haired cashier acted bully about it. He recommended a fine bank to me—one that combines perfect responsibility with the necessary facilities for handling accounts like—er—yours, Mr. Penphist," he added.

"For all the cashier's niceness I walked out of there into the cold gray light of Wall street feeling like a good deal of a human caterpillar.

"I didn't go to the bank recommended to me by the cashier. Didn't have the nerve to visit any more banks. I've got $62 left now of the $350, but I'm going to use that as a nest egg, and maybe some day even yet, I'll have a bank account."

How and Why the Club Plan Makes It Easy to Buy Furniture

DURING THE GREAT JULY SALE

There are those who, while not possessing much in the way of tangible assets, owning no property, perhaps, preferring that others should bear that burden, like to have well-furnished homes, and who take as much pride in them as the wealthiest people.

These are those who, while not having much money in hand, have a generous and steady income which is as sure as anything earthly can be.

Situated as they are it is somewhat difficult for these people to secure a credit account, and if they could they would not be able to pay in thirty days, as charge customers are expected to pay, for all they might wish to buy when furnishing a home.

It is to these people that our Household Club Plan appeals most strongly, because it enables them to buy the bigger and more costly furnishings at the lowest cash price and to arrange for the payment according to their ability to pay.

This is not an instalment plan as instalment plans are generally known, and "anybody's" credit is not good. Only worthy persons are entitled to club membership and they are not taxed exorbitant prices to cover the losses occasioned by selling indiscriminately as instalment houses do. It is not a plan to make more profits on goods, but to make the buying easier for you, and thus to broaden our field of operations.

Anyone who can make it plain to us that they are steadily employed, that they are sober and industrious, can participate in our Club Plan. The initiation fee is nominal and depends upon the amount you wish to buy.

Upon the payment of this fee you are entitled to purchase goods up to a certain amount at our regular cash prices, which are all plainly marked, and at the time of purchase you are expected to pay one-tenth of the entire bill. For instance, on $100 worth of goods you pay us $10.

After that you may pay by the week or month, as suits best, whatever amounts are agreed upon. You pay no interest—not a cent of it.

We confine club accounts to the purchase of larger articles, such as Furniture, Carpets, Rugs, Upholsteries, Pictures, Sewing Machines, Refrigerators, Stoves, Baby Carriages and Talking Machines—the smaller articles in the general lines of dry goods and wearing apparel not being included in the plan.

The Club Plan is particularly advantageous to young folks just going to housekeeping, as it enables them to start in completely furnished without suffering from the financial strain that usually comes at this period of life.

There are no embarrassing features in our Club Plan—no publicity, no unexpected demands, no harsh treatment whatever. We have thousands already enrolled in our clubs and the scheme is working out to the entire satisfaction of both our patrons and ourselves—every courtesy being extended to the club members that is extended to customers running the biggest regular accounts. We invite all steady going people to take advantage of the Club Plan of buying furnishings for the home.

In Cromwell's Time

By FRANK H. SWEET

'Twas the 5th of September, '51, as I rode up the Newbury road. It seemed that years rather than a few days, had passed since I fought with my liege on ill-fated Worcester field. And now in the bitter anguish of my heart, I cursed the fates that had made Cromwell ruler of England, and my king an exile from his land.

Thus ran my thoughts, when a sudden scream came from the road behind.

Hastily tightening my armor, I wheeled my horse and waited. Around a bend in the road came two men, and betwixt them a maid, quite sad and forlorn. The sight of their Puritanic garb set the blood tingling in my veins.

"Whence came you, sir?" demanded he who appeared to be in command; "you look jaded."

"Verily, Master Rowe," sneered the other, casting a suspicious glance at me, "he seems surely spent, as though he had ridden from afar, from Worcester field."

But I cared not to disclose myself so early in the play, and so turned to them with a light laugh.

"Softly, softly, Master Rowe," I answered, "all in good time. But whence take you the maid?"

"She hath a ribald tongue, even for a royalist, and dost this night, with the help of God, lodge in Newbury jail," he answered.

Mechanically I gave my name in answer to their questioning glances, for I was looking at the maid, from the dainty poise of her head to the modest show of ankle 'neath her gown. Already I knew my heart was no longer my own, and the wistful look she bent on me searched out my very soul.

Awhile I sat in silence. Then I threw myself from my horse and walked past them, they making reluctant way for me.

"What name, child?" I asked.

"Margaret Grant, sir," she answered prettily, dropping me a courtsey. Then, with a sudden defiance: "I believe in my king—"

"Say no more, child," I interrupted; "and care you to go to Newbury?"

"Nay," she made answer, drawing a pace nearer me. 'Twas entirely unlooked for, this act of confidence, and it set the red blood dancing merrily in my veins.

"Then," quoth I, unsheathing my sword, "with the help of God you shall not go."

In an instant the two had drawn.

"Have a care," blustered one Puritan, "thou art resisting the lord general, Master Rue."

"'Tis no new sensation," I answered lightly. "'Twas but yesterday I resisted him at Worcester field."

The rogue went white to the lips at my words, and drew back a step. But Master Rowe, made of sterner stuff, without more ado, faced me.

'Twas a bout quite handily waged. Thrice he foiled me, but on the fourth attempt I found him, and his life went out in a spasm of agony.

'Twas scarce done when the second Puritan, who, perchance, had been but biding his time, sprang at me. The maid's frightened cry was my warning, and I turned in time to receive his onset. At last he rolled into the road by the side of his fellow knave.

'Twas but the work of a moment to seize Margaret around the waist and swing her into the saddle before me. Something in the touch sent a hot wave through my body, and scarce knowing what I did, I bent forward in the saddle and kissed her full on the lips. Then digging my rowels into my horse we sprang away, but not before her dainty hand had left a livid, smarting imprint on my cheek.

My face flushed crimson over the insult I had offered her, and I felt her body tremble in the arm I was forced to keep about her waist. Anon I thought she was weeping, and my soul rose up in anger against me.

"Fool that I was," I muttered, gazing ruefully at the pretty curve of throat and chin, "aye, fool."

"Nay," she made reply, in a voice that set my heart beating wildly, "only a trifle indiscreet."

Slowly, ever fearfully, I tightened my arm around her waist and gradually drew her head toward my shoulder. Gently I turned her face, until her eyes looked into mine, and 'twas a kiss that sealed our love.

Do This Better Abroad.

"When all is said and done," began the Englishman, "your Uncle Sam might improve on the way he manages his postal service, you know. You see what I mean? For instance, this way he has of returning letters to you that you have forgotten to put stamps on. Eh? Frankly, that is the worst thing he does. Yesterday I lost a deal by the return of a letter that should have gotten to the man on time. Back it came, the stamp rubbed off. Either I forgot it, or it rubbed off somehow. Eh? Upon my word, a thing like that couldn't have happened in England. The man who gets the letter pays the extra postage, or the whole of it, if you have forgotten your stamp. And he does it very gladly, too, if it's an important letter such as this one I sent yesterday. You see what I mean? Eh?"

The Wonderful Hour

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

The lights of the stars, of passing vessels, of the Jersey shore flickered back from the still waters of the Hudson that warm spring evening, and the voices of children playing along the drive were heard in the distance. And then, just as he turned away hopelessly, he saw her coming toward him, walking as she had always walked.

Nothing seemed to have changed after those five years. They might have met yesterday. He kissed her, just as he used to do, and they sat down in the old place. Then for some time there was silence.

"Well, Dick, I have come, you see," she said. "I got your letter."

He took both her hands in his and looked at her.

"Yes, you have not changed," he said. "It might have been yesterday we parted. And you are wearing that old white hat, I am sure. And violets.

She laughed a little bitterly.

"And you love me just the same, don't you?"

"I was a fool," he said.

"You left me to make your fortune abroad. You were going to paint great pictures and win fame. You had to choose between your pictures and me, you know, and the choice was not flattering to my pride. Well, have you painted them?"

"No," he said, quietly.

"And so you thought you would have me again as second choice. O my dear, how well I know you. So you remembered the white hat and the violets? Well, I wore them purposely. Just a glamor, a little reminder of the old times, and you are at my feet, again, you incurable sentimentalist. But I have been growing older and wiser."

"I told you everything. I confessed the wrong I had done you. Why did you come to-night if you did not love me?"

"Some sentimental folly. I thought I, too, would like to see you again, to meet you here where we used to meet. I wanted to learn my power, to know whether I could still wield it, or had grown old and homely. Vanity, I suppose. Does the charm work?

"You speak very bitterly."

"So you imagined I would still be free. That I have been eating out my heart alone all these five years. O, the vanity of man."

He started violently.

"You are married?"

"I am going to be. But you do deserve to be comforted, poor Dick, who did at least think of me when his art deserted him."

She nestled closer toward him, but he sat silently beside her. The mockery of the pretence crushed him. She tapped her foot impatiently.

"Five more minutes have gone. O, Dick, don't you want to be companionable? Talk to me, old friend. Tell me, will you be sorry to lose me forever?"

A dull resentment was growing in his heart. At last he found his speech.

"I don't complain of your mockery. But if I treated you badly, at least I left you hoping to win a fortune for us both. My thoughts were always with you. I left you in pride; I fought hard and was beaten; I have returned a suppliant. At least be honest toward me. Good-by." He held out his hand.

He saw her eyes shining in the dusk. Their hands clasped and lingered.

"Are you going?" she whispered.

He looked at her incredulously. A great hope dawned in his heart.

"Suppose I told you that I loved you more in your defeat than when you went out to conquer?" she whispered. "If I—pretended—just pretended that I couldn't bear to lose you again, ever—"

His arms were round her and she was weeping against his shoulder.

"It wasn't untrue when I said I was going to be married—was it?" she murmured.

Why He Returned.

Last winter Mrs. Clifford A. Neff, who resides in that part of Bratenahl still known as Doan street, sorted out her husband's cast-off clothing. To the first applicant who came along she handed a complete suit of clothes which she thought had seen enough service, and the man went off rejoicing and volubly thanking her.

This week he reappeared at the Neff home, where he was immediately recognized.

"Last year, madam," he said with a bow, "you were kind enough to give me a suit of clothes. In the pocket of the coat I found a dollar bill, all crumpled up, and—"

"And you waited all this time to return it?" interrupted Mrs. Neff.

"No, madam," replied the panhandler, with a bow; "I called to ask you if you hadn't another coat to give me."—Cleveland News.

DISMISSES A CHARGE AGAINST A. LAYMAN.

Justice Snape in the borough court yesterday afternoon dismissed the charge of assault and battery against Adolf Layman as brought by Peter Fugman. The complaint was the sequence of one brought by Layman against Fugman on the same charge, and as a result of which Fugman was held to await the action of the grand jury.

Fugman brought a counter complaint against Layman, setting up that he had been assaulted by the latter. Justice Snape decided that he had no ground for action and dismissed the complaint. William G. De Meza represented Fugman, while Layman was represented by Winfield S. Angleman.

BABY CAMP TO BE OPENED NEXT TUESDAY, JULY 12

Considerable business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the executive committee of the City Union of the King's Daughters at the rooms of the Charity Organization Society this morning. It was decided to publicly open the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on Johnston's Drive, Tuesday afternoon, July 12. It has been arranged to have a stage meet the 3 o'clock trolley at the end of the Somerset street line and every half-hour thereafter during the afternoon. A nominal charge of ten cents will be made each way for the trip.

Since the camp was formally opened a couple of weeks ago, thirty babies have been cared for at the camp, including some of the convalescent tubercular patients of the city, and a marked improvement has been noted in the general condition of all the children.

It was reported this morning that during the month of June 486 children were cared for at The Day Nursery, and the total expense was $55.93. This is the largest number of children cared for at The Nursery any one month since it was opened.

The primary department of the First Baptist church Sunday school raised $3 with which a cot and pad were purchased for the King's Daughters' camp, including the building of a back porch, 18x33, which was contributed by the Cup Bearers' Circle at an expense of $100. The front porch has also been enlarged to 40x14 feet. The King's Daughters make a strong appeal for cribs, baby carriages, baby walkers and porch furniture; also additional funds with which to carry on the worthy charity. Articles for the camp may be sent to Mrs. Frank W. Jones, of Mountain avenue. Anyone desiring to contribute money can send it to The Daily Press and it will be acknowledged and forwarded to the proper authorities.

If the weather should be stormy on July 12, the public opening will be held the next clear day. This charity has taken a greater hold than ever on the public it being realized that it is here to stay, as is also the case of The Day Nursery.

Guinee's Condition Improved.

Dan Guinee, who is employed by the Public Service Corporation, while working on an electric light pole on Watchung avenue, between Pearl and Chatham streets early in the week, lost his hold and fell to the pavement. He was picked up suffering severely from abdominal injuries, and was hurried to the Muhlenberg Hospital. It was reported there, this morning, that his condition was greatly improved.

Harry Pierce.

Harry Pierce, aged ten years, son of Mrs. Sarah Jane and the late Edward J. Pierce, died last night at his home, 217 West Fourth street. The funeral will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Will Install Officers.

The officers-elect of Unity Lodge No. 102, K. of P., will be installed tonight by Deputy Grand Chancellor Herman Moosebrugger and staff of Somerville. The lodge will also confer the third rank on one candidate.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"That's enough," he whispered. "That's enough—for tonight." He saw the pistol in Nathaniel's hand and gave a sudden breathless cry.

"Nat—Nat—"

He caught Captain Plum's free hand in his.

"Tell me this, Obadiah Price," whispered the master of the Typhoon, "who is she?"

The councilor stood on tiptoe to answer.

"They are the wives of Strang, Nat!"

"But the other?" demanded Nathaniel. The other—

"O, to be sure, to be sure," chuckled Obadiah. "The girl of the lilacs, eh? Why, she's the seventh wife, Nat—that's all, the seventh wife!"

CHAPTER III.

The Warning.

So quickly that Obadiah Price might not have counted ten before it had come and gone the significance of his new situation flashed upon Captain Plum as he stood under the king's window. His plans had changed since leaving ship but now he realized that they had become hopelessly involved. He had intended that Obadiah should show him where Strang was to be found, and that later, when ostensibly returning to his vessel, he would visit the prophet in his home. Whatever the interview brought forth he would still be in a position to deliver the councilor's package. Even an hour's bombardment of St. James would not interfere with the fulfilment of his oath. But those few minutes at the king's window had been fatal to the scheme he had built. The girl had seen him. She had not betrayed his presence. She had called to him with her eyes—he would have staked his life on that. What did it all mean? He turned to Obadiah. The old man was grimacing and twisting his hands nervously. He seemed half afraid, cringing, as if fearing a blow. The sight of him set Nathaniel's blood afire. His white face seemed to verify the terrible thought that had leaped into his brain. Suddenly he heard a faint cry—a woman's voice—and in an instant he was back at the window. The girl had risen to her feet and stood facing him. This time, as her eyes met his own, he saw in them a flashing warning, and he obéyed it as if she had spoken to him. As he dropped silently back to the ground the councilor came close to his side.

"That's enough for tonight, Nat," he whispered.

He made as if to slip away but Nathaniel detained him with an emphatic hand.

"Not yet, dad! I'd like to have a word with—this—"

"With Strang's wife," chuckled Obadiah. "Ho, ho, ho, Nat, you're a rascal!" The old man's face was mapped with wrinkles, his eyes glowed with joyous approbation. "You shall, Nat, you shall! You love a pretty face, eh? You shall meet Mrs. Strang, Nat, and you shall make love to her if you wish. I swear that, too. But not tonight, Nat—not tonight."

He stood a pace away and rubbed his hands.

"There will be no chance tonight, Nat—but tomorrow night, or the next. O, I promise you shall meet her, and make love to her, Nat! Ho, if Strang knew, if Strang only knew!"

There was something so fiendishly gloating in the councilor's attitude, in his face, in the hot glow of his eyes, that for a moment Nathaniel's involuntary liking for the little old man before him turned to abhorrence. The passion, the triumph of the man, convinced him where words had failed. The girl was Strang's wife. His last doubt was dispelled. And because she was Strang's wife Obadiah hated the Mormon prophet. The councilor had spoken with fateful assurance—that he should meet her, that he should make love to her. It was an assurance that made him shudder. As he followed in silence up out of the gloom of the town he strove, but in vain, to find whether sin had lurked in the sweet face that had appealed to him in its misery—whether there had been a flash of something besides terror, besides prayerful entreaty, in the lovely eyes that had met his own. Obadiah spoke no word to break in on his thoughts. Now and then the old man's insane chucklings floated softly to Nathaniel's ears, and when at last they came to the cabin in the forest he broke into a low laugh that echoed weirdly in the great black room which they entered. He lighted another candle and approached a ladder which led through a trap in the ceiling. Without a word he mounted this ladder, and Nathaniel followed him, finding himself a moment later in a small low room furnished with a bed. The councilor placed his candle on a table close beside it and rubbed his hands until it seemed they must burn.

"You will stay—eh, Nat?" he cried, bobbing his head. "Yes, you will stay, and you will give me back the package for a day or two." He retreated to the trap and slid down it as quickly as a rat. "Pleasant dreams to you, Nat, and—O, wait a minute!" Captain Plum could hear him pattering quickly over the floor below. In a moment he was back, thrusting his white grimacing face through the trap and tossed something upon the bed. "She left them last night, Nat. Pleasant dreams, pleasant dreams," and he was gone.

Nathaniel turned to the bed and picked up a faded bunch of lilacs. Then he sat down, loaded his pipe, and smoked until he could hardly see the walls of his little room. From the moment of his landing on the island he turned the events of the day over in his mind. Yet when he arrived at the end of them he was no less mystified than when he began. Who was Obadiah Price? Who was the girl that fate had so mysteriously associated with his movements thus far? What was the plot in which he had accidentally become involved? With tireless tenacity he hung to these questions for hours. That there was a plot of some kind he had not the least doubt. The councilor's strange actions, the oath, the package, and above all the scene in the king's house convinced him of that. And he was sure that Obadiah's night visitor—the girl with the lilacs—was playing a vital part in it.

He plucked at the withered flowers which the old man had thrown him. He could detect their sweet scent above the pungent fumes of tobacco and as Obadiah's triumphant chuckle recurred to him, the gloating joy in his eyes, the passionate tremble of his voice, a grim smile passed over his face. The mystery was easy of solution—if he was willing to reason along certain lines. But he was not willing. He had formed his own picture of Strang's wife and it pleased him to keep it. At moments he half conceded himself a fool, but that did not trouble him. The longer he smoked the more his old confidence and his old recklessness returned to him. He had enjoyed his adventure. The next day he would end it. He would go openly into St. James and have done his business with Strang. Then he would return to his ship. What had he, Captain Plum, to do with Strang's wife?

But even after he had determined on these things his brain refused to rest. He paced back and forth across the narrow room, thinking of the man whom he was to meet tomorrow—of Strang, the one-time schoolmaster and temperance lecturer who had made himself a king, who for seven years had defied the state and nation, and who had made of his island stronghold a hot-bed of polygamy, of licentiousness, of dissolute power. His blood grew hot as he thought again of the beautiful girl who had appealed to him. Obadiah had said that she was the king's wife. Still—

Thoughts flashed into his head which for a time made him forget his mission on the island. In spite of his resolution to keep to his own scheme he found himself, after a little, thinking only of the Mormon king, and the lovely face he had seen through the castle window. He knew much about the man with whom he was to deal tomorrow. He knew that he had been a rival of Brigham Young and that when the exodus of the Mormons to the deserts of the west came he had led his own followers into the north, and that each July, amid barbaric festivities, he was recrowned with a circlet of gold. But the girl! If she was the king's wife why had her eyes called to him for help?

The question crowded Nathaniel's brain with a hundred thrilling pictures. With a shudder he thought of the terrible power the Mormon king held not only over his own people but over the Gentiles of the mainlands as well. With these mainlanders, he regarded Beaver Island as a nest of pirates and murderers. He knew of the depredations of Strang and his people among the fishermen and settlers, of the piratical expeditions of his armed boats, of the dreaded raids of his sheriffs, and of the crimes that made the women of the shores tremble and turn white at the mere mention of his name.

Was it possible that this girl—

Captain Plum did not let himself finish the thought. With a powerful effort he brought himself back to his own business on the island, smoked another pipe, and undressed. He went to bed with the withered lilacs on the table close beside him. He fell asleep with their scent in his nostrils. When he awoke they were gone. He started up in astonishment when he saw what had taken their place. Obadiah had visited him while he slept. The table was spread with a white cloth and upon it was his breakfast, a pot of coffee still steaming, and the whole of a cold baked fowl. Near by, upon a chair, was a basin of water, soap and a towel. Nathaniel rolled from his bed with a healthy laugh of pleasure. The councilor was at least a courteous host, and his liking for the curious old man promptly increased. There was a sheet of paper on his plate upon which Obadiah had scribbled the following words:

"My Dear Nat: Make yourself at home. I will be away today but will see you again tonight. Don't be surprised if somebody makes you a visit."

The "somebody" was heavily underscored and Nathaniel's pulse quickened and a sudden rush of excitement surged into his face as he read the meaning of it. The "somebody" was Strang's wife. There could be other interpretation. He went to the trap and called down for Obadiah but there was no answer. The councilor had already gone. Quickly eating his breakfast the master of the Typhoon climbed down the ladder into the room below. The remains of the councilor's breakfast were on a table near the door, and the door was open. Through it came a glory of sunshine and the fresh breath of the forest laden with the perfume of wild flowers and balsam. A thousand birds seemed caroling and twittering in the sunlit solitude about the cabin. Beyond this there was no other sound or sign of life. For many minutes Nathaniel stood in the open, his eyes on the path along which he knew that Strang's wife would come—if she came at all. Suddenly he began to examine the ground where the girl had stood the previous night. The dainty imprints of her feet were plainly discernible in the soft earth. Then he went to the path—and with a laugh so loud that it startled the birds into silence he set off with long strides in the direction of St. James. From the footprints in that path it was quite evident that Strang's wife was a frequent visitor at Obadiah's.

A Few Days Before He Would Have Counted This Walk to St. James One of the Events of His Life.

At the edge of the forest, from where he could see the log house situated across the opening, Nathaniel paused. He had made up his mind that the girl whom he had seen through the king's window was in some way associated with it. Obadiah had hinted as much and she had come from there on her way to Strang's. But as the prophet's wives lived in his castle at St. James this surely could not be her home. More than ever he was puzzled. As he looked he saw a figure suddenly appear from among the mass of lilac bushes that almost concealed the cabin. An involuntary exclamation of satisfaction escaped him and he drew back deeper among the trees. It was the councilor who had shown himself. For a few moments the old man stood gazing in the direction of St. James as if watching for the approach of other persons. Then he dodged cautiously along the edge of the bushes, keeping half within their cover, and moved swiftly in the opposite direction toward the center of the island. Nathaniel's blood leaped with a desire to follow. The night before he had guessed that Obadiah with his gold and his smoldering passion was not a man to isolate himself in the heart of the forest. Here—across the open—was evidence of another side of his life. In that great square-built domicile of logs, screened so perfectly by flowering lilac, lived Obadiah's wives. Captain Plum laughed aloud and beat the bowl of his pipe on the tree beside him. And the girl lived there—or came from there to the woodland cabin so frequently that her feet had beaten a well-worn path. Had the councilor lied to him? Was the girl he had seen through the king's window one of the seven wives of Strang—or was she the wife of Obadiah Price?

The thought was one that thrilled him. If the girl was the councilor's wife what was the motive of Obadiah's falsehood? And if she was Strang's wife why had her feet—and hers alone with the exception of the old man's—worn this path from the lilac smothered house to the cabin in the woods? The captain of the Typhoon regretted now that he had given such explicit orders to Casey. Otherwise he would have followed the figure that was already disappearing into the forest on the opposite side of the clearing. But now he must see Strang. There might be delay, necessary delay, and if it so happened that his own blundering curiosity kept him on the island until sundown—well, he smiled as he thought of what Casey would do.

Refilling his pipe and leaving a trail of smoke behind him he set out boldly for St. James. When he came to the three graves he stopped, remembering that Obadiah had said they were his graves. A sort of grim horror began to stir at his soul as he gazed on the grass-grown mounds—proofs that the old councilor would inherit a place in the Mormon heaven, having obeyed the injunctions of his prophet on earth. Nathaniel now understood the meaning of his words of the night before. This was the family burying ground of the old councilor.

He walked on, trying in vain to concentrate his mind solely upon the business that was ahead of him. A few days before he would have counted this walk to St. James one of the events of his life. Now it had lost its fascination. Despite his efforts to destroy the vision of the beautiful face that had looked at him through the king's window its memory still haunted him. The eyes, soft with appeal; the red mouth, quivering, and with lips parted as if about to speak to him; the bowed head with its tumbled glory of hair—all had burned themselves upon his soul in a picture too deep to be eradicated. If St. James was interesting now it was because that face was a part of it, because the secret of its life, of the misery that it had confessed to him, was hidden somewhere down there among its scattered log homes.

Slowly he made his way down the slope in the direction of Strang's castle, the tower of which, surmounted by its great beacon, glistened in the morning sun. He would find Strang there. And there would be one chance in a thousand of seeing the girl—if Obadiah had spoken the truth. As he passed down he met men and boys coming up the slope and others moving along at the bottom of it, all going toward the interior of the island. They had shovels or rakes or hoes upon their shoulders and he guessed that the Mormon fields were in that direction; others bore axes; and now and then wagons, many of them drawn by oxen, left the town over the road that ran near the shore of the lake. Those whom he met stared at him curiously, much interested evidently in the appearance of a stranger. Nathaniel paid but small heed to them. As he entered the grove through which the councilor had guided him the night before his eagerness became almost excitement. He approached the great log house swiftly but cautiously, keeping as much from view as possible. As he came under the window through which he had looked upon the king and his wives his heart leaped with anticipation, with hope that was strangely mingled with fear. For only a moment he paused to listen, and notwithstanding the seriousness of his position he could not repress a smile as there came to his ears the crying of children and the high angry voice of a woman. He passed around to the front of the house. The door of Strang's castle was wide open and unguarded. No one had seen his approach; no one accosted him as he mounted the low steps; there was no one in the room into which he gazed a moment later. It was the great hall into which he had spied a few hours previous. There was the long table with the big book on it, the lamp whose light had bathed the girl's head in a halo of glory, the very chair in which he had found her sitting! He was conscious of a throbbing in his breast, a longing to call out—if he only knew her name.

In the room there were four closed doors and it was from beyond these that there came to him the wailing of children. A fifth door was open and through it he saw a cradle gently rocking. Here at last was visible life, or motion at least, and he knocked loudly. Very gradually the cradle ceased its movement. Then it stopped, and a woman came out into the larger room. In a moment Nathaniel recognized her as the one who had placed a caressing hand upon the bowed head of the sobbing girl the night before. Her face was of pathetic beauty. Its whiteness was startling. Her eyes shone with an unhealthy luster, and her dark hair, falling in heavy curls over her shoulder, added to the wonderful pallor of her cheeks.

Nathaniel bowed. "I beg your pardon, madam; I came to see Mr. Strang," he said.

"You will find the king at his office," she replied.

The woman's voice was low, but so sweet that it was like music to the ear. As she spoke she came nearer and a faint flush appeared in the transparency of her cheek.

"Why do you wish to see the king?" she asked.

Was there a tremble of fear in her voice? Even as he looked Nathaniel saw the flush deepen in her cheeks and her eyes light with nervous eagerness.

"I am sent by Obadiah Price," he hazarded.

A flash of relief shot into the woman's face.

Nathaniel retired with another bow.

"By thunder, Strang, old boy, you've certainly got an eye for beauty!" he laughed as he hurried through the grove.

"And Obadiah Price must be somebody, after all!"

The Mormon temple was the largest structure in St. James, a huge square building of hewn logs, and Nathaniel did not need to make inquiry to find it. On one side was a two-story building with an outside stairway leading to the upper floor, and a painted sign announced that on this second floor was situated the office of James Jesse Strang, priest, king and prophet of the Mormons. It was still very early and the general merchandise store below was not open. Congratulating himself on this fact, and with the fingers of his right hand reaching instinctively for his pistol butt, Captain Plum mounted the stair. When half way up he heard voices. As he reached the landing at the top he caught the quick swish of a skirt. Another step and he was in the open door. He was not soon enough to see the person who had just disappeared through an opposite door, but he knew that it was a woman. Directly in front of him as if she had been expecting his arrival was a young girl, and no sooner had he put a foot over the threshold than she hurried toward him, the most acute anxiety and fear written in her face.

"You are Captain Plum?" she asked breathlessly.

Nathaniel stopped in astonishment.

"Yes, I'm—"

"Then you must hurry—hurry!" cried the girl excitedly. "You have not a moment to lose! Go back to your ship before it is too late! She says they will kill you—"

Machine Gun an Experiment.

In our army machine guns have been supplied from time to time, but only experimentally and not as an intrinsic part of the army organization. The question has been studied, no doubt, by the general staff, but the definite organization and supply of this new arm has been postponed to make way for other more pressing considerations and also to profit by the experience of European nations before adopting any definite organization or tactics for this new but highly important arm of the service.

Value of Salt.

Few persons understand the therapeutic value of salt. A little salt in one's drinking water is "good medicine." Salt applications to the skin are wonderfully soothing and wholesome. There is nothing better as a wash for the throat and the nasal passages to prevent or to cure catarrhal troubles than a solution of common salt in plain water—the cheapest remedy one can find. Many persons give their eyes a daily bath of cold salt water, with satisfactory results.

Tobacco in the Orient.

Use of tobacco is universal in the orient, and the word cheroot and its use come from Madras. The first cigars seen by Columbus were wrapped with corn shucks. Some Himalaya tribes take the leaf of the palassa and, with a cunning twist of the wrist, make the bowl and long, narrow stem of a pipe in the most perfect way.

Peculiar Freak in Explosion.

The explosion of a gas oven in a plant at Jamestown, N. Y., blew a window casing from the fourth story of the building into the river. Some time later the casing was recovered and a watch that had been hanging on a nail in it was still attached and keeping good time.—Popular Mechanics.

New York's Fur Industry.

New York city manufactures more fur goods than all of the other cities of the country together. It keeps about 9,000 persons employed in the industry and its output for the last year is valued at $41,400,000.

The Part of a Good Man.

Pretty Sunsets in Cities.

Some modern artists claim, contrary to general belief, that the prettiest sunset colorings are to be seen in the cities, owing to the dust in the air. The open country, however, affords the greatest sweep of the sky.

Little Sunlight in Ireland.

In Ireland, owing to a lack of sunlight and heat, peaches, grapes and tomatoes must be grown and ripened under glass. The prices are consequently almost prohibitory.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 10, 1910.

Topic.—The model Christian Endeavor society.—I Cor. xii, 4-27. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The word "model" here does not mean "a small imitation of the real thing," but the real thing itself. It is the ideal society, the one that may be held up as a pattern to other societies as worthy of their imitation and emulation. Such societies may be few and far between, but the model Endeavorer will always be filled with aspirations to make his society a model and ideal one.

In any religious organization the supreme factor is spirituality. No Christian Endeavor society can be a model society without deep spirituality. Many may attend and all be willing to take part, the committees may meet regularly every month and plan their work and bring in written reports, the socials may be crowded and create great enthusiasm, yet unless back of all this and in it all is the Spirit of God it is not a model Christian Endeavor society or any other kind of Christian society. It is simply intelligent young people following mechanical forms laid out for a Christian Endeavor society. The Spirit of God must therefore be manifest in all the devotions, work and fellowship of an ideal Christian Endeavor society. The talents used must be Spirit given talents. Then the model society will begin.

Possessed of the Spirit, each member in harmony with all others should make the best use of the gifts bestowed upon him by the Spirit. "There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit." We have different talents, but all are Spirit given, and we should use them whether possessed in a low or a high degree. There are various duties in the model society. Some are able to do the more important ones and others the less, but all must be done to make the society a model. The smallest wheel in a machine if broken will destroy its entire usefulness. Every part is important regardless of the place it occupies. Paul uses here the illustration of the human body: "The body is not one member, but many. If the foot shall say, Because I am not the hand I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body? And if the ear shall say, Because I am not the eye I am not of the body, is it not therefore of the body?" The point of this illustration as continued by the apostle is readily seen and the moral emphasized. Every member of the human body—foot, hand, ear, eye, etc.—has its place and duty, whether of great or little importance, and each one must fill the place and perform this duty if the human body is to be perfect and perfectly perform its duty. The same principle applies to Christian Endeavor. Each member must do his duty in his special sphere if the model society is to be attained. Our Scriptural verse that should have been read if not read detracts that much from a prayer meeting and makes it fall by that much below a model, as if organist or leader failed in his duties. When each one takes his part and does his work under the direction of the Holy Spirit, then, and then only, is the ideal attained.

BIBLE READINGS.

Neh. iv, 6; Zech. iv, 5-10; Ex. xix, 3-8; Acts iv, 23-32; vi, 1-7; x, 30-43; Matt. xi, 42; Matt. xxv, 1-13; Acts xiii, 1-5; Rev. ii, 10.

The Model Endeavorer's Model.

No one can be a model Endeavorer without a model. If you think it is possible just try it a little while and you will be convinced of the contrary. Our model can be only one—not Dr. Clark, though he founded the society; not your pastor, though he stands at the head of your church; not the wisest and noblest and most learned and holy man or woman we know. The only possible model for a human being is not a human being, cannot be, because human beings are full of faults and sins. It is the God-man Jesus Christ. That is one reason why God came down into our human life to give us a perfect model for it. That is why we are told to seek perfection after the example of His perfectness.—Amos R. Wells.

Christian Endeavor and Temperance.

I am very glad that the Christian Endeavor society has taken up the work of urging total abstinence. There is no doubt that the organized effort that the society will put forth will result in securing hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of signers, and that means a very perceptible decrease in the total amount of liquor consumed and a very considerable increase in the strength of the temperance sentiment of the country. One cannot do much to encourage total abstinence so long as he drinks himself. The moment he becomes enlisted under the banner of total abstinence his influence becomes a factor in the spread of temperance.—William Jennings Bryan.

In Faraway India.

Charles W. Fairbanks, former vice president of the United States, who was expected at the world's Christian Endeavor convention in Agra, India, until the last, was unavoidably detained a few hundred miles from the convention when on his way to Agra. However, he kindly telegraphed the substance of his address in a message of 751 words. This was received with great applause, and after it was read by Dr. Clark the American contingent, some fifty in all, rose and sang "America." Then the British, not to be outdone, sang "God Save the King" and all joined in "Blessed Be the Tie" at the close.

NOT RESPONSIBLE, HE SAYS

J. Fred Mc Donald Declares His Chauffeur was Blameless at Perth Amboy.

MOTORCYCLE COP INJURED.

Were Not Racing, Nor Exceeding Speed Laws—Chauffeur Paroled on Own Recognizance.

The accident in which a policeman of Perth Amboy was injured by being thrown against the curb, and for which J. Fred McDonald, of East Front street, was held partly responsible, seems to have been attributable to someone else. The report of the event in a Perth Amboy paper would convey the impression that Mr. McDonald's car was at fault in the matter, but according to a diagram drawn by Mr. McDonald it was the car ahead, and which the policeman on the motorcycle could not catch, which was responsible for the policeman's injuries.

In the car at the time the policeman went against the curb were Mrs. McDonald, Miss Daly and the chauffeur, Ordy Brown. The car was going at less than ten miles an hour when Brown noticed the policeman on the motorcycle trying to overtake the car immediately in front. Turning into Prospect avenue in Perth Amboy the colored chauffeur of Mr. McDonald's car heard the shout of the policeman who had attempted to stop the first car and Brown immediately brought his car to the low speed.

Brown stopped the machine he was driving and went to the prostrate guardian of the peace and offered assistance and was placed under arrest for his pains.

Mr. McDonald stated this morning that he had been notified to have his chauffeur in court when summoned, but did not think that his driver would be held in any way responsible for what had happened. None of the drivers in the different cars knew the occupants of the others and instead of being a joy riding party of several cars each was individually by itself. Mr. McDonald's chauffeur was not required to furnish bail.

Denny Family Surrpised.

Mr. and Mrs. Josehp A. Denney, of Fairview avenue, were given a surprise last night on the eve of their departure for a long trip to the western States. Some musicians were among those who helped to surprise Mr. and Mrs. Denny and some of whom came from New York. Their excuse for the impromptu celebration was that they wished to pay some tribute of affection to the family for the many happy evenings spent with them during the past winter. Music of a high class was enjoyed by the company including violin and piano solos and songs. Refreshments were served. The Denny family will leave on Monday for a visit with relatives in Chicago and other cities of the west.

Will Remove a Landmark.

Those in charge of the improvements at Trinity Reformed church have decided not to replace the weather vane or points of the compass on top of the steeple, owing to the insecure condition found and the great expense. It would necessitate building a scaffold to the top, and besides the conditions were found to be such that replacing of the vane and points of compass would not warrant the expense. The weather also seriously affected the long iron rod in the steeple, which supported the vane and compass, and there would always be an element of danger. The gilded ball, will, however, be placed at the top.

Henry R. Conklin.

Henry R. Conklin, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William L. Conklin, aged 67 years, who was a resident of the borough for a long time, died yesterday at the Home for Incurables, New York City. He removed from the borough two years ago. Mr. Conklin was an invalid for years, although he was able to walk about and was a familiar figure on the streets of the city and borough. Private funeral services will be held tomorrow in New York and the burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Open Air Meeting.

For the four remaining Sundays of this month, the Y. M. C. A. will conduct open air afternoon services on the lawn next to the First Baptist church. The services will be of the same nature as those, which were held in June. Geo. Mc. Neely, of Newark, who is one of the association's shop meetings' leaders, will have charge of the services, as he did in June.

FRIENDS OF COUNTRY MEET AT OCEAN GROVE

The United Society of Friends of the United States began its biennial session at Ocean Grove yesterday. Several thousand delegates from various parts of the United States and Canada are in attendance.

An address on "The Sense of Larger Fellowship," was delivered by Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, professor of Biblical literature at Swarthmore. Dr. Holmes defended the Quaker faith and advocated athletic fields in connection with the churches. A second address was delivered by William Brown, of Canada, his subject being "Courage and Fellowship."

Bishops, clergymen and laymen connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant church are attending a conference in Ocean Grove, made up of the joint commission on the proposed federation of these three churches. The meetings of the commission are secret and the result of the commission are secret and the result of the conference will be reported to the next general conferences of the churches.

COUNCILMANIC SLATES AS THEY APPEAR TODAY

Reliable report today has it that the Progressives of Plainfield will make a vigorous fight to prevent the renomination of Councilman William L. Gloak, in the First ward, and Councilman Frank W. Randolph, in the Fourth ward at the primaries should they decide to seek re-nomination. So far the Progressives are the only ones having taken any steps to form their lines for the impending political battle. They have placed George W. V. Moy, one of their leaders and a thoroughly capable man, in the field for the mayoralty. His papers have been filed with the city clerk but as yet the "regulars" have remained inactive. The present incumbent, Charles J. Fisk, has made no statement as to whether he desires a third successive term and his friends say they know nothing of his plans.

So far as the councilmanic nominations are concerned, it can safely be said that the "progressives" will endorse Councilman Frank L. Holt, of the Second ward, and Councilman Duncan W. Taylor, of the Third ward. According to the "wise ones," Councilman Randolph does not desire a fourth term, although his chances would be good so the "machine" men say. Councilman Gloak has not decided, it is reported, but if he runs it will be a close contest at the primaries.

PICNIC ENJOYED BY WARREN CHAPEL'S MISSIONARIES.

The members of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel enjoyed their annual picnic yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gavett in the Watchung valley. About forty members attended and the affair was voted the most enjoyable ever held by the society.

Nearly everyone carried a basket lunch and at noon the big barn which had been decorated with Japanese lanterns and bunting, was an enlivening scene. A happy throng it was, gathered around the bountiful baskets and when Mr. Gavett and Rev. J. O. McKelvey arrived there was additional interest added to the scene.

After the luncheon a peanut hunt engaged the attention of the picnicers and upon its conclusion rather interesting games were played. At 4 o'clock ice cream and cake were served and at 5 the members left for home. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Gavett for the reception and her efforts to make everyone comfortable.

Salvation Army Services.

Adjutant Palmer, Captain McMillan and Captain Fowler, of the Salvation Army National Staff Band, will conduct the services at the local corps barracks tomorrow night, and on Sunday. Tomorrow night's services will include "A Night with the Poets," by Adjutant Palmer, and vocal and instrumental music by Captains Fowler and McMillan. Ice cream will also be served and a small charge of fifteen cents is asked for admission. Saturday afternoon an ice cream festival will be held on the lawn surrounding the tent on Watchung avenue. On Sunday, the services will be conducted by the visiting officers. All services will be held in the tent.

WANT AUTO LAW CHANGED

The New Jersey Motorists Demand Reciprocity with Other States.

PLANNING FOR A CAMPAIGN.

First Meeting To Be Held Under Auspices of the Plainfield Automobile Club in August.

The first meeting of an extensive campaign of New Jersey automobilists, advocating the passage of a law properly registered in their home States, to tour in this State free, will be held in Plainfield during the first week in August. It will be held under the auspices of the Plainfield Automobile Club, one of the members of the Associated Automobile Clubs, following which will come meetings in Middlesex, Newton and Hunterdon counties.

The campaign is under the direction of a joint committee of the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey and the New Jersey Automobile Trade Association. The former is a federation of all the automobile clubs of New Jersey while the latter is an organization composed of practically every automobile dealer in the State.

Last Wednesday night, in Newark, the organization meeting of the committee, W. Clive Crosby, past president of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, of that city, an organization having over 2,000 members and ranking second in this country, was elected chairman. W. H. Ellis, a motor car dealer of the same city, and an official of the State Trade Association, was made secretary. The other members of the joint committee representing the Associated Automobile clubs are: Joseph H. Wood, president of the federation; J. H. Edwards, past president of the Automobile club of Hudson county; George A. Post, of the North Jersey Automobile Club, having its headquarters in Paterson, and Harry Marshall, of the Plainfield Automobile Club. The Trade Association's other delegates are George Blakeslee, of Jersey City, president of the dealer's organization; George Paddock, of Newark, past president; George H. Smith, of Newark and Charles R. Zackarius, of Asbury Park.

MUST LET HORSE REST; THE S.P.C.A. IS ACTIVE

While John Crowley, of Rock avenue, was found technically guilty of cruelty to his horse in the city court this morning no fine was imposed by Judge Runyon. Crowley was told to allow his horse to remain idle and to procure necessary veterinary medical attention and to report the result to Judge Runyon before putting the horse to work.

The action against Crowley was brought by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, represented by Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, who had as counsel Robert Newton Crane. Mr. Crowley was defended by William G. De Meza.

It was alleged in the complaint that Crowley had maltreated his horse by driving it to a plough when in an unfit condition. Several witnesses were called for the defense and only two for the society.

According to the testimony adduced by the society, Crowley was using a horse which had sustained an injury to its ankle and was consequently unfit for work. Dr. F. C. Herbert gave a technical description of the injury and said that it was his opinion that the animal could not be cured. Dr. Herbert also declared that the horse could not step on the injured member without pain and believed that it would be cruel to keep the horse at work.

Dr. Herbert asserted that the animal had so strained the tendons of his right forefoot that it would be impossible to bring them back to their normal condition. Dr. Pocock who was called for the defense said he believed the horse could be cured with proper attention and complete rest.

Mr. DeMeza's argument in behalf of his client was such as to make Judge Runyon take a lenient view of the matter with the above result.

Rev. H. N. Jordan Will Occupy Pulpit

The pulpit of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be occupied tomorrow morning by Rev. H. N. Jordan, of Dunellen, owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, who is still laboring among churches in the west. He will be home the first week in August.

HENRY STITES LITTELL, AGED 71 YEARS, DEAD

Harry Stites Littell, aged seventy-one years, a direct descendant of Revolutionary stock, died suddenly at his homein Fanwood township, last night of appendicitis. He was well known throughout this section of the State. He traced his ancestry to Major Edward Clark, who wintered with Washington at Valley Forge, and whose body lies in the old cemetery at Westfield, beside that of his wife.

Mr. Littell married Miss Julia Clark, of Rahway. She survives with two daughters, Miss Anna Littell, of the home, and Mrs. W. H. Clark, of New Market; also six grandchildren. The funeral services will be held at the old Littell Homestead, Willow Grove, Monday afternoon, July 11, at 2:30 o'clock. The burial will be in the family plot at Rahway cemetery.

MIDDLE AGED WOMAN IS KILLED BY A TRAIN

A neatly dressed woman about 40 years old alighted from a trolley car at South and Union avenue, Cranford, late last night and walked a block to the New Jersey Central Railroad crossing. The gates were down, as an eastbound express train was approaching, but the women went under the gate, and before the gateman could stop her started to cross the tracks. She was struck by the locomotive and hurled about 100 feet and was dead when picked up.

The woman's identity has not been established, as no one here seems to know her. She wore a wedding ring, but nothing was found to aid in her identification. The crossing where the accident happened has long been regarded as very dangerous, and there have been a number of fatalities there. Unsuccessful efforts have been made to have the crossing abolished.

JOHN SLEVIN'S HEARING POSTPONED ONE WEEK.

In view of the fact that Michael Martin, an Italian, who was struck by John Slevin's automobile on Saturday night has not sufficiently recovered from his injuries to attend the hearing, the case against Mr. Slevin, which was to have come up before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court tonight for hearing has been postponed for one week. In the meantime, Mr. Slevin is released on a bond of $1,000 furnished by David J. Carney.

The accident occurred last Saturday night about 7 o'clock on Somerset street, near Jackson avenue. Slevin was driving his machine down Somerset street, when Martin, who was riding a bicycle in the same direction suddenly attempted to pass in front of the oncoming car. Martin's rear wheel caught in the trolley tracks, just in the path of Mr. Slevin's machine. Before the latter was able to stop his car, he struck the cyclist. Martin, who suffered a broken nose and a badly lacerated shoulder was taken to the Muhlenberg Hospital, where he has since been. His wheel was badly damaged.

Excursionists Have a Fine Day.

The Plainfield excursionists who went to Asbury Park, yesterday, reached home about 9 o'clock, last night, a tired, but happy lot of people. All agreed that they had had a good time at the shore, although they missed a strong sea breeze. The bathing was fine, the temperature of the water being about 78 degrees. The large number of Plainfielders found plenty of attractions at the shore to occupy their time and when 6.30 o'clock arrived, the hour for departure, all were ready for the homeward journey. Not a single accident was reported among the Plainfielders.

Ebel Hearing Postponed.

Owing to the inability of the lawyers to attend the hearing, the case of Carl Ebel, who was arrested on complaint of Alonzo Terry was put off until next week in the borough court this morning, by Recorder Dolliver. Ebel and Terry got into an argument early Monday morning and as a result Terry and Ebel were arrested on a disorderly conduct charge. S. S. Swackhamer is counsel for Ebel, while William G. De Meza represents Terry.

James E. M. Toam, of Trenton, who has been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. E. D. Moffett, of Orchard place, for the past week, returned home today. Mr. Toams is a college student at Princeton University.

SCRAMBLE FOR JUDGESHIP

Runyon Will Not Be a Candidate and Others Want His Place.

WIRE PULLING BEING DONE.

Friends of F. J. Blatz, J. H. Crane, W. G. DeMeza, R. N. Crane, and Others Are Active Already.

As he will be a candidate at the Republican primaries in September for the Congressional nomination in the Fifth district, William N. Runyon, whose term as city judge expires this fall, will not be a candidate to succeed himself. He has served for sixteen consecutive years.

Already there is a scramble for the judgeship and wires are being pulled in every direction to bring down the plum to one of half a dozen aspirants. More prominently mentioned is Francis J. Blatz, who has strong support among some leaders in the "organization." He is conspicuous in fraternal circles. William G. De Meza, another popular young lawyer announced himself as a candidate today.

Robert Newton Crane and J. Henry Crane, the latter a member of the Union County Republican committee, are also in the race. Assessor Harry C. Runyon and V. W. Nash, Jr., are also said to be gunning for the nomination.

J. Henry Crane, like William G DeMeza and Robert Newton Crane, had done good work for their party in the past. The same is true of H. C. Runyon. Mr. Nash also has many strong friends. All of the candidates are popular and the contest promises to be an exciting one.

None of the "organization" leaders would commit themselves on the subject today when approached by a Daily Press reporter. They said that it was too early to talk about the matter and pointed out that Judge Runyon had not formally announced that he would decline a renomination although they admitted that he could not run for two offices at the primaries.

From what could be learned today through reliable sources the "progressives" have not as yet considered the city judgeship nomination. It is expected, however, that they will name a candidate at the proper time.

LAWN FESTIVAL HELD AT GRACE M.E. CHURCH

A two nights' lawn festival was opened last night on the lawn of the Grace M. E. church under the auspices of the Epworth League of that church. The object of the festival is to raise money with which the expenses of the league are to be defrayed, and last night's entertainment aided materially in making the social a financial success.

Rain falling about 9 o'clock dampened the spirit for the festivities for a short while, until the merry-making was transferred to the interior of the church. There, the festival was again resumed. It will also continue tonight, starting at 7.30 on the lawn. The Y. M. C. orchestra, which furnished the music last night, will also play tonight.

Benjamin Schuck was chairman of the general committee and the other committees were made up as follows:

Took Up Routine Matters, Only.

Nathing but routine matters were considered at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. last night. This was the last regular meeting of the board until September.

MAY SOON ESTABLISH A TUBERCULOSIS CAMP

The Board of Freeholders at its July meeting in the Courthouse, Elizabeth, yesterday, decided to make some changes in the improvement of Turkey road, connecting Cranford with Springfield. It is proposed to cut out a short section of that thoroughfare for improvement and substitute another section, which will necessitate going over all the plans again.

The committee on the establishment of a proposed county tuberculosis camp, yesterday held a meeting and it is now believed that favorable action will be taken this year, instead of waiting until next year. It will approximately cost $150,000 to establish such a camp to say nothing of the cost of maintenance, but considerable pressure is being brought to bear to have the matter taken up at this time.

While a site has not been selected, an excellent one proposed is on the mountains between Scotch Plains and Westfield, within easy access of the trolley line. Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, of this city, is chairman of the committee who now has the matter under advisement.

COUNTRY CLUB GOLF PROGRAM FOR SUMMER

Commencing tomorrow and continuing until August 27, inclusive, there will be a separate competition for each Saturday, with prizes to be selected only from stock of golf goods carried by the club professional. In addition to the above events there will be prizes offered for best selected score for players in both Class A and Class B, who shall have the lowest selected score between July 9, and August 27, inclusive. Scores only to be taken from cards returned in the handicap event each Saturday. Under no circumstances will any other scores count for this competition.

The club championship will be held in the fall. The date has not been definitely decided, but the qualifying round will probably be played on September 10, at which time most players will be home from their summer vacations. As is the usual custom the winner of the club championship will have his name engraved on the club membership cup, presented by George A. Chapman, and in addition receive a gold medal. There will also, undoubtedly, be a prize offered for the second eight in the qualifying round to be played for at match play. Announcement in regard to fall events, including Labor Day, Election day and Thanksgiving Day competitions, will be made later.

THE WEATHER.

Maximum 87; minimum 50.

Off for Europe Tomorrow.

Tomorrow when the American Liner St. Louis leaves the dock in New York for Southampton she will have on board two youthful Plainfielders who will tour the city of London. Luther Banks and Nelson Ramsey are the two young men who will thus get a glimpse of the old world. In London the boys contemplate studying carefully the Tower of London with a view to refreshing their memories on some ancient English history. They will be gone about a month.

To Hold Summer Services.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church held its regular monthly business meeting and social hour at the church last night. At the business session, it was decided to contine the services through the summer months. Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed in by the members of the church.

THIEF ALSO BIGAMIST?

Robert Cameron, Alias Mac Gowan, It is Alleged Has Two Wives.

LOOTED THE ABBOTT TRUNKS.

Pawn Tickets in Pockets Leads to Discovery of Local Thefts —Auctioneer Out $12.

Through the arrest in Trenton on Wednesday afternoon of Robert Cameron, alias Robert MacGowan, there has come to light one robbery committed in this city during the past month in which the property of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Abbott was stolen from trunks while being packed for shipment to New York. It also develops that the thief is an alleged bigamist, having a wife in Trenton, it is said by the police, and another with whom he lived here and whom he married in Camden a year ago. This latter wife has disappeared and she is being sought by the police of two cities.

On last Wednesday morning Robert Murray, the auctioneer, reported to Chief of Police Kiely that he had come into possession of some fine linen towels, tablecloths, etc., on which there were initials and that he was suspicious of the ownership of the goods. Upon examination they proved to be about $150 worth of the finest goods and were proven to be the property of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abbott. On questioning Mr. Murray, Chief Kiely learned that he had purchased the stuff from Cameron.

Cameron secured the goods while working as assistant to a local furniture packer. The woman whom Cameron had introduced as his wife assisted in the disposal of the goods and immediately vanished. On Wednesday evening Chief Kiely received word from the Trenton police that they had arrested Cameron or MacGowan on another charge and that having found several pawn tickets in his pockets dated Plainfield asked the chief to look the man up. The investigation resulted in the above findings.

While here Cameron lived under the name of MacGowan and with his wife boarded with William Karger, a fireman, on East Second street. It is believed that Cameron succeeded in looting other homes during his short stay here and after the goods represented by the pawn tickets are found they will probably be recovered. Cameron will have to face the charge of bigamy as well as two charges of robbery and it is not at all likely that he can be prosecuted in this county until after serving possible sentences. In any event it looks as though Mr. Murray were out his twelve dollars and the recovery of the stolen linen assured. The goods had been stored in Stillman's ware house pending their packing and removal to New York. The total amount of Cameron's stealings cannot now be ascertained.

REV. DR. EATON TO PREACH AT MEMORIAL CHAPEL.

Morning preaching services will be held at the Watchung chapel, during this month. Rev. Dr. Richard C. Campbell, of this city, will preach Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock and Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton will preach Sunday morning, July 24. The public is invited.

The Sunday school, of which E. S. Ackor is superintendent, will meet as usual during the summer. The Sunday evening services are held at 7:45 o'clock. The teachers in the Sunday school are as follows: Beginers' departments, Miss Theresa E. Schmidt; primary, Miss Sadies H. Bodenheimer; junior, Miss Dorothy H. Underhill and Miss Jennie L. Coddington; intermediate, George Winans and Mrs. C. Edward Spier; Bible class, Howard J. Vail.

Instructor in Eye Diseases.

Dr. H. V. Hubbard, of Central avenue, has been reappointed instructor in diseases of the eye at the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, New York, and will have full charge of the clinic during the summer season. This is the fifth year that Dr. Hubbard has been honored with this appointment.

Service to be at 12.45.

The remains of the late William W. Titsworth will reach Plainfield from Broklyn, tomorrow afternoon on the train due here about 12.30, and the service at the grave at Hillside cemetery will be held at 12.45 instead of 1.45 as previously stated.

The price axe has dropped—leaving in its course a stupendous array of shattered, cut and chipped off costs on all lines of Summer goods. Everything must go—it is clearance time throughout the store. Not a few bargains here and there, but a huge comprehensibe price reduction affecting all departments.

Freely and deeply we have pared the prices, spurred by our determination to completely clean the decks—disregarding cost and profit is the sole purpose of effecting a final clearance of all Summer goods. This is an unexcelled opportunity to practice common sense, frugality—to buy liberally, yet economically. The high cost of living will not prove a menace to your bank account if you come and reap the benefits of these deeply lowered prices.

SHE WAITED UNTIL SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED.

"I waited four years for a Jerseyman and I've got one at last. I was married Thursday, June 30, at Camden. You were too slow.

"J. M."

The above-quoted words were the contents of a letter received by H. Russel Farnsworth, of Walnut street, Montclair, yesterday.

"Wouldn't that jar you?" queried Farnsworth, as he showed the letter to a friend. "I expected to marry that girl myself some day although I have never seen her in my life," he added.

When questioned closer about the little romance which the brief note and Farnsworth's words both hinted at, the Montclair man told the story.

About four years ago there came into Farnsworth's possession a new $2 bill on the crisp white margin of which was written a woman's name and an address in Philadelphia. In a spirit of fun, the holder of the bank note wrote a brief letter telling of his find and requesting an answer. He also enclosed a comical "buttinsky" card. The epistle he directed to the name and address found on the bill.

Several days later Farnsworth received an answer. About once a month since then, he says, he has exchanged greetings with the woman whom he would not know had he met her on the street. The correspondence was of the lightest nature imaginable, usually a word or two only on a picture postal card.

Whatever the Philadelphian's feelings may have been, Farnsworth admits that he was deeply interested and often thought of asking his correspondent for her picture and more definite information concerning herself. This a sense of delicacy prevented him from doing.

"I expect to go to Philadelphia next week and I had intended to hunt my unknown friend up and get acquainted, but I can't do it now," Farnsworth added.

When asked to tell the woman's name, Farnsworth said he did not know, as the letter telling of the marriage did not say who the bridegroom was. Neither would he tell what name the initials "J. M." stood for.

"What's the use? It's all over now as far as I am concerned," he concluded.

A Fearful Fancy.

If all the suffragettes in the world
were one big suffragette,
And all the mice that were ever born
were in one big mouse, you bet,
And all the anguished cries in the world were gathered in one big peal,
And if that mouse ran after that lady, would that lady squeal?

GOLF.

Jerome D. Travers has resigned from the Montclair Golf Club. This leaves the former national, metropolitan and New Jersey champion without a regular club from which to enter, although he might be said to belong to several in an honorary way. The Fox Hills Golf Club, for instance, makes honorary members of all who have won the national amateur title.

New York members of the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests have arranged for a special train from New York to Bretton Woods, N. H., in time for the annual championship tournament which will be held there July 11 to 16. This organization has a membership of 250 leading advertisers, publishers and advertising agents. It has been said that the prizes in this tournament are the most elaborate of any other, either in this country or in Europe. There are generally six or seven sixteens to qualify. None but members of the association are eligible to participate.

President Taft is honorary president of the association, and L. A. Hamilton, of New York, president. James S. Sherman, vice president of the United States, is honorary vice president of the association, and Charles H. Taylor, publisher of The Boston Globe, is vice president. Charles Presbrey, of New York, is secretary and treasurer.

GEO. SILZER STANDS ON HIS OWN RECORD

New Brunswick, July 8.—In a letter written to Thomas H. Hagerty, chairman of the Middlesex County Democratic Committee, made public Wednesday, Senator George S. Silzer announces his candidacy for the nomination of Governor on the Democratic ticket. He makes no campaign promises in his announcement other than to say he will stand upon his record in the Senate and declare that he has, to the best of his ability, endeavored to represent the people of the State.

He is in favor of going back to old-fashioned honesty, economy and business methods; in fact, to first principles. This is only possible, he declares, through the Democratic party since those now in power are but the agents of the special interests instead of servants of the people.

In his letter to Mr. Hagerty he says in part:

"The public usually discounts the promises of a candidate, but in my case those interested can investigate my legislative career and there find out what I have done, and hence will do.

"They will learn that I opposed extravagance in administering the State; have acted independently and have not been controlled; have fought for a rate regulating Public Utilities law that would be effective; have endeavored to strengthen the election laws and stop bribery and corruption; favored direct primaries; equal taxation, and the election of United States Senators by direct vote; have endeavored to repeal the Limited Tax Rate law; have opposed the killing of bills in committees; have favored an honest and just Employers' Liability law, but opposed makeshifts, have favored the conserving of our resources and properly caring for our dependents; have fought all attempts to destroy the efficiency of our public school system; have fought all attempts to give special privileges to special interests, and have constantly insisted upon equal rights for all; have been against child labor; have favored revaluation of railroad property; have favored the prompt distribution of school funds, and, in fact, have to the best of my ability endeavored to represent the people of the State."

AUTO TOO SPEEDY FOR BICYCLE POLICEMAN.

The efforts of Bicycle Policeman Curtin, of Orange, yesterday morning, to overtake an automobile belonging to Charles Berg, of 215 Highland avenue, a brother of Police Commissioner Henry Berg, of that city, were unavailing, according to Curtin's report, and the brother of the commissioner got away from him at a speed exceeding thirty miles an hour.

Mr. Berg denied that the report was true. In the condition his machine was in this morning it could not have made twenty miles an hour, he said, and he added that the motor stalled twice on his way from his home to the factory of F. Berg & Co., of Orange Valley, of which firm he is a member.

Reports have floated in to the Orange police station from time to time that Mr. Berg's machine frequently traveled at high speed in the streets of Orange, but the first real complaint was received yesterday morning from Dr. Charles S. Smith, of 91 Highland avenue.

According to Dr. Smith, Mr. Berg's auto passed his place a half-dozen times each day, traveling at a rate of about fifty miles an hour, and it had become dangerous to cross the streets, he said. He asked that the police take some action. According to the police, he expressed a willingness to be a witness if needed. He had spoken to both Mr. Berg and his chauffeur, he told the police, but without result.

Later Dr. Smith said that the neighbors were indignant at the way Mr. Berg's machine traveled back and forth. The danger to children, he said, was great.

About 8 o'clock yesterday morning Curtin, who has made several arrests of speed law violators in the past few weeks, was sent to Highland avenue with a wheel equipped with a speedometer and with orders to investigate the truth of Mr. Smith's charges. Although he peddled hard, Curtin claims, he could not catch up to the Berg car and before he quit his speedometer indicated that the machine was going at a clip better than a mile in two minutes, his report stated.

SEEKING TO PREVENT LAST HOUR REPRIEVES.

Trenton, July 7.—A movement is on foot in this State to have the Court of Pardons offer a law which will make it impossible for counsel for a condemned man to obtain a writ to save the client from death at the last minute, as was the case a few days ago, when counsel for Arthur Rose, the wife murderer, obtained a writ from Justice Minturn at Trenton, which saved his life.

This case and others somewhat similar are being used as instances to show that the law should be changed, and no writ issued within twenty-four hours of the time set for execution of sentence.

DETECT MONEY ORDER FRAUDS BY ITALIANS.

Somerville, July 8.—A plot to defraud the government by raising money orders has been unearthed by secret service officers at Raritan. Wednesday afternoon John Sandusky, who has been living in Raritan for some time, was arrested on a charge of raising a money order from $6 to $60. He was found with a gang of men who were working on a bridge at Milltown, several miles above Raritan. He had previously lived in Asbury, and the postmistress at that place was brought to Raritan Wednesday night. She identified him in a group of Italians as the person who took out a money order in that place which had also been raised.

It is said that money orders have been taken out at Dunellen and several other places in this part of the State made payable to a New York banker. The money for all these orders has been transmitted by these bankers to the same person in Europe. All of the orders have been raised.

Sanduski was taken to Newark last night to be arraigned before the United States commissioner in that place. It is expected that other arrests will follow.

"OH, WHAT A GOOD IDEA!"

There is always trouble when machining hems or tucks in fine muslins. The flimsy material is apt to pucker, and it is not always easy to regulate tensions exactly to prevent this before mischief is done. The matter is simple enough if you know a little trick.

Put your delicate muslin under the needle just as though you were going to begin work in the usual way. Then have ready some narrow strips of paper and slip one of these under the muslin and proceed to machine away. The effect will be like machining a firm piece of calico, instead of puckering gauze. Of course, the strips are machined to the garment, but it is perfectly easy to break this away after the work is finished, and instead of doing harm it helps to keep the hems straight and firm.

Another little dodge is useful for those who prefer hand tucks for baby and underlinen, but yearn for the accuracy of the tucker on the sewing machine for spacing and straightness. Run the tucks with the machine, but without a thread. Then you have them set ready and the tucks are done by hand where the little holes have already made their mark.

WANT PRETTY NECKS? AVOID HIGH COLLARS.

The careful woman who grows old gracefully and tardily should keep her throat young, both from the standpoint of voice and appearance.

To most women the second appeals with more emphasis and to them belongs the advise: avoid high collars.

In view of the season and its fashion this advise should be easily followed. There is really no reason why a women's throat should become stringy, for such a condition is far too homely and aging in effect for one to permit it to arrive before she has passed middle age, but it is not uncommon now to see a woman of 35 years whose throat shows signs of age from wearing tight, high collars.

These high neck pieces impede circulation, so the tissues starve. This fact also accounts for many severe headaches.

Nervousness, too, accentuates this stringy condition, but neither of these two contributing causes will be fatal to beauty if one is willing to massage and exercise the muscles and flesh of the neck every day.

Incidentally the matter of collars should receive consideration. No dressmaker should be permitted to make them so tight that they stop a natural circulation of the blood.

Nor is there need of neck dressings being too closely fitting, for if properly shaped and smoothly boned they will be perfect in fit and yet not constricting.

Exercises to keep the throat in condition are of the simplest. They consist merely of stretching the throat cords, working to keep them elastic and strong, instead of becoming flabby and weak. Bare the neck when exercising.

Begin by bending the head down until the chin touches the chest, and then putting it back as far as the throat may be pulled. There must be a sensation of pulling from the cords under the chin, for without it the muscles will not be used.

Next the head should be twisted from one side to the other, always with a lifting motion, while the chin is held high.

Beyond these movements there are none which will really strengthen the throat cords.

Finally massage, applying a flesh building cream. The latter need not be rubbed under the chin, but the front of the neck should be well soaked with it at night, and this oil should be rubbed in with a firm, rotary movement.

—Chief T. O. Doane has at last received his runabout and is tuning it up in preparation for emergencies. It is a Brush machine, a duplicate of the one in use by Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett. The chief is pleased with the car and when it is fitted with a gong its equipment will be complete.

Pine Stronger Than Steel.

Calculation confirmed by experiment has shown that, weight for weight, pine wood is stronger than steel in both transverse and tensile strength. It is regarded as doubtful if any metal could be made into a hollow rod equaling a bamboo rod in stiffness without exceeding it in weight. In structures of wood the weak points are always at the joints.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Hint to Amateur Carpenters.

A nail driven into oak or other timber oftentimes bends or breaks. To avoid this all is needed is a little wax or soap. The nail, if greased with either of these will go straight into the board. Carpenters who do finishing work bore a small hole in the handle of their hammers and then fill it with either wax or soap, running the nails into it as they use them.

Superlatively Great.

A group of men were seated about a table in the cafe of a western club discussing the rise of the prohibition sentiment when Wade Ellis bustled in. "A great man," said one. "A very great man," replied another; "he had John D. Rockefeller on the stand for a whole day and forced John to admit that he made money."

Ingrate.

The Lady with the Feather—"'No,' I said, 'this is too much. I've allowed you to buy me flowers and chocolates and to take me to theaters and dinners; I've even granted you the liberty of hiring a motor car for me—and this, I said, is all the thanks I get—you try to kiss me.'"—The Sketch.

Farmer Boy Presidents.

Prof. W. J. Spillman declares that the farms have furnished this country with 92 per cent. of its presidents, 91 per cent. of its governors, 83 per cent. of its cabinet officers, 70 per cent. of its senators, 64 per cent. of its congressmen and 55 per cent. of its railroad presidents.

Power of Wealth.

The ultimate test of the real efficiency of a rich man is to be able to get his divorce without due publicity and attendant scandal, except in those few cases where they rather enjoy the new sensation of notoriety, a phase which is really pathological.—Life.

How He Got It.

The kind lady had just handed the hungry hobo a sandwich and a hunk of pie. "Poor man!" she said, sympathetically. "Are you married?" "No'm," answered the H. H. "I got dis hunted look from bein' chased from place t' place by der perlice."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Fighting Plague of Rats.

United action by landowners and farmers is now being taken to put down the rat plague in Haddingtonshire, England. The plague has lately been accountable for enormous loss to game and root plants, and one week lately a thousand rats were destroyed.

Cultivate Discretion.

Discretion is a synonym for tact. To rush in where angels fear to test their wings is as untactful as it is indiscreet. Learn to handle the world with gloves and it will rarely give you a black eye.

Life.

It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness or speaking a true word or making a friend.—John Ruskin.

Truth Above All.

Welcome the beggarliest truth, so it be one, in exchange for the royalest sham. Truth of any kind breeds ever new and better truth.—Thomas Carlyle.

Energy Must Be There.

Energy will do anything that can be done in this world; and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities will make a two-legged animal a man without it.—Goethe.

Daily Health Hint.

If the bodily circulation is sluggish, a useful means of quickening it is by electricity. A current of electricity, carefully applied, will often relieve stiffness and lameness.

Must Have Time to Live.

It was not intended that a man should work as long as his eyes are open. He wants a little time to live as well.

Man's Way.

When a man looks back and sees that temptation is no longer pursuing him, he turns around and begins to pursue it.—Atchison Globe.

Neatly Put.

"I suppose," says the Philosopher of Folly, "that my uncles, the pawnbrokers, might be referred to as 'business relations.'"

Gods.

There is that in man which sooner or later is awakened to dissatisfaction with the gods of his own choosing.—W. Boyd Carpenter.

Mammoth's Tooth.

An enormous tooth from the skull of a mammoth has been picked up by a Lowestoft (Eng.) smack. It weighs 17¾ pounds, and is 34 inches round.

Ancient "Property" Teeth.

The artificial teeth of ivory, bone or wood found while making archeological explorations seem to have been designed for cosmetic purposes exclusively. Like stage "props," they were meant to be gazed upon; to fill the eye, to lend enchantment to a smile, they masqueraded efficiently, but when the owner got down to the serious business of eating they were removed.—New York Medical Journal.

Here's the Limit.

We don't mind hooking her waist, looking to see if her white skirts show, and if her hat is on straight; we don't mind pinning up a veil now and then and cleaning the mud off her rubbers, but when it comes to holding one end of a store switch while she braids it, we think the limit has been reached, and it's time for us to assert our independence.—Detroit Free Press.

New Yorkers Fond of Candy.

Father Knickerbocker has a remarkably sweet tooth. Candymakers say that more of their product is eaten in New York than in any other city in the world and more than in any other three cities on this continent. Men show almost as great fondness for it as women do, and many shops in the business sections are patronized almost exclusively by them.

So It Wouldn't.

Little Ruth found that the horse had stepped on and broken the leg of one of her little chickens. Looking up at the horse, she said reproachfully: "Oh, Bess, how could you be so carefulness? Why, this little chicken wouldn't step on you and hurt you like that for anything."—The Delineator.

The Married Voice.

A dramatic critic has been saying that our most accomplished players cannot reproduce on the stage the "married voice." Even when they are married. There is a peculiar domestic note—used at home—which cannot get over the footlights and was never meant for publicity.

Too Much Variety.

"Bliggins is a genius," said the censorious friend, "but he won't stick to any one thing. He has too many different kinds of ability." "Yes, he's unfortunate. There is no use of being a genius if you're going to be heterogenous."

Chinese Moon Worship.

In China, moon worship still exists and the Chinese say that the man in the moon arranges marriages and ties together with an invisible silken cord the youths and maidens whom he intends to unite; he is evidently the creator of the honeymoon.

Wise Advice.

Strew human life with flowers! Save every hour for the sunshine! Exalt your souls! Widen the sympathies of your hearts! Make joy real now to those you love!—Richard Jeffries.

Thoughtful George.

Miss Sweet—"It is just the sort of engagement ring I preferred. None of my others were nearly so pretty. How thoughtful of you!" George—"Not at all, dear. This is the ring I always used."—Kansas City Journal.

One on Dad.

Father—"What makes you so extravagant with my money, sir?" Son—"Well, dad, I thought you wouldn't like to spend it yourself after working so hard for it."—Boston Transcript.

Forewarned.

Mother—"But why are you afraid to kiss Miss Effie?" The Family Terror—"Because when pa kissed her the other day on the staircase she slapped his face."

End of the Courtship.

"She referred me to her father." "And what did he say?" "He said that was her way of letting undesirable suitors down easy, and gave me a five-cent cigar."

Attraction of London.

All the best intellects, all the most shining and brilliant individuals of the United Kingdom gradually and surely gravitate to London.

Humanity of the Great.

The greatest men are the most humble, the most willing to admit their limitations, and the most reverent.

Alligator's Flesh Edible.

Boiled alligator flesh tastes very much like veal. It is much eaten in India.

Germans Using Less Rye Flour.

A rapid decrease in the use of rye flour for bread in recent years is noted in Germany.

Cause of the Roughness.

This planet is pretty rough because there is hardly any place on it where truth has not been crushed to earth.

Gradations in Idleness.

I call that man idle who might be better employed.—Socrates.

The Best Medicine.

Work is a better remedy for the evils that afflict men than idleness.

No Such Word.

There is no such word as fail in the bright lexicon of the widow.—Judge.

Test Case.

"I'm a 'beauty doctor,'" announced the stranger with the hand satchel full of cosmetics and massage machines. "Do you think I could get any practice around here?"

"Yeou make ugly things pretty, don't yeou?" drawled the old farmer in the speckled shirt.

"That's my business, sir."

"Well, if yeou'll go down back of my barn yeou'll find an old slate-colored cow with one eye and one horn and wrinkles like canals all over her face. She's the ugliest cow in seven states and if yeou can make her pretty I'll agree that yeou be a 'beauty doctor' an' give yeou a dollar."—Chicago Daily News.

Need Help More Than Advice.

In a certain suburb a boy, quite recently, was pushing a well-loaded barrow up a very steep hill. The perspiration poured off the boy, but he leant forward to his work until he was almost horizontal.

"Hi, boy!" called out a benevolent-looking old gentleman, "push the barrow up the hill zigzag, from side to side, and you'll find it will go easier."

The boy shouted back: "Not so much of yer blessed advice! Give us a shove."

MARRIAGE LAW POINTS OF INTEREST TO ALL

Many persons are in doubt or unaware of the requirements of New Jersey's new marriage license law. Among these are not only persons desiring to enter matrimony and who don't know how to get there under the new order of things, but also clergymen, magistrates and others qualified by law to perform the marriage ceremony.

For the benefit of these, the following list of features of the new license law and its obligations are set forth:

A license is required in every case where marriage within the State of New Jersey is contemplated. This applies to residents as well as non-residents.

Both parties to each contemplated marriage must appear in person before the city clerk or other local registrar of vital statistics and give satisfactory replies to a stated list of questions to determine their qualifications. In townships where there is no registrar, the assessor of taxes is the official authorized to issue licenses.

An identifying witness in addition to the parties contemplating marriage, is required, in case where the principals are not known to the city clerk. The identifying witness must also establish his or her own identity to the city clerk.

No license to marry can be issued to any person who, at the time of applying for the same, is under the influence of intoxicating liquor or a narcotic drug, or is an imbecile, epileptic or of unsound mind.

If the prospective bride is a resident of this State, application for a license must be made in the municipality in which she resides.

If the prospective bride is a non-resident of the State and the prospective bridegroom a resident, the application must be made in the municipality in which he resides.

If both parties are non-residents, the license must be obtained in the municipality in which the marriage ceremony is to be performed.

The marriage license and marriage record are on the opposite sides of one certificate. The license when issued is presented to the person performing the marriage, who fills in the record on the reverse side of the paper. This certificate must be filed within five days after the marriage with the proper official of the municipality in which the marriage shall have taken place. Where the license is issued in one municipality and the marriage is performed in another, the return must be made to the proper official of the latter.

Any person hitherto qualified by law to perform a marriage ceremony retains such qualification under the marriage license law.

Persons authorized to perform marriages are also empowered to require statements from contracting parties under oath in order to ascertain whether impediments exist, and to administer such oaths. False statements made under an oath so administered are punishable the same as other forms of perjury.

No fixed period of time need elapsed between the issuance of a license and the performing of the marriage ceremony. The marriage may be solemnized immediately upon the issuing of the license or later, at the convenience of the contracting parties.

Section eleven of the new law provides that "nothing in this act contained shall be deemed or taken to render by common law or other marriage, otherwise lawful, invalid by reason of the failure to take out a license as is herein provided.

The penalty for performing a marriage ceremony without the presentation of a license is imprisonment for a term of six months, a fine not to exceed $500, or both.

The penalty for any person making a false certificate of marriage is $100 fine.

The penalty for failure to file the certificate or official record of marriage within five days with the proper municipal officer is $50 in each instance.

Woman's Way.

Two burglars were on their trial and had engaged a smart lawyer for their defense, who, on cross-examing one of the witnesses, said:

"You say that on the night in question the moon was so bright that you could see the burglars in the room. Was your husband awake at the time?

Witness—I don't know.

"Was his face turned toward you or not?"

The witness answered that she did not know.

"What! You don't know? Now, come; tell me, was his face turned toward you or the wall?"

"I don't know."

"Ah, ha! I thought so" (turning to the jury). "She could not see. She who identifies the prisoners could not see which way her husband's face was turned. Explain that if you can."

"Well, sir, my husband is so bald that in a dim light I can't tell his face from the back of his head."—The Tatler.

TAKE OFF THE FAT WHERE IT SHOWS

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that, no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. The hot weather dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of the society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, 988 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

After the Snakes.

Nearly all the rattlesnakes seen in the zoos of this country and in most of those of Europe are captured by Indian boys and girls on the western reservations. They locate a spot where the snakes come out to sun and then creep up with squirt guns charged with ammonia and spray the rattlers and render them helpless. When the snake revives he is a prisoner and worth three dollars to his captor.

The Sybarites.

The Sybarites were the inhabitants of the ancient city of Sybaris, in southern Italy, founded 720 B. C. They were so greatly addicted to voluptuousness and self-indulgence that their name became a byword among the peoples of antiquity. The word "Sybarite" is used, at the present day, to denote a person devoted to luxury and pleasure.

Coat Too Much Like Heather.

The coat of a red setter normally stands out fairly clearly against heather of the ordinary hue; when, however, it gets soaked with rain it darkens very much and blends very closely with the heather. The Gordon setters are, perhaps, the worst in this regard of assimilating with the color of heather, and so being liable to get a charge of shot.—Country Life.

Value of Black Locust.

The tree that gives the best results with little care after planting is the black locust. It does well on any soil, wet or dry. It is a quick grower and when planted thick—say six feet each way—the trees will grow tall with but little top, and will at the end of five years be ready for the first thinning out.

Wise Move of Japan.

At one period Japan was a close rival of the Chinese empire in the smoking of the poppy. When the victims, however, began to mount into the realm of millions three or four years ago, Japan not only prohibited the importation and manufacture of the drug, but placed a heavy fine on its use.—Putnam's Magazine.

Advice for the Mother.

We all want our children to be happy, and the happiest children are those who have happy mothers. The mother who is gloomy and discontented, fretful and fault-finding, cannot expect to have the confidence and companionship of her children.—Exchange.

Origin of the Waltz.

The waltz originated in Germany during the latter part of the eighteenth century, but did not become fashionable until 1800. It was introduced into England by Baron Neuman and others in 1812. It is termed a popular round dance of three-quarter time.—Chicago Examiner.

Resolution Is Much.

To think we are able is almost to do; to determine upon attainment is frequently attainment itself. Thus earnest resolutions have often seemed to have almost a savor of omnipotence.—Punshion.

Believe in Thick Clothing.

There is a belief prevalent among the natives of Asia Minor that the thicker the clothing worn at all seasons of the year the better it is for the human body, protecting it alike from the winter cold and the summer heat.

Guards' Uniform.

England may well be proud of her Life Guards, and although their dress is antiquated and absurd from the practical point of view, yet from the spectacular and artistic it is beautiful. —London Tailor and Cutter.

Where America Falls Down.

"England has some fine shows," said Mrs. Malaprop, Jr., who had just returned from abroad. "We saw one in London where none of the actors said a word. It's a wonder America couldn't have some of those pantograph productions."

The Philosopher of Folly.

"Hiring a relative as a chauffeur," says the Philosopher of Folly, "and working in your father's office, is like playing poker with your wife—it doesn't prove anything."

A NURSERY SUGGESTION.

No one knows better, or will more appreciate the suggestion than the unfortunate person to whose lot it generally falls to "tidy up" the nursery after it has been in the possession of the little ones for a lengthy period. It is always an excellent thing to instill tidy habits into the children, and to apportion a place in the nursery in which they can deposit all their litter, after they have amused themselves, is a plan which is well worth carrying out.

One of the best ways of doing this is to procure a good-sized packing case and place it in the extreme corner of the room. The two outer sides may be easily draped with some pretty remnant of cretonne, which can be tacked on to the upper edge of the box.

The material should be folded over at the top to form a flounce and from underneath this flounce pleats of the material are arranged to reach the ground and entirely hide the exterior of the box. The box can, of course, be periodically emptied, and a corner of the nursery cannot be better utilized than in this manner.

The little ones should always be made to clear up all their rubbish after they have done playing, and if there is something at hand in which it may be placed they will not mind doing, this, and it will save other people the trouble. The interior of the box may be lined with brown paper, either tacked or pasted to the sides.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Worthy of His Steel.

It is apparent that Honorable Charles Newell Fowler is not going to have things all his own way in his own county in his effort to secure renomination for congress this fall.

Congressman Fowler's attack on Speaker Cannon, United States Senator Kean and other members of the regular Republican organization, has made him persona non grata with the leaders of the Republican party in Union county, and, in fact, in the three counties that form the Fifth congressional district.

It has been made clear to Mr. Fowler that State Treasurer Voorhees, who is the recognized leader of the Republican party in Morris county, is opposed to his renomination upon the ground that Mr. Fowler pledged himself two years ago, when he secured renomination for congress through the support of the Morris county delegates, that he would retire from the field at the completion of his eighth term as congressman.

Mr. Fowler denies that he made this pledge, and insists that he is in the field for a ninth term in the house of representatives.

A few weeks ago, it was announced that James A. McGraw, of Morris county, a prominent lawyer, was a receptive candidate for the position that Mr. Fowler now holds. Later news to the effect that Mr. McGraw is unwilling to make the race. Whether or not this is true, remains to be seen.

However, there is one positive candidate in the field against Mr. Fowler in his own county, in the person of Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield.

Judge Runyon's popularity in Union county cannot be denied. He is the eldest son of Judge Nelson Runyon, and is now in his fortieth year. He was born in Plainfield, and graduated from the High School of that city in 1888, president of his class. That year he entered Yale University and was a classmate of Lee McClung, now treasurer of the United States. In the same class was Henry S. Graves, now chief forester of the United States.

In 1892, he received the decree of bachelor of arts from Yale, and matriculated in the New York law school, from which he was graduated two years later, with the degree of bachelor of laws, being president of his class at that time.

While pursuing his legal education, he was chosen a member of the editorial board of the New York Law School Journal. In 1894, he was admitted to the bar of New York, where he practiced his profession for a time, and then associated himself with his father in the practice of law in Plainfield, having been admitted to the bar in New Jersey as an attorney in 1898. Three years later, he was made a counselor.

Judge Runyon has always been an active and ardent Republican. During the first McKinley campaign, in 1896, he organized the Young Men's Republican Club in Plainfield, and was elected its president. For the following two years he served as a member of the common council in the city of Plainfield, and in 1899 was chosen by an overwhelming vote as city judge, which position he has continuously held for four consecutive terms, polling the largest vote of any candidate of his party on the same ticket, and in some instances being elected without the minority party's opposition.

Judge Runyon is prominent in fraternal organizations, and for sixteen years was teacher of the William N. Runyon Bible class at Hope Memorial chapel, where he did a great work among the young men of that city. He resigned his position to assist in the upbuilding of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which he has been a member for twenty years. He is a lawyer of recognized ability, and a man possessing all the qualities necessary for the making of a distinguished public servant. He is a force in the Fifth district congressional contest that must be reckoned with, and Mr. Fowler will find him a foe worthy of his steel.—Trenton State Gazette.

Judge Runyon for Congress.

In the announcement today of City Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, that he is a candidate for the nomination for Congress from this district in opposition to Congressman Charles N. Folwer, who will undoubtedly seek a re-nomination, opens a campaign which will be hotly contested.

It was earlier expected that a rival candidate to Mr. Fowler would spring up in Mercer county, but no announcement has come from that quarter, and now that Judge Runyon has been prevailed upon by his friends to enter the contest, it is believed that no further candidate will be announced.

The acceptance of Judge Runyon will please not only those in the Republican ranks who have been factionally opposed to Congressman Fowler, but also to a vast number of those of his former friends who have been alienated from him by his recent unwise, bitter, personal attack upon Senator Kean. This combination will make a formidable opposition to Mr. Fowler, and it will require all his finest political endeavor to win the necessary number of delegates to secure the nomination.

Judge Runyon's standing, his ability as an orator, and his wide friendship among men of affairs in the district and among the great fraternal organizations make him an opponent not to be considered lightly.

The issue is joined; the contest will be a hot one.—Elizabeth Journal.

NORFOLK JACKETS.

They are usually good for young girls. Who is young and who isn't? It would a trifle difficult to decide and a little dangerous to state in black and white; but all age limits to the one side, the erect, alert-looking woman is always youthful enough in actual seeming to wear the Norfolk jackets.

Its variations are many, and it is no longer narrowed down to the four box pleats which were its original stamp. They turn sidewise, or they simmer down into one each side. The belt may hold in the pleats or the pleats hold on the belt.

The Norfolk is shorter or longer according to its purpose as a very useful garment or a little ornamental jacket. And in the same way is its material varied.

The rough Scotch and English and Canadian stuffs have given way before those of less rough American weaves, and these in turn, have let in linen for summer wear.

But the Norfolk jacket stands fast.

A case for the gardener is as neat as it is possible to make such a compendium of tools. In it are harbored a pruning knife, thorn scissors and those for gathering flowers, nosegay wire, a measure, a notebook and other convenient items.

HOT OFF THE WIRE FROM CAMP COMFORT

From Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, who has nearly fifty local boys as his charges at Hedges Lake, N. Y., the following interesting bits of news were received today:

I wish you could look in on us at Camp Comfort. Another one of the ten clear fair days of our camp life is drawing to a close. Some of the boys are just in from a fishing trip; some are playing baseball and others are rowing on the lake or resting in the camp hammocks reading. I am seated under the shadow of the trees by the lake shore in my steamer chair, the lake stretching cool and beautiful before me and in the distance the green mountains rising out of a blue haze across the horizon.

We have been blessed with unusually fine weather and good health. There is nothing the matter with our appetites. It takes ten and one-half gallons of milk a day to supply us: a whole ham at a meal and a bushel of peas is enough for one time. We have six tents and a cottage in use; five row boats, two sail boats and a canoe in commission.

The camp routine opens each day with a morning dip—some off the raft, built to accommodate twenty persons at once and anchored in forty feet of water; others off the beach and the pier extending out into four or five feet of water. Then the boys in squads do the camp work. One squad sets the table and acts as waiters; another squad acts as dishwashers; another squad is assigned to get wood, water, ice, milk, mail, clean the boats, lanterns and to assist the cook. Each tent, after breakfast is set in order by its occupants and each boy makes up his own cot. Trips to Shusham, Cambridge, Salem and nearby places are made in parties. The largest fish caught yet was landed by Coyle, a black bass weighing two ounces over three pounds.

On Independence Day we had a sane and safe Fourth, which was spent in carrying through a program of sports for which there were prizes offered to the lucky winners of the events. The boys were divided into three classes, according to age and size. Four prizes, first second, third and fourth were given in each class. The events were: Target shooting, pole vaulting, 100-yard dash, three-legged race, potatoe race, shot put, baseball throw and diving. In the first class the first prize, a gold stick pin and link buttons was won by Coyle. The second prize, silver match box was won by Stine. The third prize, a pair of pearl button links, was won by Little. The fourth prize, silver pencil charm, was won by Thorp. In the second class, Krewson won first prize, a gold and amethyst stick pin. The second prize was captured by Townley, a silver key ring. The third prize, combination set of brush, comb and mirror, in pocket case, was won by Kline. The fourth prize was won by Tillotson, a silver pencil. The third class prizes were captured First, Gus Van De Venter, an enamel and gold tie holder; second prize, a silver knife, won by Middlekauff; third, a note book in case, won by Waldron; Boos captured the silver pencil charm as fourth prize in his class.

The following boys won emblems by winning one or more points in various events: Mosher, Vail, Blaizier, Kreger, Noble, Hoagland, Thorp, Blume, Van Norden, Riley, Berner, Ball, Thomas, Herbert, Lindzey, Woolston, Higgins and Patrick. The prizes were given by friends interested in the boys and our camp.

One event of the day is our mail which is delivered at the rural mail box about a half mile from camp and the dozen copies of the Daily Press are eagerly asked for and a number of copies are distributed in each tent. The boys, if all goes well, will return home on Sunday morning next on the 8.43 train. A number of boys will stay over for a few days longer as boarders and I shall bring five or six new boys up with me when I return on July 12. A number of boys will be inmates of the camp until September 3. Others are here for from two to five and seven weeks. Some applications have just come in and I expect a few to come in later. I thank you for the papers and ask you to say to the friends of the forty-eight of our camp that we are all well and happy.

GESANG AND TURN VEREIN VS. NETHERWOOD TOMORROW.

The Gesang and Turn Verein baseball nine will clash with the Netherwood team at the Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon and a close contest is anticipated by the members of both teams, as each has won a game from the other. The Netherwood team captured the first game after ten innings by the score of 8-7, while the "turners" took the second fight by the score of 3-0. Frederickson and Terry will work for the Netherwoods tomorrow, while Luthman, Montross and Van Droof will do the battery work for the "turners."

H. Hansen, will be out of the Turn Verein line-up for the rest of the season, as he is suffering from an injury to his leg, which he received while playing against the Young Men's Welfare Club of Garwood last Monday.

On Sunday, the "turners" will play the strong Finderne A. C. at Finderne.

FINAL GAME BETWEEN TWO RIVAL B. B. CLUBS.

High Price for This Fruit.

Yesterday was not such an awful hot day at least it did not seem warm enough to turn a man from the path of rectitude, but it evidently affected Michael Benschok, John Lonshall and Mike Brocati, three laborers, of New York. They broke into a water melon laden box car standing in the freight yard and refeshed themselves with the stolen fruit. Judge Runyon fined the three men $8 each this morning after Irving Mundy, an employe in the yards, positively identified the three thirsty ones. They were arrested by Patrolman MacDonald.

Plainfield vs. Orange.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team will met the fast Orange Association team at Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon, and one of the best contests of the season should result. Both nines will have out their full strength. Every time these teams meet there is a close score and there should be no exception to the rule tomorrow.

HOME FOR FINE ARTS, AIM OF NEW YORKERS.

New York, July 8.—John W. Alexander, president of the National Academy of Design, announces that more than a dozen prominent wealthy men have shown a practical interest in the academy's plans to erect a great fine arts building, and have joined with the council in forming a building committee. Mr. Alexander says that whatever amount of money will be required to erect the fine arts building—say from $500,000 to $1,500,000—will unquestionably be given as soon as the proper site is obtained, and money will also be promptly forthcoming for the maintenance of the building. It has been decided to ask the city for a site. Mr. Alexander says:

"New York ought to be the art centre of the country, and it is, in spite of the fact that we have no adequate galleries for the exhibition of current work. Every city in the United States of any size and many very small cities already have beautiful galleries or are building them.

"With an adequate gallery we could have each year exhibitions to which painters and sculptors from all parts of the country would send their works. It could be made the real American salon. Then the pictures, after being exhibited here, could be sent to other large cities and later divided into smaller exhibitions for smaller cities. The art patrons who are interested and the officers and the council of the academy will meet in October, and a strenuous campaign will be begun."

Deputy Grand Chancellor Herman Moosbrugger and staff, of Somerville, will install the officers-elect of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., tonight.

CANCELLED 46 YEAR DEBT, COULDN'T PAY INTEREST

Mrs. Carrie F. Searles, 76 years old, of East Jersey street, Elizabeth, has canceled a $5 debt which she incurred at the store of Black Brothers in Mansfield, Ohio, forty-six years ago. It required many sacrifices in which she saved a few pennies at a time to wipe out the debt. Mrs. Searles, upon whom fell the responsibility of rearing and educating her own child and three grandchildren, has a very small income. Several times she was able to pay the principal of the debt, but refused to do so without including interest.

The Black Brothers are dead, and the debt was forgotten until William G. Black, son of one of the brothers, received this letter and a money order for $5.

"Forty-six years ago I bought $5 worth of goods in Mansfield. I was a poor widow with one child. Fortune has always smiled on me by giving me plenty of friends, but has always given me a poor purse. After a few years I could have sent the $5 with sacrifices, but I was ashamed to send it without interest. Then my son died, leaving me with three little orphans to rear and educate. Now this is accomplished, and I am 76 years old, with only a small income. I despair of ever being able to pay both principal and interest. But I do not wish to die in debt."

"The debt has hung over me like a pall. Now it is paid and my conscience is greatly relieved. A debt is a debt, no matter how long it stands."

TAXATION OF CHURCHES OPPOSED BY DR. VANCE.

Objection to taxation of churches was made by Rev. Dr. James I. Vance in his sermon Sunday morning in the North Reformed Church, Newark. He declared that "the demand that church property be taxed is a narrow and jealous demand."

"The only result of the taxation of church property," said Dr. Vance, "would be the cheapening of church edifices. Churches do not exist for gain, as does all else that is taxed, but to serve the community.

"It would be the same for Newark to tax the city hall as to tax the North Reformed church. Christianity is America's greatest asset. Let us give it abundant room and recognition."

The clergyman discussed "The Blessings of Christian Civilization." He said that while evils exist in the country, the country is better than any other, and better now than it ever was before. The problems should not dismay us; rather challenge us. The blessings create obligations on citizens to preserve them.

"The man who receives all this," said the clergyman, "and recognizes no obligation, but shirks the duties of citizenship, is as much a menace to the country as a criminal. Yes, more, for the criminal can be placed where he is harmless, but the faithless citizen is immune from punishment. One has no more right to neglect the State than the church, politics than religion. Not less sacred than prayer is the ballot."

MEDICAL EXAMINERS TEST MANY APPLICANTS.

Trenton,—July 8.—The State Board of Medical Examiners met Tuesday at the State house and passed upon forty-one examinations for doctors' certificates, thirty-four for the privilege of practising mid-wifery and five for chiropdists' licenses. Following the completion of business the board held an election of officers for the ensuing year. The new officers are:

Dr. William K. Watson, of Jersey City, president; Dr. Horace G. Norton, of this city, secretary, and Dr. Armin Vebelacker, of Morristown, treasurer. The committee on legislation, which will probably, draft some new medical bills for next winter, comprises Dr. Richard Barrington, of Mt. Holly, chairman; Dr. Charles E. Groves, of Orange, and Dr. William Borden, of Passaic.

Of the forty-one applicants for doctors' certificates, all but eight passed, and one is in doubt. Eighteen women failed to pass the midwifery test, out of thirty-four applicants. Of the five examined for chiropodists only two passed.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

"Dreams are curious things," remarked the amateur psychologist. "Time does not seem to enter into their composition at all. For instance, the other day I was sitting on the porch of a hotel with a friend of mine smoking after lunch. It was a drowsy day, and conversation lagged. Presently I saw my friend nodding in his chair. He had dozed off, holding his lighted cigar in his left hand which was folded over his right. His left hand relaxed and the end of the cigar came in gentle contact with the right hand, inflicting a slight burn.

"'The hell it won't!' exclaimed my friend, waking with a start.

"The sentence sounded so incongruous that I burst out laughing. 'Wont what?' I asked.

"'How long have I been asleep?' he asked.

"'Not more than a couple of minutes,' I replied.

"'It doesn't seem possible,' he said. 'During that time I had a dream that pretty nearly took me around the world. I sailed for Southampton, did England, France, Switzerland and a part of Italy, then through the Orient into India. It was in India that I became much interested in one of the native snake charmers. He had the snakes crawling all over him and offered me one to fondle. I told him I was afraid it would bite me. He assured me that it wouldn't, and I took the reptile in my hand. It promptly fastened its fangs in me. I said 'The hell it won't' and dropped it, and then I woke up.'

"I explained the episode of the lighted cigar," concluded the amateur psychologist, "and we both laughed."—N. Y. Sun.

Plans for Postal Banks.

Washington, July 8.—Such meetings of the board of trustees of the projected postal savings banks as are held during the summer will take place at Beverly. This has been agreed upon by the three members. Postmaster-General Hitchcock, Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, and Attorney-General Wickersham.

The organization of postal banks has been informally discussed by members of the board, but no plans will be made for putting them into operation until the board has had an opportunity to talk over the matter with the President. It is not believed that the first of the postal banks can be opened this year.

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"Who says so?" thundered Captain Plum. He sprang to the girl's side and caught her by the arm. "Who says that I will be killed? Tell me—who gave you this warning for me?"

"I—I—tell you so!" stammered the young girl. "I—I—heard the king—they will kill you—" Her lips trembled. Nathaniel saw that her eyes were already red from crying. "You will go?" she pleaded.

Nathaniel had taken her hand and now he held it tightly in his own. His head was thrown back, his eyes were upon the door across the room. When he looked again into the girlish face there was flashing joyous defiance in his eyes; and in his voice there was confession of the truth that had suddenly come to overwhelm whatever law of self-preservation he might have held unto himself.

"No, my dear, I am not going back to my ship," he spoke softly. "Not unless she who is in that room comes out and bids me go herself!"

CHAPTER IV.

The Whipping.

Scarce had the words fallen from his lips when there sounded a slow, heavy step on the stair outside. The young girl snatched her hand free and caught Nathaniel by the wrist.

"It is the king!" she whispered excitedly. "It is the king! Quick—you still have time! You must go—you must go—"

She strove to pull him across the room.

"There—through that door!" she urged.

The slowly ascending steps were half way up the stairs. Nathaniel hesitated. He knew that a moment before there had passed through that door one who carried with her the odor of lilac and his heart leaped to its own conclusion who that person was. He had heard the rustle of the girl's skirt. He had seen the last inch of the door close as Strang's wife pulled it after her. And now he was implored to follow! He sprang forward as the heavy steps neared the landing. His hand was upon the latch—when he paused. Then he turned and bent his head close down to the girl.

"No, I won't do it, my dear," he whispered. "Just now it might make trouble for—her."

He lifted his eyes and saw a man looking at him from the doorway. He needed no further proof to assure him that this was Strang, the king of the Mormons, for the Beaver island prophet was painted well in that region which knew the grip and terror of his power. He was a massive man, with the slow slumbering strength of a beast. He was not much under fifty; but his thick beard, reddish and crinkling, his shaggy hair, and the full-fed ruddiness of his face, with its foundation of heavy jaw, gave him a more youthful appearance. There was in his eyes, set deep and so light that they shone like pale blue glass, the staring assurance that is frequently born of power. In his hand he carried a huge metal-knobbed stick.

In an instant Nathaniel had recovered himself. He advanced a step, bowing coolly.

"I am Captain Plum, of the sloop Typhoon," he said. "I called at your home a short time ago and was directed to your office. As a stranger on the island I did not know that you had an office or I would have come here first."

"Ah!"

The king drew his right foot back half a pace and bowed so low that Nathaniel saw only the crown of his hat. When he raised his head the aggressive stare had gone out of his eyes and a welcoming smile lighted up his face as he advanced with extended hand.

"I am glad to see you, Captain Plum."

His voice was deep and rich, filled with that wonderful vibratory power which seems to strike and attune the hidden chords of one's soul. The man's appearance had not prepossessed Nathaniel, but at the sound of his voice he recognized that which had made him the prophet of men. As the warm hand of the king clasped his own Captain Plum knew that he was in the presence of a master of human destinies, a man whose ponderous red-visaged body was simply the crude instrument through which spoke the marvelous spirit that had enslaved thousands to him, that had enthralled a state legislature and that had hypnotized a federal jury into giving him back his freedom when evidence smothered him in crime. He felt himself sinking in the presence of this man and struggled fiercely to regain himself. He withdrew his hand and straightened himself like a soldier.

"I have come to you with a grievance, Mr. Strang," he began. "A grievance which I feel sure you will do your best to right. Perhaps you are aware that some little time ago—about two weeks back—your people boarded my ship in force and robbed me of several thousand dollars' worth of merchandise."

Strang had drawn a step back.

"Aware of it!" he exclaimed in a voice that shook the room. "Aware of it!" The red of his face turned purple, and he clenched his free hand in sudden passion. "Aware of it!" He repeated the words, this time so gently that Nathaniel could scarcely hear them, and tapped his heavy stick upon the floor.

"No, Captain Plum, I was not aware of it. If I had been—" He shrugged his thick shoulders. The movement, and a sudden gleam of his teeth through his beard, were expressive enough for Nathaniel to understand.

Then the king smiled.

"Are you sure—are you quite sure, Captain Plum, that it was my people who attacked your ship? If so, of course you must have some proof?"

"We were very near to Beaver island and many miles from the mainland," said Nathaniel. "It could only have been your people."

"Ah!"

Strang led the way to a table at the farther end of the room and motioned Nathaniel to a seat opposite him.

"We are a much persecuted people, Captain Plum, very much persecuted indeed." His wonderful voice trembled with a subdued pathos. "We have answered for many sins that have never been ours, Captain Plum, and among them are robbery, piracy and even murder. The people along the coasts are deadly enemies to us—who would be their friends; they commit crimes in our name and we do not retaliate. It was not my people who waylaid your vessel. They were fishermen, probably, who came from the Michigan shore and awaited their opportunity off Beaver island. But I shall investigate this; believe me, I shall investigate this fully, Captain Plum!"

Nathaniel felt something like a great choking fist shoot up into his throat. It was not a sensation of fear but of humiliation—the humiliation of defeat, the knowledge of his own weakness in the hands of this man who had so quickly and so surely blocked his claim. His quick brain saw the futility of argument. He possessed no absolute proof and he had thought that he needed none. Strang saw the flash of doubt in his face, the hesitancy in his answer; he divined the working of the other's brain and in his soft voice, purring with friendship, he followed up his triumph.

"I sympathize with you," he spoke gently, "and my sympathy and word shall help you. We do not welcome strangers among us, for strangers have usually proved themselves our enemies and have done us wrong. But to you I give the freedom of our kingdom. Search where you will, at what hours you will, and when you have found a single proof that your stolen property is among my people—when you have seen a face that you recognize as one of the robbers, return to me and I shall make restitution and punish the evil-doers."

So intensely he spoke, so filled with reason and truth were his words, that Nathaniel thrust out his hand in token of acceptance of the king's terms. And as Strang gripped that hand Captain Plum saw the young girl's face over the prophet's shoulder—a face, white as death in its terror, that told him all he had heard was a lie.

"And when you have done with my people," continued the king, "you will go among that other race, along the mainland, where men have thrown off the restraints of society to give loose reign to lust and avarice; where the Indian is brutified that his wife may be intoxicated by compulsion and prostituted by violence before his eyes; where the forest cabins and the streets of towns are filled with half breeds; where there stalk wretches with withered and tearless eyes, who are in nowise troubled by recollection of robbery, rape and murder. And there you will find whom you are looking for!"

Strang had risen to his feet. His eyes blazed with the fire of smothered hatred and passion and his great voice rolled through his beard tremulous with excitement, but still deep and rich, like the beoming of some melodious instrument. He flung aside his hat as he paced back and forth; his shaggy hair fell upon his shoulders; huge veins stood out upon his forehead—and Nathaniel sat mute as he watched this lion of a man whose great throat quivered with the power that might have stirred a nation—that might have made him president instead of king. He waited for the thunder of that throat and his nerves keyed themselves to meet its bursting passion. But when Strang spoke again it was in a voice as soft and as gentle as a woman's.

"Those are the men who have vilified us, Captain Plum; who have covered us with crimes that we have never committed; who have driven our people into groups that they may be free from depredation; who watch like vultures to despoil our women; wild wifeless men, Captain Plum, who have left families and character behind them and who have sought the wilderness to escape the penalties of law and order. It is they who would destroy us. Go among my own people first, Captain Plum, and find your lost property if you can; and if you can not discover it where in seven years not one child has been born out of wedlock, seek among the Lamanites—and my sheriffs shall follow where you place the crime!"

He had stretched out his arms like one whose plea was of life and death; his face shone with earnestness; his low words throbbed as if his heart were borne upon them for the inspection of its truth and honor. He was Strang the tragedian, the orator, the conqueror of a legislature, a governor, a dozen juries—and of human souls. And as he stood silent for a moment in this attitude Nathaniel rose to his feet, subservient, and believing as others had believed in the fitness of this man. But as his eyes traveled a dozen paces beyond, he saw the young girl gesturing to him in that same terror, and holding up for him to see a slip of paper upon which she had written. And when she had caught his eyes she crumpled the paper into a shapeless ball and tossed it just over the landing to the ground below the stair.

"I thank you for the privileges of the island which you have offered me," said Nathaniel, putting on his hat, "and I shall certainly take advantage of your kindness for a few hours, as I want very much to witness one of your ceremonies which I understand is to take place today. Then, if I have discovered nothing, I shall return to my ship."

"Ah, you wish to see the whipping?" The king smiled his approval. "That is one way we have of punishing slight misdemeanors in our kingdom, Captain Plum. It is an illustration of our intolerance of evil-doers." He turned suddenly toward the girl. "Winnsome, my dear, have you copied the paper I was at work on? I wish to show it to Captain Plum."

He walked slowly toward her and for the first time since her warning Nathaniel had an opportunity of observing the girl without fear of being perceived by the prophet. She was very young, hardly more than a child he would have guessed at first; and yet at second and more careful glance he knew that she could not be under fifteen—perhaps sixteen. Her whole attire was one to add to her childish appearance. Her hair, which was rather short, fell in lustrous dark curls about her face and upon her neck. She wore a fitted coat-like blouse, and knee skirts which disclosed a pretty pair of legs and ankles. As Strang was returning with the paper which she handed to him the girl turned her face to Captain Plum. Her mouth was formed into a round red O and she pointed anxiously to where she had thrown the note. The king's eyes were on his paper and Nathaniel nodded to assure her that he understood.

"I am like a gardener who compels every passing neighbor to go into his back yard and admire his first sprouts," laughed the prophet jovially. "In other words, I do a little writing, and I take a kind of childish joy in making other people read it. But I see this is not in proper shape, so you have escaped. It is a brief history of Beaver island written at the request of the Smithsonian institute, which has already published an article of mine. If you happen to be on the island tomorrow and should you return to this office I shall certainly have you read it if I have to call all of my sheriffs into service!"

He laughed with such open good humor that Nathaniel found himself smiling despite the varied unpleasant sensations within him. "Do you write much?" he asked.

"I get out a daily paper," said the king rather proudly, "and of course, as prophet, I am the translator of what word may be handed down to us from heaven for the direction and commandment of my people. I hold the secret of the Urim and Thummim, which was first delivered by angels into the hands of Joseph, and with it have revealed the word of God as it appears in a book which I have written. Ah—I had forgotten this!" From among a mass of papers and books on the table he drew forth a blue-covered pamphlet and passed it to his companion. "I have only a few copies left but you may have this one, Captain Plum. It will surely interest you. In it I have set forth the troubles existing between my own people and the cyprian-rotted criminals that infest Mackinac and the mainland, and have described our struggle for chastity and honor against these human vultures. It was published two years ago. But conditions are different today. Now—now I am king, and the oppressors in the filth of their crime have become the oppressed!"

The last words boomed from him in a slogan of triumph and as if in echoing mockery there came from the open door the chuckling, mirthless laugh of Obadiah Price.

"Yea—yea—even into the land of the Lamanites are you king!"

At the sound of his voice Strang turned toward him and the sonorous triumph that rumbled in his throat faded to a low greeting. And Nathaniel saw that the little old councilor's eyes glittered boldly as they met the prophet's and that in their glance was neither fear nor servitude but rather a light as of master meeting master. The two advanced and clasped hands and a few low words passed between them while Nathaniel went to the door.

"I will go with you, Captain Nathaniel Plum," called Obadiah. "I will go with you and show you the town."

"The councilor will be your friend," added Strang. "Today he carries with him that authority from the king."

He bowed and Nathaniel passed through the door. Looking back he caught a last warning flash from the girl's eyes. As he hurried down the stair he heard the councilor pause for an instant upon the landing and taking advantage of this opportunity he picked up the crumpled paper, and read these lines:

"Hurry to your ship. In another hour men will be watching for an opportunity to kill you. You will never leave the island alive—unless you go now. The girl you saw through the window sends you this warning."

He thrust the paper into his coat pocket as Obadiah came up behind him.

"Ho, ho, Nat, my boy, I have come fast to catch you—I have come fast!" he whispered. He caught his companion by the arm and Nathaniel felt his hand trembling violently. "Come this way, Nat—beyond the temple. I have things to say to you." His voice was strangely unnatural and when Captain Plum looked down into his face the look in the bead-like eyes startled him. "Nat, you must hurry away with the package!"

"So I understand—if I save my skin, Obadiah Price, I have a notion to kill you!"

They had passed beyond the huge edifice of logs, and as he stopped, hidden from the view of the king's office, Nathaniel caught the councilor's arm in a grip that crushed to the bone.

"I have a notion to kill you!" he repeated.

The old man stood unflinching. Not a muscle of his face quivered as the captain's fingers sank into the flesh.

"At the first sign of treachery, at the first sign of danger to myself, I shall shoot you dead!" he finished.

"You may, Nat, you may. From this moment until you leave the island I shall be at your side and no harm shall come to you. But if there should, Nat, or if there should come a moment when you believe that I am your enemy—shoot me!" There was sincerity in his voice that carried conviction to Nathaniel's heart and he released his hold upon the councilor's arm. Regardless of the mystery that surrounded him he believed in Obadiah. But there rose in his breast a mad desire to choke this old man into telling him the truth, to force him to reveal the secrets of this St. Ange plot into which he had been drawn and of which he knew as little as when he first set foot in Strang's kingdom. Yet he realized even as the desire formed itself in his brain that such an effort would be useless.

"If you had remained at the cabin, Nat, you would have known that I was your friend," continued Obadiah. "She would have come to you, but now—it is impossible. You know. You have been warned?"

Nathaniel drew Winnsome's note from his pocket and read it aloud. Obadiah smiled gleefully when he noticed how carefully he kept the handwriting from his eyes.

"Ah, Nat, you are a noble fellow!" he cried, rubbing his hands in his old tireless way. "You would not betray pretty little Winn, eh? And who do you suppose told Winnsome to give you this note?"

"Strang's wife."

"Yea, even so. And it was she who set my old legs a-running for you, my boy. Come, let us move!"

The little councilor was his old self again, chuckling and grimacing and rubbing his hands, and his eyes danced as he spoke of the girl.

"Casey is not a cautious man," he gurgled with a sudden upward leer. "Casey is a fool!"

"Casey!" almost shouted Captain Plum. "What the devil do you mean?"

"Ho, ho, ho—haven't you guessed the truth yet, Nat? While you and I were getting acquainted last night a couple of fishermen from the mainland dropped alongside your sloop. They had been robbed by the Mormon pirates. They cursed Strang. They swore vengeance. And your cautious Casey cursed with 'em, and fed 'em,

"Here Comes the Man Who Is to Kill You!"

and drank with 'em—and he would have had them stay until morning only they were anxious to hurry with their report to Strang. Understand, Nat? Eh? Do you understand?"

Pianos and Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually,

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

Woman Educators.

Intelligent women should be consulted in matters of education generally and in the treatment and dicipline of children especially. But more particularly are they the best judges of the education of girls and the subjects they should be taught. The great majority of public school teachers are women and it might be well to have women on the governing board, with whom these teachers can confer more freely than they can with men.—Baltimore Sun.

Story of a Good Idea.

The history of any good cause may be divided into four stages. First, the world ignores it. Then it ridicules it. That failing, it tries to crucify it. But when the idea triumphs over indifference and ridicule and opposition the world builds monuments to it. This is the travail of truth. These are the labor pains in which freedom is born. —Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow.

Russians Lovers of Music.

As patrons of music the Russians are only second to the Germans; they are devotees of the theater, where musical productions are the chief sources of amusement, and the poorest peasant manages to cheer the dull hours in his lowly home with an accordeon or some other cheap instrument.

Words.

When I was young, if I thought anybody's house was on fire, I said: "Sir, the abode in which you probably passed the delightful years of your youth is in a state of conflagration," and people called me a good writer then; now they say I cannot write at all, because I say: "Sir, your house is on fire."—John Ruskin.

Woman's Body Petrified.

Death from gradual petrification, the body slowly hardening for a year until the flesh became as adamant as marble and proof against incisions, was the report made in the case of Mrs. Catherine Barrow, 46 years old, of Rosedale, La., who succumbed in the Charity hospital.

Pitchfork Buried in a Tree.

An old-fashioned hand-made pitchfork was found imbedded in a tree trunk on the old Colyer farm near Little Blue creek by Daniel Uptegrove the other day. The fork probably had been stuck in the tree half a century before. The tree had grown around it until it covered all except one tine.

Animal Study.

The study of animal behavior, which is now being so vigorously pursued in America by our great field naturalists, will provide, perhaps, the most likely channel along which the main stream of advance will be made toward the fuller comprehension of the mysteries of mental life.—Lancet.

Badly Matched Ears.

No pair of ears, scientists say, are ever perfectly matched, neither are they set exactly alike upon the head. In some cases the ears are so different that they might more appropriately belong to different individuals.

Sound Advice.

Know the true value of time; snatch, seize and enjoy every moment of it. No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination; never put off till tomorrow what you can do to-day.—Lord Chesterfield.

Parental Rivalry.

Society Miss—"How do you like it since your father and mother have been divorced?" Society Master—"Fine! Now each tries to treat me better than the other."—Puck.

An Unrecorded Success.

Some fortunes have been made in a hurry, but there is no record of any one keeping up with the expectations of a man just embarking in the chicken business.—Atchison Globe.

The Reason.

Abruzzi named the highest Himalayan peak that he climbed "the Fiancee," because it was so hard to win, or because it was so cold and cheerless, or, perhaps, just out of pure cussedness.

Time will discover everything to posterity; it is a babbler and speaks even when no question is put.—Euripides.

People who know the least are likely to be the most skeptical.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

May sound brutal, but the surest way to keep an ideal is not to attempt to get too familiar with it.

A Square Pot Keeps a Live Fire

Any BOYNTON dealer will gladly point out to you the great advantage of the BOYNTON "Square-Pot" Furnaces over the ordinary round fire pot kind. Being square at bottom, the BOYNTON fire pot has most grate surface. Being perpendicular at corners, it clears of ashes quickest and most thoroughly.

Uninvited Club Visitor.

When some of the coolies of the Bangkok United club opened a door in a small room under the ladies-staircase the other morning they found that a large python had taken up its abode within. There was a stampede immediately, and some members of the club, hearing the noise, went to investigate the cause. By this time the snake was aroused and glided away down a large ventilating shaft. The python was between ten and twelve feet in length. —Java Times.

Paper Currency Preferred.

The gold dollar in the United States has practically gone out of circulation and now it is rumored that the silver dollar is likely to follow it, at least to some extent, into its innocuous desuetude. The reason for this seems to be simply that the govrnent has ceased its practice of paying the expressage on shipments of silver dollars. Banks, therefore, prefer the currency, which is so much lighter, and in many sections of the country in greater demand at their windows.

Cooks Watch Arrival of Guests.

In all private residences the Japanese kitchen is situated at the back of the house, but the hotels, restaurants, etc., have their cuisines facing the main entrance; the reason given for this being that there the cook, hidden from view by a hanging bamboo curtain, can watch the arrival of the guests, and with intuition judge them plebeian or patrician and serve them plain or elaborate dishes as he thinks fit!—Delineator.

Thus Begin Each Day.

I will this day try to live a simple, sincere and serene life; repelling every thought of discontent, anxiety, discouragement, impurity, and self-seeking; cultivating cheerfulness, magnanimity, charity, self-control, and the habit of beautiful silence; exercising economy in expenditure, carefulness in conversation, diligence in appointed service and fidelity in every trust.—Bishop Vincent.

Unusual Honeymoon.

One of the most surprising honeymoons ever spent was that of an elderly widower who took affectionate leave of his young wife—his third—on their wedding day, and started on a leisurely wedding trip accompanied by his young daughter.—New York Times.

Age Made Apparent.

When women go to buy a dress in Japan they tell the shopkeeper their ages, and if they are married or not, as there are special designs for single and married as well as for different ages. So when meeting a woman, you can tell at once how old she is and if she is married or not.

Time's Limit on Success.

At 30 we are trying to cut our names in big letters upon the walls of this tenement of life; 20 years later we have carved it, or shut up our jack-knife.—Holmes, "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

Endless Chain.

What the great thinkers think today the mass of thinkers will think to-morrow; and the day after the great army of non-thinkers will say that they always thought so.

Quaker Rudeness.

A woman is said to be as old as she looks, but that is so unsatisfactory that we suggest that she is, on the average, ten years older than she says she is.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ELKS HERDS AT DETROIT

'Best People on Earth' from All Parts of Union Gather There.

PLAINFIELDERS AMONG THEM.

A Great Program Mapped Out for Visitors Entertainment All During Next Week.

The first of a great herd of Elks who will be at Detroit for the annual convention and reunion to be held in that city next week arrived there last night. Included among the early arrivals were the Grand Lodge officers, who were met at the Union Station, Detroit, by a military band and a prize drill corps of seventy-five men, and escorted to the Hotel Pontchartrain, where the convention headquarters were formally opened.

Among the members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., who will leave here for Detroit tomorrow night are Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Westcott, Miss Catherine Finger, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cose, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander D. Findlay and several others. The party will meet the 8.40 train at South Plainfield where they will accept the courtesy of Jersey City Lodge, No. 211.

The main army of visitors will pour into that city tonight and Sunday. In special and regular trains, in trolley cars and boats, they will arrive from every direction throughout the United States and Canada. Big delegations are reported on their way from New England and the Eastern States. The South will be well represented, according to reports received by the local committee, and the Far West is sending thousands of "the best people on earth." All delegations will be met at the stations and escorted to their hotels by detachements of the Detroit lodge prize drill corps. The women will be taken to their hotels in automobiles, several thousand of which have been placed at the disposal of the reception committee. As rapidly as they arrive the delegates will be escorted to Elks' Temple, where they will be registered and assigned to quarters.

The work of dressing the city of Detroit began several weeks ago and is now practically completed. The decorative and electrical display will surpass any other ever shown here, and is expected to be one of the greatest ever seen in the country. The centre of the electrical display will be at City Hall. Stretching in all four directions the streets are a sea of purple and white flags, streamers and pennants. The grand court of honor is an affair of unusual magnificence and is supplemented by welcome arches spanning the principal thoroughfares in the vicinity of the railroad stations. All of the leading clubs, hotels, department stores and other business houses in the downtown section have provided electrical displays on a large scale, and throughout the residential part of the city there is a general display of flags and bunting.

The entertainment of the visiting Elks will be on a scale never before attempted in this city. Beginning with next Sunday and continuing through the week until Saturday there is not a break in the social program. Something has been arranged for every hour of the day and evening.

The salient features of the wek's program have been arranged as follows:

Sunday.

4 p. m.—All visiting women will be driven in automobiles to points of interest in and about the city, including Belle Isle, the Grand Boulevard and Grosse Pointe.

8.30 p. m.—Thomas A. Edison will turn on the switch to illuminate the city and its decorations.

Monday.

1 p. m.—Water trip to the "Venice of America," the historic flats at the mouth of the St. Clair River.

8.30 p. m.—Formal civic and fraternal welcome to the Grand Lodge at the Lyceum Theatre.

Tuesday.

10 a. m.—First session of Grand Lodge. Excursion trip to Belle Isle and band concerts.

9 p. m.—Grand electrical allegorical parade, depicting the founding and development of the city.

10.59 p. m.—Eleven o'clock toast.

Wednesday.

10 a. m.—Session of Grand Lodge at Lyceum Theatre. Competitive drill contests on Belle Isle commons.

2 p. m.—Summer festival for women on Belle Isle. Land and water battle by naval militia and Michigan National Guard.

8 p. m.—Canoe parade at Belle

HIS 'PULL' NO GOOD HERE

E. J. Hartman, of New Brunswick, is Fined for Fast Driving.

BOASTED OF HIS INFLUENCE.

Kelly Locked Him Up and Court Complimented the Policeman After Prisoner Had Called Him "a Cad."

When E. J. Hartman, of New Brunswick, who claimed to be immune from "persecution by the police" because of his intimate political acquaintance with the authorities in his home town, was fined $10 in the city court this morning by Judge William Runyon and at the same time had to listen to a eulogy of the patrolman who arrested him and his friend Henry Weber, of Richmond street, New Brunswick, he nearly fainted.

Patrolman John Kelly arrested Hartman and Weber on Thursday afternoon for reckless driving at the busiest corner in the city, Park avenue and Front street, incidentally saving the lives of two little girls who were crossing the street at the time. Hartman and Weber were released on cash bail on Thursday evening by Judge Runyon and when their case was called this morning Hartman relieved his system of a few choice excerpts from the English diplomatic code during which he announced that Patrolman Kelly was a "low lived cad" and had no right to arrest him and besides was entirely wrong in his conception of his duties.

Hartman and Weber, according to Patrolman Kelly's statement, drove around the corner of Park avenue and Front street at reckless speed and when asked to stop failed to pay attention to the policeman. Kelly ran after the rig and stopped it receiving abuse for his trouble. "You can't arrest me" said Hartman, "I'm the friend of the Mayor of New Brunswick and the Chief of Police of that city is also my friend," accompanying these sage remarks with epithets unprintable. Patrolman Kelly thought differently about the authority vested in him and drove the rig to headquarters where Mr. Hartman and his friend were locked up.

In deciding to fine Hartman this morning Judge Runyon referred with pride to the reputation of Patrolman Kelly who has not yet been accused of losing his temper nor of ever having been delinquent in his duty. Hartman was represented by Walter L. Hetfield and when fined paid his money promptly.

MUST PAY $5 WEEKLY FOR HIS CHILDREN

After hearing the story of Mrs. Ada Cruse in the city court this morning Judge William N. Runyon placed her husband, Walter Cruse, under $200 bonds to furnish his wife $5 a week for the support of the family of four children. Mrs. Cruse brought the action through Overseer of the Poor Alexander Ayres, who was represented by Robert Newton Crane.

Mrs. Cruse produced a letter written by a Mrs. Ida Robertson, of North Plainfield, which showed the motive for her husband's delinquencies. The letter, written in lead pencil, was full of endearing terms and spoke of a broken heart and other things. The letter fell from the pocket of Cruse's coat unnoticed and it was picked up by his wife. The evidence against Cruse was so strong that Judge Runyon believed the story of neglect and failure to provide and imposed the penalty named. The Cruses are colored folks and the husband is employed at Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. John H. Albert.

Mrs. John H. Albert, aged 58 years, died last night at her home, 340 East Fourth street, following a long illness from pulmonary troubles. She has been a resident of Plainfield practically all her life. She is survived by a husband. The funeral will be held from the late residence on East Fourth street, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

BOOMED FRELINGHUYSEN

Assemblyman W. W. Smalley Would Have "Uncle Joe" as Governor.

PRAISED SOMERSET'S SOLON.

He Also Lauded Union County's Representatives in the Lower House at Trenton at Elizabeth Banquet.

President of the State Senate Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset county, was boomed for Governor by Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, at a meeting of the Twelfth Ward Republican Club, in Elizabeth last night.

It was at first intended that Senator Frelinghuysen would address the meeting, but at the last moment he telegraphed William G. Woodruff, president of the Elizabeth club, that it was impossible for him to appear. As a substitute he sent Assemblyman Smalley.

Before launching the Gubernatorial boom the speaker paid high tribute to Frelinghuysen's State work. He praised teh Senator's automobile and pure food and drug laws, which, he said, Frelinghuysen was largely instrumental in passing.

Smalley also urged that Assemblyman Augustus W. Schwartz, Carlton B. Pierce and Lloyd Thompson, representatives of Union county in the assembly, be re-elected. He complimented the people of Union for having, as he said, such able representatives.

During his address Mr. Smalley did not seem confident that the Republicans would triumph in the coming election. Again and again he urged that the local Republicans select god men for the different offices and advised them not to rely on a man's ability for an office, but on his power as a vote-getter.

His address in part follows:

"One of the best Republicans in New Jersey politics is State Senator Frelinghuysen. During the time he has been working for the State he has been instrumental in passing several laws that showed his sagacity and far sightedness. The automobile and pure food and drug laws were two of the most needed in the country, and much credit is due Mr. Frelinghuysen for their passage.

"Mr. Frelinghuysen is now on a board that is investigating the alleged exorbitant cost of the maintenance of schools. It was by such probes that ovrnor Hughes, of New York, reached the Gubernatorial office, and it will do the State a world of good if Mr. Frelinghuysen has the same success as the New York executive. The higher he goes the better we shall like it.

"At the present time the Democrats are laughing under their sleeves and anticipating a victory in the fall. We should be careful; we need every vote. It is not sufficient to say that Union county is Republican and that you can elect a Republican nominee without any trouble. The State is in need of your vote, and be sure that you place it where it is most needed."

The president endeavored to have Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, who a few days ago announced that he is a candidate for Congress, speak at the meeting but the judge replied that he had an important engagement.

SALVATION ARMY SERVICE HELD FOR A LATE MEMBER.

Funeral services for Harry Pierce, the ten-year-old son of Mrs. Sarah Pierce, were held at the home of the latter at 4 o'clock, yesterday afternoon. The service was in accordance with the ritual of the Salvation Army and was conducted by Captain A. S. Hewitt, both Mrs. Pierce and her son being identified with the army.

There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors, including many from the army. There was also a large display of floral tributes, and the casket was draped with the army flag and surrounded by flowers. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

UNION CO. G.O.P. TICKET

Senator Ackerman Likely to Be Unopposed at the Party Primaries.

TO NAME THREE ASSEMBLYMEN

Thompson, Pierce and Schwartz Are Said to Be Anxious to Be Returned—A Coroner to Be Selected Also.

It is generally believed that State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, will be a candidate for a third term in the upper house at Trenton. The Union county lawmaker is in Europe, but will be home earlier this summer than usual because a candidate for the Senatorship will be chosen at the September primaries.

There is no one else announced as a Republican candidate and it is said to be quite certain that Mr. Ackerman will be unopposed. The "organization," it is said, is strongly for him and, it is believed, that the "progressives" will give him their endorsement.

Three nominations for Assembly will be made at the September primaries. Each of the present assemblymen, Augustus Schwartz, of Elizabeth; Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, and Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, are reported to be seeking renominations. Mr. Pierce has already served three terms capably and there appears to be no opposition to his getting a fourth.

Lloyd Thompson is ending his first term and therefore, it is said following the custom, the "organization" will back him for a renomination. "Gus" Schwartz has already filled two terms and is now actively working to secure a third. He appears to be the only one about whom there is doubt as to the "progressive" attitude. It is reported that he will meet with the opposition of the "new idea" men.

A corner is also to be nominated, but there is no interest shown regarding that office.

COSTLY MAUSOLEUM FOR W. P. SMITH PLOT

William Palmer Smith, of Belvidere avenue, has contracted with one of the largest granite works in Vermont for the erection of what will probably be one of the finest and most costly mausoleums in this part of the country. It is to be built at Hillside Cemetery, in memory of his wife who died several months ago. It will occupy a large piece of ground recently purchased by him.

The plans for the mausoleum, it is said, include a small chapel, where services may be held, and the tomb will be a magnificent one from an architectural point of view. The tomb and land together will approximate a cost of many thousands of dollars and will be an imposing structure in that cemetery where there are many handsome ones.

It is proposed to start the work on the mausoleum within a short time, but it will require several months to complete the same. The site chosen is on one of the highest points in the cemetery from which an unobstructed view of the surrounding country may be obtained.

Mr. Lounsbury Retires.

Fred C. Lounsbury, who has been the active head of the Crescent Embossing Co., since its organization some twelve years ago, has disposed of his interest to out of town parties, who have taken over the management of the business, and will operate the plant loacted in this city. Mr. Lounsbury, who was president and treasurer of the concern, will take a much needed rest during the summer months.

Slevin Retains Codington.

John Slevin, whose case comes up in the borough court next Friday, has engaged William A. Coddington as his counsel. It will be remembered that Mr. Slevin is held under a bond of $1,000 awaiting the outcome of injuries to Michael Martin, who was badly hurt by being struck by Mr. Slevin's automobile last Saturday night.

Will Merge Two Services.

The evening service at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, tomorrow will begin with an Epworth League song service at 7.15, merging with the regular evening meeting. Mme. Brugiere will sing a solo. The topic for the morning discourse by Pastor Kemble will be "Conquest," and in the evening, "Our Resources."

FIGHT PICTURES CRUSADE

Local Endeavorers' Union Decides Action Here is Unnecessary.

AN APPEAL TO GOVERNOR FORT

State C. E. Society Gets Busy to Prevent Jeffries-Johnson Moving Pictures Being Shown in New Jersey.

No action will be taken by the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union in the movement of the State Endeavorers' Union to prevent the showing of moving pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight here. This decision is due to the fact that Manager Harry S. Sanderson, who holds the only theatre license in the city announced some days ago that he would not permit such pictures to be shown in any house he controls. And it is well known that the Mayor and Common Council, who are vested with authority in such matters, would not grant a license to any moving picture promoter who might want to use the films here. As for Dunellen, New Market, Scotch Plains and other nearby places, where the Endeavor Societies are members of the local union, it would be impossible to show the pictures particularly as the company producing the fight pictures charge a fee of $1,000 a day for their use.

State President John T. Sproull, of Arlington, president of the State C. E. Society, told a reporter that he issued a letter to each of the eleven hundred societies in New Jersey asking them to indorse a telegram sent to Governor Fort yesterday by Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, of Washington, N. J. The action of the State Endeavor Christian citizenship chairman is similar to that of General Secretary William Shaw, of Boston, who on Tuesday requested the Governor of Massachusetts, to prohibit an exhibition of the fight. Mr. Sproull will bring the matter before the State executive board at its July meeting.

The minister is chairman of the Christian citizenship department of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union, and his telegram to Governor Fort reads:

"Twenty-two thousand Christian Endeavorers of New Jersey beg of you to prohibit moving picture scenes of prize fight."

Dr. Johnson followed up the telegram by the following letter which he mailed to Governor Fort yesterday:

"In the name of every Christian Endeavor Society in New Jersey, embracing, as they do, thousands of our truest and best young men and women, I beg of you to use all powers vested in you to prohibit the exhibition by moving pictures or by any other method the brutal and dehumanizing prize fight that has disgraced this nation and has drawn forth the protest of the better portion of mankind. We appeal to you with confidence in this matter, for your attitude on moral questions such as the sanctity of the Sabbath make us believe that while you are Governor of New Jersey the best interests of the people will be conserved.

"We beg of you to count on 22,000 Christian Endeavorers as at your back in the prohibition of these moving picture prize fight scenes."

Clarence La Rue, vice president of the Union County C. E. Society, and formerly president of the local union, said today that he was "very glad that Mr. Sanderson would not permit such pictures to be used at Proctor's Theatre," and that as Mr. Sanderson would not allow them at the Plainfield theatre, that there is no need for the local union to take any action.

SALESMAN IS DROWNED

William Moffett Loses His Life While Bathing at South River.

HE WAS OFF ON HIS VACATION.

Body Recovered This Morning—Forty Years of Age—Survived by Wife and Three Children.

Notwithstanding the report that William Moffett, of Elmwood place, whose body was found at South River this morning was a suicide, it has since been learned that his sudden demise was the result of an accident.

While enjoying a ten day's vacation Mr. Moffett went to South River where he had a number of friends, and it is believed that while he was bathing he was suddenly seized with cramps and sank before assistance could reach him.

Mr. Moffett had been in the employ of Max Weinberger, a clothier of West Front street, for a number of years before the business was taken over by J. Weinberger, the present proprietor, and had always borne a good reputation and was a fine salesman. When Mr. Weinberger was interviewed this afternoon he showed his sympathy with the family of Mr. Moffett by referring to the dead man as one of his best employes.

Reports concerning the sudden drowning of Mr. Moffett reached this this morning. According to the stories told to Chief of Police Michael O'Connor, of New Brunswick, and Coroner John G. Hubbard, of the same city, Mr. Moffett jumped from the pier at South River with the intention of showing his ability as a swimmer. It is a well known fact that Mr. Moffett could not swim and in fact was afraid of the water. It is believed that while bathing he was suddenly seized with cramps and instead of trying to impress the onlookers he was really trying to signal for help.

Identification of the body was made through a business card found in the pocket of a coat worn by Mr. Moffett and a letter addressed to him by his wife and several postal cards found in other parts of the clothing.

Mr. Moffett is survived by a wife and three children, the eldest of whom is fourteen years old. He was forty-two years old and was well known to a host of friends in this city. The notice of the funeral will be given later.

IT WILL COST HER $20 IF SHE REPEATS OFFENSE

In an endeavor to promote the peace between the families of Joseph Erner and Hannah Minor, the latter was fined twenty dollars with a suspension of its payment this morning by City Judge Runyon, but in event of her forgetting herself and repeating her language the fine will have to be paid.

In court this morning Counsellor Samuel S. Swackhamer, who appeared in behalf of Mr. Erner and his family, showed that the trouble had been of long standing and that Mrs. Minor had been the aggressor in all the troubles of the two families.

Judge Runyon in imposing sentence asked the two families to keep apart and Mr. Swackhamer said that his clients would in no way provoke further trouble. The whole fracas was a controversy over a clothesline and occupied nearly an hour of the court's time.

TO PRESERVE BIRD LIFE

U. S. Delegate to International Audubon Society Sessions Returns.

SUPPORTED BY 14 POWERS.

William Dutcher Talks Interestingly of the Work Accomplished At Berlin Convention.

"Women will eventually have to deny themselves the pleasure of adorning their headgear with feathers and plumes of the aims of the International Audubon Societies recently held in Berlin, Germany, are realized. The fact that fourteen of the Powers have taken up seriously the preservation of birds in the various countries means that the wanton killing of the feathered beauties must stop."

William Dutcher, of Central avenue, who returned yesterday on the Cunarder Mauretania, made the foregoing declaration last night. Mr. Dutcher represented the Department of State, the Smithsonian Institution, the National Museum of American Ornithology and the National Association of Audubon Societies, at the recent convention in Berlin. Two hundred and fifty delegates representing Germany, France, Russia, England, Italy, Denmark, Norway and Sweden and other countries convened during the week of May 30 to June 5 and during the several sessions resolutions were adopted with unanimity regarding the saving of birds and safeguards outlined for their protection.

The discussion on the subject of the preservation of birds in all the countries represented lasted at intervals during the entire week and resulted in the drawing of tentative plans which will lead to final executive action everywhere. It was finally decided that the killing of birds for their plumage would have to be stopped and stringent measures will be taken, especially in tropical countries, to create a feeling of regard for the lives of all birds.

A resolution was passed relating to the exportation and importation of birds which has for its object the prevention of the traffic. An international commission was established to look after this end of the warfare. On this commission are Mr. Dutcher, Dr. T. S. Palmer, of the United States Agricultural Bureau, at Washington, representing this country, and Lord Avebury and James Buckland, of England, representing the other powers. Mr. Buckland is one of the foremost ornithologists in the world and his influence will be felt in every part of the world.

Each member of the commission was instructed to present to his respective governments for immediate action and reports will be made within the next month covering the results of the convention. Mr. Dutcher said that in Switzerland he had found the people heartily in sympathy with the movement to preserve the bird life of that country and in fact wherever he traveled the sentiment was against using bird plumage for adornment. Mr. Dutcher materially assisted Lord Crewe and Sir Edward Grey to pass a bill through parliament which had for its object the prevention of the use of plumage in women's hats in the British Empire. The result of his special trip to London in behalf of the bill was successful.

Another interesting feature of the congress was the receipt from Mrs. Russell Sage of a gift of $5,000 for three years, a total of $15,000 which Mrs. Sage desires to be used to conduct a special campaign for the protection of robins. In the letter accompanying the gift Mrs. Sage declared that the slaughter of these birds by foreigners was fast killing off the species in several parts of the United States, and she hoped that by the judicious use of the fund thus provided some measures might be adopted to preserve this distinctly American bird.

The Mauretania did not escape the terrific wind storm which swept the Atlantic on July 4 and had it not been for this contretemps would have undoubtedly broken the record. The Fourth of July celebration which had been planned for that day had to be postponed until the fifth. Martin Littleton was the speaker on that occasion and made one of his inimitable speeches bringing out the cheers of the audience of over five hundred people. Aside from this incidental bad day the voyage home was a pleasant one.

The campaign for bird preservation will be pressed from now on and it is hoped by the societies interested that laws will be passed within the next year which will put a stop forever to the wanton destruction of bird life.

DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

The title to lot 55, 56, 57 and 58, in block 28, corner of Washington avenue and Third street, was passed yesterday by Harry F. Cramer to H. B. Eckert, of Kingston, N. Y. Mr. Eckert will immediately erect a nine-room house and a seven-room house, with all improvements, which are to be completed early in the fall. Mr. Eckert, who is now stopping at the Mountain View cottage, will occupy the first house and his mother and sister, the latter. The deal was consummated through the Charles E. Tinsman agency.

Constable R. L. Pierce had quite a thrilling experience yesterday morning when he went just outside the village to dispossess a family. An altercation arose, resulting in the occupant of the house picking up an ax and hurling it at the constable. It missed him and he drew his gun, hoping thereby to scare the tenant, but it was of no avail and he departed leaving the tenant still in possession.

The Dunellen Field Club baseball nine meets the Little Falls team on the Madison avenue field this afternoon at 3.30. Coakley, the star twirler of the visiting nine, will be in the box for them.

The condition of Mr. Conklin, of Lincoln avenue, who was severely injured by a fall from the second story of a house in Dewey Park, Thursday, was somewhat improved yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Knox, pastor of the Dunellen Methodist church, occupied the pulpit at the Plainfield Rescue Mission in W. C. T. U. Hall, Thursday night. Mr. and Mrs. Knox also sang.

Rev. H. N. Jordan, of Dunellen, occupied the pulpit of the Seventh Day Baptist Church in Plainfield this morning, owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw.

Mrs. Ed. Craig, of Dunellen avenue, left yesterday for a six weeks' sojourn at Asbury Park.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Wedding ceremonies at the home of Justice of the Peace Smith are becoming quite popular among the Italian colony. The president of an Italian savings bank in New York city, Joseph Franolini and his wife, who were guests at Mr. Smith's home, witnessed a very unique ceremony on last Thursday night. Those present were much amused when the bride and groom kissed the judge on his right hand and then on his right cheek.

The village is undergoing a transformation scene in the way of improvements. The church grounds are being put in order; the fences repaired and a stone walk laid which adds greatly to its general appearance. The work is being pushed by the industrious little minister, who takes shovel and pick and lends a helping hand.

Rev. J. J. Allen will preach tomorrow both morning and evening. A young men's Bible class is being formed by the pastor and it is expected all the yonug men who attend nowhere else will join this class.

Robert Horn has fenced in his grounds with a privet hedge, and erected stone columns at the entrance of his walk.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Francolini and son have returned home after a few days' sojourn at Brookside Farm.

Mrs. W. A. Schutt, of Bayonne, has returned home after a visit with relatives here.

THUGS' VICTIM DEAD IN ROAD.

Hoboken, July 9.—His face battered horribly, and his pockets emptied, the dead body of Ernest Snider, of Secaucus, a painter, was found at the corner of Newark and Jackson streets early yesterday morning. Five youths who had followed him out of a saloon at First and Madison streets, where he displayed some money, were rounded up by the police and three of them were held by Recorder McGovern without bail to await the action of the grand jury.

Nathan McAvoy, nineteen years old, of 216 Jefferson street; "Tony" Truatt, seventeen years old, of 206 Jackson street, and Arthur Martin, twenty-one years old, of 109 Jackson street, are directly charged with killing Snider. Fred Ahr, seventeen, of 458 First street, and Richard Crazan, seventeen years, of 407 First street, are held by Recorder McGovern as witnesses.

Mrs. Anderson, of 45 Jackson avenue, saw two young men dragging a man's body into the hallway of the house early yesterday morning. She screamed and the men ran away. The police took charge of the body and Detectives Garret and Fallon were detailed on the case. They soon traced the movements of the dead man and learned that he had been in the saloon, had invited the five youths to drink and then he had some quarrel over the bill, seventy cents. He finally paid for the drinks out of a dollar bill, and when he put the change in his pocket it was noticed he had several other bills. When the body was found the pockets were empty of everything except a card with the name "Snider" on it.

At the hearing before Recorder McGovern the men admitted attacking Snider. McAvoy and Martin, the police say, have practically admitted they "did up" the victim. The accused men assert they used only their fists, but the condition of Snider's head and face seem to indicate that brass knuckles or a club was used.

WITTPENN IS ENDORSED.

Bayonne, July 9.—The executive committee of the Democratic Club Thursday night presented a resolution indorsing H. Otto Wittpenn, mayor of Jersey City, for Governor. The action of the executive committee was ratified by the club.

On the recommendation of the executive committee, the club appointed a committee of five to confer with President McCarter of the Public Service Corporation, as to improvements in the trolley service. The committee comprises John Gartland, a civil engineer, who submitted the resolution, and Councilmen Joseph P. McCormack, George Welcher, John Hormack and Neil O'Mahoney. They will demand that more cars be operated; that shelters be established at the various transfer points; the doing away with the delays at Greenville when the cars are shunted into the barns, and the sale of six tickets for twenty-five cents.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

To drive away the cares and the heat, there is no place to spend the summer evening like at the Lyric, Forty-second street, west of Broadway, where Louis aMnn is distributing laughs in "The Cheater," a comic opera, composed by Mr. Fun Bacteria. At Lew Fields' Herald Square, Broadway and Thirty-fifth street, Miss Marie Dressler, the chieftess of happyland, is to be seen in "Tillie's Nightmare." "The Summer Widowers," with Lew Fields, generalissimo of the side-splitting army, and Miss Irene Franklin, are packing the house every night at the Broadway, Forty-first street and Broadway. Read the morning papers for matinee performance announcements and when the day's grind is over take your choice—there are bunches of fun given away free at each show. Last time tonight at the Casino for "The Mikado"—an all star cast.

Greater Dreamland's gates at Coney Island are open wide and the greatest collection of laugh-makers ever placed in New York's big playground—this is the management's announcement. General Manager Gumpertz has sought the wide world for novel amusements and he is more than satisfied wtih the result. In fact he has a world's fair, congress of nations, an exposition of world-sought wonders. Among the big new things will be a Borneo village peopled with savages; Alligator Joe's alligator and crocodile farm, a reproduceion of Florida's eevrglades, with 1,500 living specimens; "The Devil's Thumb," a black art show; and Alias Kid Allen, a spectacle of eevnts in the life of a convict. The Glaciers and "Trip to the Pole," the new ride in Dreamland, is the largest and most picturesque on the Island. A big free circus and a dozen fun-making devices and tricks, all free, will add to the merriment. Being on the sea Dreamland has an ocean boardwalk, promenade and beach, fine bathing and fishing.

LITERARY

There was no surprise in any quarter when, last month, Congress voted to promote Arizona and New Mexico to the rank of statehood. A hard fight, led by Senator Beveridge in his capacity as chairman of the Committee on Territories, gave us the present State of Oklahoma with suitable population and boundaries. Arizona and New Mexico ought to have been united and brought in as one State with a proviso that after fifty years the State might be divided into two if it had population and wealth equal to twice the average of the rest of the tSates of the Union. Let us hope also that their four United State Senators may prove to be men of sound character, even though of limited public experience.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for July.

If one may judge from the printed announcements, the remaining numbers of Lippincott's for the year 1910 will fully equal if not surpass, the extraordinary fine ones brought out since the first of the year. Complete novels by George Randolph Chester, author of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," "The Cash Intrigue," etc; Zona Gale, who wrote "Romance Island," "The Loves of Pelleas and Etarre," etc.; Grace Livingston Hill Lutz, author of those popular books, "Marcia Schuyler" and "Phoebe Deane"; and others equally popular and well known, will appear in the near future. The complete novel for July is "The Lady Thalia," by Henry C. Rowland, author of "Germaine," "Sea Scamps," and other stirring books.

One of the most moving and intensely human stories the Red Book magazine has ever published is "In the Black Shadow," which Edward Price Bell has written for the July issue. An episode in it is a fight in the water between two men, and the reader is unquestionably thrilled by the vividness with which the conflict is portrayed.

"Success Magazine" for July presents the marriage problem from the business girls viewpoint in an interesting article entitled "The Business Girl's Ideals" by Robert Haven Schauffler. "The Chambless Roadtown," by Milo Hastings, contains a plan whereby every home-dweller may enjoy the combined comforts of country and city life. "The Cost of Political Pork," by Arthur I. Street, shows how every citizen helps support Congressional extravagance. Orison Swett Marden's editorial for the month appears under the title "The Paralysis of Fear."

New Brunswick, July 9.—A petition signed by twenty residents of South Amboy, urging that the fight against the removal of the "hole in the wall" in that city be continued was reecived by the Board of Freeholders, Thursday afternoon and referred to the board as a committee of the whole with County Solicitor John A. Coan.

The Court of Chancery decided in favor of the city and Board of Freeholders in their suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad for the removal of this narrow driveway under the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, and the Court of Errors upset the Chancery ruling. The petitioners say if the county permits the case to drop at this time it will show weakness on the part of the county authorities.

John N. Hardy, of Piscataway township, appeared before the board and complained of the high speed at which autoists run their machines over Park avenue. He said if they were not stopped he would move. Director Hendricks advised him that to force the autoists to keep within the speed limit was a township matter.

WESTFIELD BOY DIES OF LOCKJAW.

Elizabeth, July 9.—Lockjaw, resulting from running a rusty nail into his foot, caused the death of Herman Gawthney, ten years old, Thursday night in the Elizabeth General Hospital. The boy was a son of Charles H. and Florence Gawthney, of 522 West Broad street, Westfield. The accident happened about two weeks ago, but lockjaw did not develop until Wednesday night. The victim was brought to the hospital Thursday noon. The body was removed to his late home yesterday morning.

CONVICT TRIES NOVEL METHOD TO GET FREE.

Trenton, July 9.—Inspired by reading a story of a castaway who had himself shipped in a box from a European seaport to this country, Joseph Williams, a second termer, serving twenty years and paying a fine of $3,000 in the State prison, sought to gain his liberty in a similar manner Thursday afternoon. As he was marching from the shop where he was employed, Williams slipped unnoticed from the line of prisoners and jumped into a box which was half filled with prison material waiting to be shipped out yesterday. He was found only after a search of six hours by the noise he made in changing his cramped position.

At 3 o'clock the men were lined up after the day's work and taken to the barber shop of the institution to receive a cleaning up. When the men marched back to their quarters it was noticed that Williams was absent.

The box in which Williams had stowed himself away was located in the main hall leading from the shops. In planning his get-away Williams had not thought to include in his chances the strain on his cramped muscles during the long confinement. At 9.15 in the evening one of the guards returning from the unsuccessful search thought he heard the sound of a movement in the wooden enclosure. Throwing out a quantity of material, he discovered the form of Williams lying face upward. He had turned around, and in doing so struck the side of the box with his foot.

When taken before Keeper Osborne the prisoner would give no reason why he attempted to escape. He will be placed in solitary confinement for the next six days as a punishment for the act.

Y., $3,000; St. Mary's Orphan Asylum, South Orange, $2,000; All Souls' Hospital, Morristown, $2,000; Hudson County Catholic Protectory for Homeless and Wayward Boys at Arlington, $500; St. Vincent's church, Madison, two silver candlesticks, and the residue of the estate provided it meets the approval of the executor. John B. Vreeland, of this city. To Alfred Boisaubin, of Brooklyn, Vincent Boisaubin, of St. Louis, and Edward Boisaubin, of Newark, is given $1,000 each. To a trained nurse Miss Annie K. Hickley, $200, and all his wearing apparel; to each of his servants who had been in the employ of the deceased for more than a year $100 each. Leontine Thebaud is given $2,000 and Mathilde Thebaud $1,000.

It is provided that in case Mr. Vreeland deem it best to give the residue of the estate to the Madison church, that it shall go to the Catholic bishop of the Newark Diocese. The estate is valued at $500,000.

DELAY ACTION ON TROLLEY LOOP GRANT.

Morristown, July 9.—Because the Morris County Traction Company had not the required number of consents to run a loop around the park, the Board of Aldermen, Thursday night, did not take final action on the proposed trolley ordinance. The ordinance was to go on third reading, but Mayor Ayers stated that there were several large property owners who had not given consent. The principal one, the trustees of the First Presbyterian church, the Mayor said, he was informed would do so at an early meeting. Owners who had refused to give consent, he said, were the First National Bank, the Morristown Trust Company and Mrs. William Becker.

By the August meeting, the Executive declared, the necessary consents would probably be obtained and that the ordinance would then come up for final disposition. The meeting last night was an adjourned one, for the purpose of taking up the trolley franchise.

On motion of Alderman Twining, the board appropriated $200 toward the band concerts which are given in James Park Tuesday nights.

Mrs. Ackerman Wants Divorce.

Hackensack, July 9.—Papers were served Thursday on Manley Ackerman, manager of a store here, in connection with a suit instituted by his wife, Mrs. Louise Marie Ackerman, for absolute divorce on statutory grounds. The plaintiff names Miss Evelyn West, cashier of the store, as co-respondent. Miss West was served with papers in a suit for $10,000 for the alleged alienation of Mr. Ackerman's affections. It appears that the plaintiff, together with Abram Bonnema, a private detective, of Garfield, collected the evidence on June 23, when the defendants were found at the home of the co-respondent. Mrs. Ackerman left her home the next morning and has since resided with her parents in Passaic.

Special Election Notice

TO THE LEGAL VOTERS OF THE FIRST ELECTION DISTRICT OF EACH OF FIRST, SECOND, THIRD, AND FOURTH WARDS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD.

Public Notice is hereby given that in accordance with the resolutions adopted by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield on the 20th day of June, 1910, and approved by the Mayor on the same date, of which the following is a true copy:

Whereas, there have been presented to the Common Council four several petitions in writing, the first signed by at least twenty-five per centum of the legal voters of the first election district of the first ward, the second signed by at least twenty-five per centum of the legal voters of the first election district of the second ward, the third signed by at least twenty-five per centum of the legal voters of the first election district of the third ward, and the fourth signed by at least twenty-five per centum of the legal voters of the first election district of the fourth ward, as shown by the registry lists for the last preceding general election, all of said petitions protesting against the use of voting machines at elections to be thereafter held in said several election districts, the said petitions all conform to the requirements of Section 1 of Chapter 163 of the Laws of New Jersey for the year 1908:

Resolved, That the Common Council do hereby order that a Special Election be held in each of said election districts on Tuesday, the 26th day of July, in the year nineteen hundred and ten, being not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the date of this order, to determine upon the retention or rejection of said voting machines in said election districts respectively.

Resolved, That said Special Election be held in all respects as directed by the Act of the Legislature aforesaid, and be held at the usual places of holding elections in said election districts respectively, and that public notice thereof shall be given by the City Clerk by putting up advertisements signed by said Clerk, in at least ten of the most public places within each of said election districts at least eight days prior to and within thirty days next preceding the day of said Special Election, making known the time, place and purpose of holding the same, and also by publishing said advertisement in two newspapers published or circulating in said city, namely, The Daily Press and the Plainfield Courier-News, being the official newspapers in said City, for at least two insertions within the time aforesaid.

A special election will be held in each of the said election districts, that is to say in the first election district of each of the four wards in the City of Plainfield, on Tuesday, the 26th day of July, 1910, at the usual places of holding elections in the said election districts respectively, to determine upon the retention or rejection of the voting machines referred to in the said resolutions.

The said Special Election shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of "An Act to Regulate Elections," Revision of 1898," approved April fourth, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-eight, and the several acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, so far as the same may be applicable except as modified by Chapter 163 of the Laws of the State of New Jersey for the year 1908.

The vote shall be by ballot, which shall have thereon legibly printed or written, or partly printed and partly written, with black ink or pencil either the words "For the voting machine," or the words "Against the voting machine." The ballots shall be deposited in a ballot box, and need not be what is known as "official ballots." At such election no proposition shall be submitted except the foregoing. There shall be no registration for said election, but the board of election shall procure and use a certified copy of the register of voters used at the last preceding general election, and no person shall be entitled to vote whose name does not appear on said register, unless said voter shall appear in person before said board and satisfy said board by affidavit that said voter has acquired the right of suffrage in said election district since said registration was made.

The District Board of Elections shall perform the duties required of them by the said several acts of the Legislature.

The polls for such election shall be held at the usual place of holding elections in the said Election Districts, that is to say:

Keeping in Touch With Home

THE bread-winner is frequently delayed beyond his regular hour. This disturbs the household arrangements. The family does not mind a reasonable delay provided there is notice in advance.

With a telephone in the home a man can advise his family of any delay. A residence telephone also provides the means for the family to communicate with him through the day. Not a week passes that the family has not some urgent message to send to the man of the house.

The cost of residence telephone service is negligible as compared with its convenience.

TOWNSHIP IMPT. SOCIETY TO DISCUSS ANNEXATION

The question of annexing the township with the borou h will be discussed pro and con at a meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Association, to be held at Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann's school, Monday night. All residents of the township are invited to be present and those in the Greenbrook section are especially urged to attend.

Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough; W. de LaR. Anderson, president of the township association; Dr. Groszmann and other prominent residents will lead in the discussion, presenting both sides of the question. The sentiment, at present, seems to be against the proposition so far as the township is concerned, but it is expected that some strong arguments will be brought out in favor of the project.

Other matters to be discussed at the meeting will include taxation and the further improvement of roads throughout the township, both of lively interest at the present time.

LEGACY TAX ILLEGAL.

Court Decision May Require State to Return $250,000 or More It Has Collected.

A decision of the Court of Errors at Trenton that the collateral tax law of 1906 is not applicable to taxes on legacies will doubtless result in New Jersey having to refund $250,000 or $500,000.

This decision was brought about by the heirs of Mrs. Martha T. Fiske Collard, who died at Cairo, Egypt. Mrs. Collard was a resident of Rhode Island. She left stock of the Standard Oil Company to relatives in this State and the State of New Jersey tried to collect a tax of $27,000 on this stock. The matter was carried to the Court of Errors and now that body has decided that not only is this tax illegal, but that hundreds of others which have been imposed were illegal.

Rev. F. St. John Fitch, who has been supplying at the Park Avenue Baptist church, and his son Thomas will go to Halifax, Nova Scotia, during July and August for their vacation. Rev. Mr. Fitch will return in time to supply for the twenty-first and twenty-eighth of August.

SHE TOOK A CHANCE

"Clarice," cooed the bride's dearest girl friend, "you've never told me how you and Jack happened to get engaged."

The bride held back her head and studied the effect of an embroidered initial on something white and fluffy.

"I've never told a living soul," she said.

"Goodness! How exciting! What in the world—"

"Not one living soul! But if you promise you'll never tell anybody—"

"Clarice! You know me better than to think I'd ever breathe a word."

"Well, it was one night last spring. I'd been writing letters in my den and was bored to death. I'd just broken off with Howard, and I hadn't any hopes of a caller, for Tom was in Canada and Martin was working nights on his law cases and Herbert was out of town and that nice Mr. Selbert you kiris were all crazy over—"

"I wasn't, if you mean me, Clarice, you horrid thing! I didn't think he was nice at all, and I always said he'd turn out something we didn't expect."

"Well, he did, when they arrested him for bigamy. But, then, that hasn't anything to do with how Jack and I got engaged.

"It was one of those lovely spring nights, all lilacs and full moon, and people out walking, and I was cooped up in my den all alone, with every blessed man I knew out of the question and nobody at home except Mabel studying her Latin on the porch. You know my den opens right off the end of the front hall."

The bride paused.

"I'd just fixed up that den," she went on, "and I felt so proud of it that I had everybody come in there. So when I heard somebody mount the front steps as if he belonged to the family, and they say something to Mabel, I didn't budge.

"When Mabel called, 'Somebody you know to see you, Clarice,' I just said, 'Tell him to come straight to the den.' I thought maybe Martin had got tired of his law cases and come over for a few minutes.

"Whoever it was walked in as confidently as if he'd been to see me the day before. I liked his step. Don't you think there's a lot of character in the way people walk? This man's walk was firm and even, just as if he knew what he wanted and never would stop until he got it if it took him years and years.

"Then, what do you think? You'd never guess in a thousand years!"

"How perfectly romantic!" murmured the girl friend. "I never could guess, so hurry and tell me."

"He came right into the den and before I could turn around he put his hands over my eyes and said in the nicest voice, 'Guess who!'

"I racked my brain for a minute, for I knew I'd heard the voice before, though whom it belonged to I hadn't the slightest idea. He might be almost anybody, but I knew he was nice, just the way he walked and the way his voice sounded. Besides, I was half crazy for some excitement, and—I think it was just direct inspiration—I said softly:

"'There's only one man in the world who has a right to do that, and I'd know him among a thousand.'

"What do you think of that for nerve! But, goodness! I didn't have time to reflect on what I'd done. Things happened too fast.

"The next thing I remember is that I was all bunched up in Jack Phelps' coat collar and asking him why he'd never written me from Colorado all these years. He'd been away ever since he left college, you know, and he was my first sweetheart—in fact, we were about half engaged when he went away.

"When I saw how perfectly dear he was and how handsome he looked—don't you think he has the loveliest nose?—why, I never said a word; anyway, I was in love with him before I knew what was happening.

"He still thinks I remembered his voice and knew who he was when I said that—he thinks it's perfectly wonderful. Maybe, when I'm an old married woman and Jack's baldheaded I'll tell him about it."

"But not now!" murmured the girl friend, recovering her breath.

"Oh, by no means!" said Clarice.

Facts About Farms.

Nearly 1,000,000 new farms have been created in the United States during the last ten years. In the last ten years the total number of farms has increased 18 per cent. In the older states, from Ohio eastward, there has been going on for 20 years a tendency toward the amalgamation of farms distant from market into larger holdings. On the other hand, this section has witnessed the cutting up into smaller sizes of many farms nearer to market. There are now almost three times as many farms as in 1870, and an unprecedented increase in the value of farm lands and live stock.—American Agriculturist.

A Proof of It.

"Do you think people can ever get to the north pole by aviation?"

"I don't see why not. The question of those who claim to have reached it seems to be all in the air."

Wrong Diagnosis.

Him—Miss Uppson claims she has blue blood in her veins.

Her—She is mistaken. She has it only in her imagination.

Bee Culture in Switzerland.

The flora of Switzerland possesses qualities that produce delicious honey, and thousands of colonies of bees may be seen in the country, being utilized by the people to increase the food supply and commercial products; in fact, the production of honey and wax constitutes an industry of considerable importance to the confederation, as is shown by statistics furnished by the Swiss Society of Apiculturists.

A Primer of Life.

No use to tell people not to be millionaires, for they can't help it when the money-making instinct is born in 'em; and no use to preach to 'em about the happiness of poverty, for some are born to get all the happiness there is in it—which won't fill an old steel thimble. Folks are sure to take the road they were cut out to take, whether there's a golden calf or a hungry lion waiting for 'em.

To Be Taken Into Account.

"You seem to be pretty well pleased with yourself. What's happened? Been hitting it right in the stock market?" "No, my doctor has ordered me to go to Europe for my health." "That doesn't strike me as a thing that should make a man step high and bulge with self-satisfaction." "But, say, old man, think of the compliment there is in such an order."

The Woman in the Moon.

About nine days after the new moon a pretty unmistakably feminine face appears on the western half of the disk. This lunar lady, who is worth watching for, is formed by the mountains and tablelands embraced by the Seas of Tranquility, Vapors and Serenity, and is best seen through an ordinary opera glass.

The Japs' Stamp.

Japanese postage stamps are considered to be the most artistic in the world. There is a great demand for them at present. The first stamps were issued in 1871. There are comparatively few rare ones, the highest price ever known to have been paid for one being $30.—Home Notes.

Dampening the Gloves.

If new gloves are placed between the folds of a damp towel for an hour before being worn they are much easier to put on. The damp causes the kid to become more pliable so that they will stretch to the required shape without cracking or splitting.

How Mountain Ranges Are Formed.

Most mountain ranges are formed by gradual process. Some, however, are formed by sudden upheavals at times of earthquake, some by volcanic eruptions, and some by circumdenudation, that is, by gradual wearing away of the surrounding materials.

A Stickler Indeed.

Hewitt—"He's a stickler for etiquette." Jewett—"I know it. I've known him to say that he wouldn't mind walking to the top floor of a skyscraper if the elevator would simply say, 'Pardon my not rising.'"

Belles of New York.

The American woman does not forever strive to cause a sensation. She makes it a rule to be always conventional and stylishly dressed, and she insists on being in the vanguard of fashion.—Town and Country.

Part of the Scheme.

"Oh, Willie!" exclaimed little Elsie, "what did you open that oven door for? Don't you know that will spoil the cake mamma's baking?" "Sure!" replied Willie, "an' if it's spoiled she'd let us eat all we want of it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Arduous Times.

"Your husband looks all tired out. Is his business heavy?" "Not particularly. But he puts in so much of his day discussing pennant prospects that he has to work at night."

The Horrible Butcher.

Mabel, aged three, taken to the butcher shop for the first time, gazed in horror at the sawdust on the floor. "Pa," she whispered, "does he butcher dolls?"

The Philosopher of Folly.

"The reason so many of our professional athletes aren't properly trained," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is that they have to spend so much time being photographed."

From a Business Standpoint.

"Marriage is not always a failure," says the Philosopher of Folly, "but if you're careful to marry a rich girl, it's nearly as profitable."

Job.

Job never had a telephone hung up on one side of his tent.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Control of Temper Important.

Your temper controls your life; therefore you should learn to control your temper.

A Word for Economy.

He who accustoms himself to buy superfluities may be obliged, ere long, to sell his necessities.—Simmons.

Unnecessary.

One never has to put salt on the tail of trouble in order to catch it.

Unwise Neglect.

Never take off to-morrow the collar you should change to-day.

"Man is competent when his purse is so."—COWPER.

A Good Repository is an excellent place to hold your surplus. From your Repository (when properly fed with your savings) you may keep your PURSE in the condition that Cowper recommends.

Making Him Feel at Home

"It was perfectly dreadful!" said the girl with the imitation Irish lace collar, as she straightened the bolts of ribbon on her counter.

"It must 'a' been funny! What was it?" said the girl who was marking the price tags.

"I just shriek whenever I think of it!" pursued the girl who was straightening the ribbons. "Him calling me up like that when I hadn't seen him in such a time! You see, I've been keeping steady company now with Mr. Sykes for several weeks, so Art and me haven't seen much of each other."

"I think Art is better looking than James Sykes," interrupted the girl who was marking tags. "He has more style!"

"Well, he hasn't got the salary if he has the style!" said the young woman who was straightening the ribbons. "Not that money makes a particle of difference to me, but there's much more to Mr. Sykes than you'd think. And any one who makes fun of his nose doesn't know what she's talking about, and—"

"I ain't got no grudge against Mr. Sykes' nose," said the girl who was marking tags. "He can have any kind of a nose he wants and welcome. What'd he do?"

"Oh, Mr. Sykes didn't do anything," said the girl who was arranging ribbons. "You see, he generally comes over on Wednesday evening, so when somebody called me on the phone I s'posed it was Mr. Sykes.

"'Hello!' he said. 'Going to be home this evening? All right, I'll be over.'

"I had on my blue dress and I got out the chafing dish and the stuff to to make fudge. You wouldn't believe how fond of chocolate fudge Mr. Sykes is! He likes it with nuts in it, and—"

"So does everybody else," said the other girl, ruthlessly. "He ain't so different from the rest of the world when you come right down to it, even though you may think so!"

"Well, anyhow," pursued the girl with the ribbons, "when I heard the bell ring I ran out part way down the stairs to meet him. He sort of likes to have me act as though he was welcome, you know."

"Huh!" said the other girl. "Why don't you have it woven on a door mat?"

"Maybe you think you're funny!" indignantly said the young woman at the ribbon counter. "Just as I made the turn in the stairs I ran right into him. And who do you suppose it was? It was Art!"

"Well," said the other girl, pausing in the operation of marking tags, "what'd you do?"

"If you could 'a' seen his face!" giggled the girl at the ribbons. "Sort o' bewildered and scared and uncertain! There was I rushing down the stairs in my eagerness to meet him, as he supposed, and I guess he thought at first I'd been just sitting at home all these months waiting to hear him ring the door bell! Why, I just hung hold of the newel post and burst out laughing, and after I started I couldn't stop! I simply shrieked! I wish you could 'a' seen him!"

"What'd he do?" asked the other girl.

"He got hold of my shoulder and shook me and wanted to know what on earth was the matter," giggled the girl at the ribbon counter. "And of course I couldn't tell him that I wasn't expecting him. He kept asking what was so funny, and whenever he did I'd start to laughing again. When he saw the things out for the fudge it sort of proved that I did expect him, but then he'd get doubtful again.

"'Lizzie,' says he, finally, after figuring it all out, 'I bet you thought I was someone else!'

"'Why, Art!' I cried, just as mournful as I could, 'didn't you telephone you were coming?' And then I got to laughing again.

"'He's bright, Art is.' But I forgot to say who I was,' he insisted.

"Then I told him that I'd know his voice among a thousand and he told me I was just as much of a jollier as ever, and most of the fudge boiled over, and it was just like old times. Art got real cheerful until I took some of the fudge and put it away, because I wanted to save it for Mr. Sykes. I told him I was saving it for father.

"'Father be blowed!' Art said then. 'Your father'd rather have some fine-cut any day than chocolate fudge! You're stringing me, Lizzie—you've got some one else up your sleeve!'

"I thought I might as well make a good job of it, so I told him solemn-like that there wasn't another man on earth but himself, honest!"

"Did he believe you?" inquired the girl who was marking tags.

"I think he had his doubts," giggled the girl who had finished assorting the ribbons. "But he is coming to see me again to-night."

Heraldry.

According to the highest authorities, heraldry finds its starting point in the totemism of prehistoric man. In the barbaric custom of painting or carving the totem on oars, the bows and sides of canoes, weapons, pillars in front of houses, etc., and in tatooing it on the various parts of the body, as we have the real origin of the insignia that are so precious to the upper-tension of to-day. It was in the ignorant superstition of the savage that he sprang from a crane or a bear or some other animal that the various "coats of arms" of the "big families" of the present time found their inception.—New York American.

Acres and Bible Letters.

It has sometimes been stated that there are more acres in Yorkshire than there are letters in the Bible. A person hearing the statement for the first time is inclined to doubt it, but it is true, all the same. Authorities differ as to the exact acreage of the county, one giving it as 4,882,848 and another as 3,771,843. But the number of letters in the Bible is said to be 3,566,480, so the acres beat the letters with something to spare.—Notes and Queries.

Indian Days.

Marks of Indian days may be found under many old oak trees in southern California, particularly in the mountain districts. It is not uncommon to discover a large stone or bowlder with one flat side showing a little above the surface of the ground and with a hole as large as a quart saucepan in the center. In such holes the squaws crushed the acorns which were thereby ground into meal for food for the red men.

How Pat Was Impressed.

"Was the sermon to-day to y'r liking, Pat?" inquired the priest. "Troth, y'r riverence, it was a grand sermon intirely," said Pat with genuine admiration. "What seemed to take hold of ye?" the priest inquired? "Well, now as ye are for axin' me, begorra, I'll tell ye. What tuk hoult of me most was y'r riverence's perseverance—the way ye wint over the same thing agin and agin."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Pitiful Tragedy.

Because she is blind the mother of Dorothy Kirkham, a seven-year-old Blackpool (Eng.) girl, did not see the frock of her child catch fire while she was playing on the hearth one day recently, and because she is stone deaf she did not hear the screams which Dorothy and her twin sister raised. Despite heroic attempts by the twin sister to extinguish the flames herself, Dorothy was burnt to death.

Pessimistic View of Life.

I do not know what I may appear to the world, but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore and diverting myself in now and then finding a smooth pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me.—Sir Isaac Newton, "Memoirs."

Market for Pleasure Craft.

Bagdad and Bassorah are excellent prospective markets for motor boats and pleasure craft. The possible buyers, however, will pay no attention to catalogues, as they wish to sit in the boat itself, feel it go through the water and enjoy the noise made by the engine.

Age of a Fish.

Prof. Herdman, lecturing at the Royal institution, and describing how to tell the age of a fish, said the lines on the scales of the herring are lines of annual growth. The number of lines on the bones are another indication.—Westminster Gazette.

Health Hint!

One heroic cure for dyspepsia is to eat only when really hungry. As an experienced doctor says: "No man ever died of starvation without being hungry." If the appetite does not return, stimulate it by active exercise.

Uncle Jerry.

"There's two things about this blamed grapefruit that I can't understand," said Uncle Jerry Peebles. "One is that it's called 'grape' fruit, and the other that it's called grape 'fruit.'"

Hypnotism and Marriage.

A Georgian complains that his wife "has hypnotized him." That is a habit women have. Otherwise there would be no marriage.—Charleston News and Courier.

Instinct Impels Exercise.

There is an instinct which impels the human being to seek health in muscular exercise and pleasure in physical exercise. — Sir Francis Treves.

Time Lost.

Women ought to amount to more than men. Think of the time men lose in having their hair cut and getting shaved.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Speech.

It shows an uncharitable spirit to speak ill of the man lower down and an envious one will speak ill of the man higher up.—Atchison Globe.

One Day to One Hundred Years.

"When is a woman most beautiful?" the Georgian is asked. We want to know how old she is first.—Atlanta Georgian.

Truth.

No pleasure is comparable to the standing upon the vantage ground of truth.—Sir Francis Bacon.

The Chinese Day.

GOOD WORK.

Done Daily in Plainfield—Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Plainfield still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, 304 West Second St., Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull, heavy, bearing-down pain in my back bothered me a great deal, especially when I caught cold. I also had frequent headaches and was at times so dizzy that I could scarcely see. If I did much stooping or lifting, my back became very lame and though I used plasters, I was relieved only for the time being. Finally on the advise of a friend, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They acted in every way as represented and in a short time rid me of all symptoms of kidney trouble. I am pleased to recommend a remedy of such undoubted merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Look Upward.

Morbid fancies, diseased imaginings and distorted perspectives are the results of looking into the pit of shame and folly. Impelling impulse, compelling purpose toward the true, the beautiful and the good, flow from pure feeling, high thinking and slow living. That man sees life truly who gains what is best and most uplifting from his living, he who has strengthened his soul by contemplation of the great and good things which bless our humanity.

Game for Children.

Geographical letters is a good game for older children. A bowl filled with letters is placed in the center of the table. All the players seat themselves and the leader draws a letter, throwing it face upward on the table. The one who first calls out the name of a town beginning with that letter is entitled to the letter. When the bowl is empty the players count their letters and the one who has the most wins the game.

Heat the Knife Blade.

To spread the hardest butter easily on the thinnest bread, have a cup of boiling water handy, into which dip the point of the knife each time before cutting a piece from the butter. This renders it just right for spreading evenly. New bread or cakes can be cut without jagged edges if the blade of the knife used be heated for a second in a clear fire.

Friendship.

By friendship I mean the greatest love, and the greatest usefulness, and the most open communication and the noblest sufferings and the most exemplary faithfulness, and the severest truth, and the heartiest counsel, and the greatest union of mind of which brave men and women are capable.—Jeremy Taylor.

Statesmanship.

"How did that man come to be regarded as an authority on the tariff? He never impressed me as much of a student." "No," answered Senator Sorghum. "He didn't spend his time reading books or theorizing. He found out what his constituents wanted, and got it."—Washington Star.

Descriptive.

"What kind of looking girl is this to whom you have become engaged?" asks the old cigar manufacturer of his son, who has come home from college with the glad news. "Oh, she's a leader!" enthusiastically replies the youth. "Colorado claro hair and a panatela shape, dad!"—Judge.

Earth's Most Desolate Spot.

Not only are human inhabitants unknown south of Cape Horn, more than 2,300 miles from the south pole, but, except sea forms, within that space animal life and vegetable life are practically absent save a few low forms of hardy lichens and mosses.

Lacking Something.

"Dey say dat dis yere radium can turn a cullud pusson white," said Uncle Rastus; "but it can't make a complete an' finished job on it onless it kin wipe out his appetite fo' policy, pu'simmons, an' 'possum."

The First Step.

"Now, young man, since you are going into the diplomatic service, let me advise you; if you know anything, don't tell—and if you know something, keep your mouth shut or you will make a blunder."

A Hard Proposition.

Anxious Father—"I wish I knew what to do with my son!" Business Friend—"What is he like?" Anxious Father—"Well, they say he's very like me." (Silence.)

Thetis Couldn't Scold Him.

Little Achilles smiled. "My hair always dries when I go in swimming," he said. Herewith he rejoiced that his vulnerable spot was his heel.—New York Sun.

About 2,000,000 of the natives of Siam are kept busy cultivating rice. Several varieties are cultivated, some requiring only two months, while others require up to six months to ripen.

When a person is down in the world, an ounce of help is better than a pound of preaching.—Bulwer.

Be Helpful.

A man cannot be his highest and best self without giving out those things which are best in him.—Bernard Snell.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"What did Casey tell them?" gasped Nathaniel.

Obadiah hunched his shoulders.

"Enough to warrant a bullet through your head, Nat. Cheerful, isn't it? But we'll fool them, Nat, we'll fool them! You shall board your ship and hurry away with the package, and then you shall make love to Strang's wife—for she will go with you!"

He stopped to enjoy the amazement that was written in every lineament of the other's face. The red blood surged into Nathaniel's neck and deepened on his bronzed cheeks. Slowly the reaction came. When he spoke there was an uneasy gleam in his eyes and his voice was as hard as steel.

"She will go with me, councilor! And why?"

Obadiah had laughed softly as he watched the change. Suddenly he jerked himself erect.

"Sh-h-h!" he whispered. "Keep cool, Nat! Don't show any excitement or fear. Here comes the man who is to kill you!"

He made no move save with his eyes.

"He is coming to speak with me and to get a good look at you," he added in excited haste. "Appear friendly. Agree with what I say. He is the chief of sheriffs, the king's murderer—Arbor Croche!"

He turned as if he had just seen the approaching figure. And he whispered softly, "Winnsome's father!"

Arbor Croche! Nathaniel gave an involuntary shudder as he turned with Obadiah. Croche, chief of sheriffs, scourge of the mainland—the Attila of the Mormon kingdom, whose very name caused the women of the shores to turn white and on whose head the men had secretly set a price in gold! Without knowing it his hand went under his coat. Obadiah saw the movement and as he advanced to meet the officer of the king he jerked the arm back fiercely. Half a dozen paces away the chief of sheriffs paused and bowed low. But the councilor stood erect, as he had stood before the king, smiling and nodding his head.

"Ah, Croche," he greeted, "good morning!"

"Good morning, councilor!"

"Sheriff, I would have you meet Capt. Nathaniel Plum, master of the sloop Typhoon. Captain Plum this is his majesty's officer, Arbor Croche!"

The two men advanced and shook hands. Nathaniel stood half a head above the sheriff, who, like his master, the king, was short and of massive build, though a much younger man. He was a dark, lowering hulk of a creature, with black eyes, black hair, and a hand-clasp that showed him possessed of great strength.

"You are a stranger, Captain Plum?"

The councilor replied quickly.

"He has never been at St. James before, sheriff. I have invited him to stay over to see the whipping. By the way—" he shot a suggestive look at the officer. "By the way, Croche, I want you to see him safely aboard his sloop tonight. His ship is at the lower end of the island, and if you will detail a couple of men just before dusk—an escort, you know—"

Nathaniel felt a curious thrill creep up his spine at the satisfaction which betrayed itself in the officer's black face.

"It will give me great pleasure, councilor," he interrupted. "I shall escort you myself if you will allow me, Captain Plum!"

"Thank you," said Nathaniel.

"Captain Plum is to remain with me throughout the day," added Obadiah. "Come at seven—to my place. Ah, I see that people are assembling near the jail!"

"We have changed our plans somewhat, councilor." The officer turned to Nathaniel. "You will see the whipping within half an hour, Captain Plum." He turned away with another bow to the councilor and hastened in the direction of Strang's office.

"So that is the gentleman who th[illegible] he is going to put a bullet th[illegible] me!" exclaimed Nathaniel when the officer had gone beyond hearing. He laughed, and there was a kind of wild expectant joy in his voice. "Obadiah, can you not make arrangements for him to go with me alone?"

"He will not go with you at all, Nat," gloated the old man. "Ho, ho, we are playing at his own game—treachery. When he calls at my place you will be aboard ship."

"But I should like to have a talk with him—alone, and in the woods. God—I know a man at Grand Traverse bay whose wife and daughter—"

"Sh-h-h-h!" interrupted the councilor. "Would you kill little Winnsome's father?"

"Her father? That animal! That murderer! Is it true?"

"But you should have seen her mother, Nat, you should have seen her mother!" The old man twisted his hands, like a miser ravished by the sight of gold. "She was beautiful—as beautiful as a wild flower, and she killed herself three years ago to save the birth of another child into this hell. Little Winn is like her mother, Nat."

"And she lives with him?"

"Er, yes—and guarded, oh, so carefully guarded by Strang, Nat! Yes, I guess that some day she will be a queen."

"Great God!" cried the young man. "And you—you live in this cesspool of sin and still believe in a heaven?"

"Yes, I believe in a heaven. And my reward there shall be great. Ho, ho, I am taking no middle road, Nat!"

They had passed in a semicircle beyond the temple and now approached a squat building constructed of logs, which Obadiah had pointed out as the jail. A glance satisfied Nathaniel that it was so situated that an admirable view of the proceedings could be obtained from the rear of the structure in which Strang had his office. Several score of people had already assembled about the prison and stood chatting with that tense interest and anticipation with which the mob always awaits public infliction of the law's penalties. A third of them were women. As Nathaniel had previously noted, the feminine part of the Mormon population wore their hair either in braids down their backs or in thick curls flowing over their shoulders and with the exception of three or four were attired in skirts that just concealed their knees. Obadiah halted his companion close to a group of half a dozen of these women and nudged him slyly.

"Pretty sight, eh, Nat?" he chuckled. "Ah, the king has a wonderful eye for beauty, Nat—wonderful eye! He orders that no skirt shall fall below the female knee. Ho, ho, if he dared, if he quite dared, Nat!"

He nudged Nathaniel again with such enthusiasm that the latter jumped as though a knife had been thrust between his ribs.

"By George, I admire his taste!" he laughed. The women caught him staring at them, and one, who was the youngest and prettiest of the lot, smiled invitingly.

"Tush—the Jezebel!" snapped Obadiah, catching the look. "That's her child playing just beyond."

The young woman tossed her head and her white teeth gleamed in a laugh, as though she had overheard the old councilor's words.

"See her twist her hair," he snarled venomously as the young woman, still boldly eyeing Nathaniel, played with the luxuriant curls that glistened in the sun upon her breast. "Ezra Wilton is so fond of her that he will take no other wife. Ugh, Strang is a fool!"

Nathaniel turned away from the smiling eyes with a shrug.

"Why?"

"To tell our women that it helps to save their souls to wear short skirts and let their hair hang down. For every soul of a woman that it saves it sends two men on the road to hell!"

So intense was the old man's displeasure and so ludicrous the twisting contortions of his face that Nathaniel could hardly restrain himself from bursting into a roar of laughter. Obadiah perceived his inclination and with an angry bob of his head led the way through to the inner edge of the waiting circle of men. Within this circle, in a small open space, was a short post with straps attached to an arm nailed across it, and leaning upon this post in an attitude of one who possesses a most distinguished office was a young man with a three-thonged whip in his hand. An ominous silence pervaded the circle, with the exception of the hushed whispering of a number of women who had forced themselves into the line of spectators, bent upon witnessing the sight of blood as well as hearing the sound of lashes. Nathaniel noticed that most of the women hung in frightened curiosity beyond the men.

"That is MacDougall with the lash—official whipper and caretaker of the slave hounds," explained Obadiah in a whisper.

Nathaniel gave a start of horror.

"Slave hounds!" he breathed.

The councilor grinned and twisted his hands in enjoyment of his companion's surprise.

"We have the finest pack of bloodhounds north of Louisiana," he continued, so low that only Nathaniel could hear. "See! Isn't the earth worn smooth and hard about that post?"

Nathaniel looked and his blood grew hot.

"I have seen such things in the south," he said. "But not—for white men!"

The councilor caught him by the arm.

"They are coming!"

In the direction of the jail the crowd was separating. Men crushed back on each side, forming a narrow aisle, even the whispering of the women ceased. A moment later three men appeared in the opening between the spectators. One of these, who walked between the other two, was stripped to the waist. About each of his naked wrists was tied a feather thong and these thongs were held by the man's guards. The prisoner's face was livid; his hands were red with blood that dripped from his lacerated wrists; his eyes glared malignantly and his heaving chest showed that he had not been brought from the log prison without a struggle.

"Ah, it's Wittle first!" breathed the councilor. "It's he who said his wife should not wear short skirts."

At the edge of the circle the prisoner hesitated and the muscles in his arms and chest grew rigid. Those of the crowd nearest to him drew back. Then a sudden change swept over the man's features and he walked quickly to the stake and kneeled before it. The thongs about his wrist were tied to the straps of the cross-piece and the whipper took his position. As the first lash fell, a cry burst from the lips of the victim. When the whip descended again he was silent. A curious sensation of sickness crept over Nathaniel as he saw the red gashes thicken on the white flesh. Five times—six times—seven times the whip rose and fell and he could see the blood starting. In horror he turned his eyes away. Behind him a man grinned at the whiteness of his face and the involuntary trembling of his lips. Again and again he heard the lash fall upon the naked back. From near him there came the sobbing moan of a woman. A subdued movement, a sound as of murmuring wordless voices swept through the throng. A steady glitter filled the eyes of the man who had laughed at him—and he turned again to the stake. The man's back was dripping with blood. Great red seams lay upon his shoulders and a single lash had cut his bowed neck. Another stroke, more fierce than the others, and MacDougall turned away from the figure at the post, breathing hard. The guards unfastened the victim's wrist-thongs and the man staggered to his feet. As he swayed down through the path that opened for him his crimson back shone in the sun.

"Great God!" gasped Nathaniel.

He turned to Obadiah and was startled by the appearance of the old man. The councilor's face was ghastly. His mouth twitched and his body trembled. Nathaniel took his arm sympathetically.

"Hadn't we better go, dad?" he whispered.

"No—no—no—not yet, Nat. It's—it's Neil now and I must see how the boy—stands it!"

It was but a short time before the guards returned. This time their prisoner walked free and erect. The thongs dangled from his wrists and he was a pace ahead of the two men who accompanied him. He was a young man. Nathaniel judged his age at twenty-five. He was a striking contrast to the man who had suffered first at the post. His face instead of betraying the former's pallor was flushed with excitement; his head was held high; not a sign of fear or hesitation shone in his eyes. As he glanced quickly around the circle of faces the flush grew deeper in his cheeks. He nodded and smiled at MacDougall and in that nod and smile there was a meaning that sent a shiver to the whipmaster's heart. Then his eyes fell upon Obadiah and Nathaniel. He saw the councilor's hand resting upon the young captain's arm and a flash of understanding passed over his face. For an instant the eyes of the two young men met. The man at the post took half a step forward. His lips moved as if he was on the point of speaking, the defiant smile went out of his face, the flush faded in his cheeks. Then he turned quickly and held out his hands to the guards.

As the young man kneeled before the post Nathaniel heard a smothered sob at his side which he knew came from Obadiah.

"Come, dad," he said softly. "I can't stand this. Let's get away!"

He shoved the councilor back. The lash whistled through the air behind him. As it fell there came a piercing cry. It was a woman's voice, and with a snarl like that of a tortured animal the old man struck down Nathaniel's arm and clawed his way back to the edge of the line. On the opposite side there was a surging in the crowd and as MacDougall raised his whip a woman burst through.

"My God!" cried Nathaniel, "it's—"

He left the rest of the words unspoken. His veins leaped with fire. A single sweep of his powerful arms and he had forced himself through the innermost line of spectators. Within a dozen feet of him stood Strang's wife, her beautiful hair disheveled, her face deadly white, her bosom heaving as if she had been running. In a moment her eyes had taken in the situation—the man at the stake, the upraised lash—and Nathaniel. With a sobbing, breathless cry, she flung herself in front of MacDougall and threw her arms around the kneeling man, her hair covering him in a glistening veil. For an instant her eyes were raised to Nathaniel and he saw in them that same agonized appeal that had called to him through the king's window. The striking muscles of his arms tightened like steel. One of the guards sprang forward and caught the girl roughly by the arm and attempted to drag her away. In his excitement he pulled her head back and her hair trailed in the dirt. The sight was maddening. From Nathaniel's throat there came a fierce cry and in a single leap he had cleared the distance to the guard and had driven his fist against the officer's head with the sickening force of a sledge hammer. The man fell without a groan. In another flash he had drawn his knife and severed the thongs that held the man at the stake. For a moment his face was very near the girl's and he saw her lips form the glad cry which he did not wait to hear.

He turned like an enraged beast toward the circle of dumbfounded spectators and launched himself at the second guard. From behind him there sounded a shout and he caught the gleam of naked shoulders as the man who had been at the stake rushed to his side. Together they tore through the narrow rim of the crowd, striking at the faces which appeared before them, their terrific blows driving men right and left.

"This way, Neil!" shouted Nathaniel. "This way—to the ship!"

They raced up the slope that led from the town to the forest. Even the king's officer, palsied by the suddenness of the attack, had not followed. From a screened window in the king's building two men had witnessed the exciting scene near the jail. One of these men was Strang. The other was Arbor Croche. At another window a few feet away, hidden from their eyes by a high desk and masses of papers and books, Winnsome Croche was crumpled up on the floor hardly daring to breathe through fear of betraying her presence. From these windows they had seen the girl run from behind the jail; they had watched her struggle through the line of spectators, saw Nathaniel leap forward—saw the quick blow, the gleaming knife, and the escape. So suddenly had it all occurred that not a sound escaped the two astonished men. But as Nathaniel and Neil burst through the crowd and sped toward the forest Strang's great voice boomed forth like the rumble of a gun

"Arbor Croche, overtake those men—and kill them!"

With a wild curse the chief of sheriffs dashed down the stairway, and as she heard him go the terror of Winnsome's heart seemed to turn her blood cold. She knew what that command meant. She knew that her father would obey it. As the daughter of the chief of sheriffs more than one burning secret was hidden in her breast, more than one of those frightful daggers that had pricked at the soul of her mother until they had murdered her. And the chief of them all was this: That to Arbor Croche the words of Strang were the words of God and that if the prophet said kill, he would kill. For a full minute she crouched in her concealment, stunned by the horror that had so quickly taken the place of the joy with which she had witnessed the escape. She heard Strang leave the window, heard his heavy steps in the outer room, heard the door close, and knew that he, too, was gone. She sprang to her feet and ran to the window at which the two men had stood. The chief of sheriffs was already at the jail. The crowd had begun to disperse. Men were swarming like ants up the long slope reaching to the forest. Three or four of the leaders were running and she knew that they were hot in pursuit of the fugitives. Others were following more slowly and among these she saw that there were women. As she looked there came a sound from the stair. She recognized the step. She recognized the voice that called her name a moment later and with a despairing cry she turned with outstretched arms to greet the girl for whom Nathaniel had interrupted the king's whipping.

CHAPTER V

The Mystery.

Hardly had Nathaniel fought his way through the thin crowd of startled spectators about the whipping post before the enormity of his offense in interrupting the king's justice dawned upon him. He was not sorry that he had responded to the mute appeal of the girl who had entered so strangely into his life. He rejoiced at the spirit that had moved him to action, that had fired his blood and put the strength of a giant in his arms; and his nerves tingled with an unreasoning joy that he had leaped all barriers which in cooler moments would have restrained him, and which fixed in his excited brain only the memory of the beautiful face that had sought his own in those crucial moments of its suffering. The girl had turned to him and to him alone among all those men. He had heard her voice, he had felt the soft sweep of her hair as he severed the prisoner's thongs, he had caught the flash of her eyes and the movement of her lips as he dashed himself into the crowd. And as he sped swiftly up the slope he considered himself amply repaid for all he had done. His blood was stirred as if by the fire of sharp wines; he was still in a tension of fighting excitement. Yet no sooner had he fought himself clear of the mob than his better judgment leaped into the ascendency. If danger had been lurking for him before it was doubly threatening now and he was sufficiently possessed of the spirit of self preservation to exult at the speed with which he was enabled to leave pursuit behind. A single glance over his shoulder assured him that the man whom he had saved from the prophet's wrath was close at his heels. His first impulse was to direct his flight toward Obadiah's cabin; his second to follow the path that led to his ship. At this hour some of his men would surely be awaiting him in a small boat and once aboard the Typhoon he could continue his campaign against the Mormon king with better chances of success than as a lone fugitive on the island. Besides, he knew what Casey would do at [illegible]

CUSTOM HOUSE EMPLOYE FRACTURED SHOULDER BLADE

Col. James Mulligan, for many years an employe of the Custom House, New York, lies at the home of Mrs. Ida Slater on Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, suffering from a fractured shoulder blade, the result of an accident in New York on Tuesday, while his wife is also ill at the same address.

Col. Mulligan was passing from one room to another darker one at the Custom House on Tuesday, and failing to notice a truck in the middle of the floor, stumbled over it and fell. He was removed to the New York Hospital, where the X-ray discovered that the shoulder blade was fractured. He remained there a few hours and was then brought to the home of Mrs. Slater, where he and his wife are spending the summer. He will be detained for some time. A trained nurse is in attendance.

Many Plainfielders will remember Col. Mulligan when he resided here many years ago. He stopped at what is now the Hotel Kensington. He was prominent as a Democratic politician. On account of Mrs. Mulligan's health it was decided to come here for the summer, the colonel commuting to New York.

Keen Rivals Clash This Afternoon.

An exceptionally fast and interesting game is looked for this afternoon when the sluggers from the Orange Y. M. C. A. line up against the local Y. M. C. A. team at Crescent Oval. The Orange team is considered as one of the strongest association teams in the State. They humbled the local boys twice last year, while the locals also showed to advantage by downing them twice. Consequently there is great rivalry between the two. This afternoons contest will start at 3.45.

Edward Baker, Jr., of Duer street, left today for Lake Hopatcong, where he will spend a week at Tom Muir's Ram's Horn Camp. Later he will be joined by Chris. Utzinger, of Grandview avenue.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF WILLIAM W. TITSWORTH.

Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, conducted a short service at the grave, in the absence of Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, who is in the west.

Mr. Titsworth, as well as his family, was poisoned by eating chopped meat, purchased from a Brooklyn butcher, but the members of the family were not made so ill and they are now slowly recovering being still under the care of a physician.

Musical Trio to Conduct Services.

There will be a great series of special services at the Salvation Army tent beginning this evening and lasting over tomorrow, when a musical trio from the National Staff Band will have charge of all the services. The trio is composed of Adjutant Palmer, Captain Fowler, and Captain McMillan, all well known to Plainfield audiences. The service this evening will be "A Night with the Poets," by Adjutant Palmer. The recitations will be interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections by Captains Fowler and McMillan. Ice cream will be served in addition. Tomorrow at 4 and 8 o'clock the trio will conduct great evangelistic services. Special music will be a big feature of the services. The ice cream festival will open this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

SERVICES TOMORROW AT FRESH AIR HOME

The Netherwood Fresh Air Home formally opens tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Special services will be held at the main auditorium in view of this. Samuel S. Snowden, of Elizabeth, will be the speaker and music will be furnished by Clifford Braider, piano; Martin Korff, violin; E. D. Young, cornet. Mr. and Mrs. Young as well as several of the camp children, will sing.

The camp has undergone many improvements during the past few months and new furnishings have been put in. The dormitory in the rear has been enlarged and new cribs for the babies have been put in. The walks from the main house to the audtorium has been covered.

A boys' camp has been established across the pond from the regular camp for the use of the older boys. This will be supported by the Christian Endeavor societies of Union county. This camp will be co-ordinate with the regular camp, but will be conducted independently.

Among the gifts received this year is a Steinway piano given by the company. J. D. Loizeaux has given the use of a set of harness and a horse for the summer and William Hobbie has given a carriage.

At present there are about two hundred and fifty children and mothers at the camp. Services will be held every week day evening except Wednesday and Saturday.

AN APPEAL IS MADE BY THE LOCAL S.P.C.A.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, through Special Agent Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, has purchased more than a hundred "bonnets" for horses which may be had by applying to L. M. French's establishment on Somerset street. The idea of furnishing these straw hats for horses while not a new one, is good and Mrs. Van Hoesen wants it understood that peddlers and other drivers of horses can procure these bonnets by paying a small sum, but in event of inability to pay they will be furnished free.

Mrs. Van Hoesen said yesterday that it was the aim of the society to eventually establish a hospital for animals similar to those in existence in Philadelphia and New York which will have a "bide a wee" auxiliary, where dogs and cats may be taken care of during the absence of their owners in the summer. The project is one which will undoubtedly meet with favor among animal owners not only in this city but in other nearby towns.

The expenses of the society have increased considerably during the past year owing to the active campaign carried on here and in this vicinity and funds for the prosecution of the work are needed. No animal lover will be excluded from contributing and the amount may range from ten cents up. Mrs. Van Hoesen will personally acknowledge any contributions to the society which may be sent to her home at Fanwood. The Daily Press will forward any amounts subscribed to the cause and will make acknowledgments in its columns.

Dr. Holliday Will Preach.

Rev. Dr. William A. Holliday, of this city, will preach at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow morning and the Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor, will preach in the evening.

Clarence Brokaw, of West Front street, will leave soon for a five weeks' pleasure trip abroad. This will be his first ocean voyage.

LAWN FESTIVAL AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

The two nights' lawn festival which was held on the lawn of the Grace M. E. church under the auspices of the Epworth League of the church, and which closed last night was a decided success in every particular. Besides the entertainment part, which was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present, at least $100 was cleared. This, in view of the fact that rain fell on the opening night, makes the affair more than a success.

The entertainment was undertaken by the cabinet of the Epworth League of that church, of which Benjamin Shuck is president, and to whose efforts the success of the affair is in a large measure attributable. The other officers of the cabinet, who composed the general committee for the festival were: First vice president, Miss Mabel Stevens; second vice president, Miss Mary G. Steiner; third vice president, Miss Della Voehl; fourth vice president, Miss Nettie Bauersachs; treasurer, Russell Harden; and secretary, Rhey Miller.

Taken all in all, the committee is well pleased at the result of the festival, feeling inwardly that the affair was a decided success throughout. For yesterday afternoon, and evening, the decorations, which were destroyed by the rain of Thursday night had to be erected again, which necessitated a double amount of work. The wiring and lighting also had to be reconstructed, and was ably taken care of by Harry Shuck. Dr. Buchanan's orchestra of eleven pieces furnished the music last night as it did on the previous night.

HE SAYS A GOOD WORD FOR THE COLLEGE MAN

Isaac Sharpless, president of Haverford College, read a paper on "The Religious Education of Boys and Young Men" at the Friends' Conference at Asbury Park yesterday. Speaking of young men who go to college for higher education, President Sharpless said that these had a decided advantage over the less fortunate youths.

The young men in college, as a whole, lead a better, cleaner and more moral life than others. The tendencies and influences surrounding them were toward such a life and were steadily improving. Of course, in many colleges, the smaller ones especially, there was a set or class of individuals whose influence was not for the best, and sometimes the whole body of young men was affected by this.

He said the duty of the Friends was to overcome this evil influence and substitute one which would work for good instead.

AUTO RACING MACHINE MEETS WITH ACCIDENT.

The Correja, driven by Joe Taylor, of New Haven, Conn., one of the large horsepower automobiles entered in the hill climbing contest on Johnston's drive this afternoon, met with an accident during the speed trials this morning.

Taylor had taken a good flying start from Somerset street and was making fast time when, at the first turn, at the foot of the hill, the machine swerved so far to the left of the road that the front axle was badly bent. The driver brought his car to a stop immediately, thus preventing further damage or possible injury to himself and companion. The machine was repaired and will be in the race.

Tepper Bros.' Generous Offer.

Tepper Bros., the West Front street dry goods' merchants, announce today that during August they will close their store all day Thursday, throughout the month of August, for the purpose of giving their employes a whole day off. This time is especially desirable as all of the excursions from Plainfield to Asbury Park are scheduled for Thursdays. It is understood that a majority of the other merchants, members of the Plainfield Merchants' Association, will close a half-day Thursday during August.

Searchlights for City Auto.

S. W. Rushmore, of the Rushmore Dynamo Works, has presented the city with three fine searchlights for Chief T. O Doane's automobile, and they have ben put on the machine. As soon as Mr. Rushmore learned that the city had purchased an auto for the chief he offered to supply it with a set of searchlights. The gift is appreciated by the fire department.

The members of the St. Thomas A. M. E. mission will conduct an open air meeting at Jerseyland Heights tomorrow afternoon and evening. The services will be at 3 and 8 o'clock. Rev. A. J. Wilson will conduct the services.

CAMPING ON BATTLEFIELD

Co. K Boys Arrived at Gettysburg, Pa., Early Yesterday Morning.

GEO. APGAR QUARTERMASTER.

Lieut. Charles N. Peterson Officer of the Guard—Peddlers Barred From Camp Grounds.

Company K, the local contingent of the National Guard left on Saturday night for the historic battle ground at Gettysburg where they will spend the next nine days in maneuvres of practical value. The boys were given a great send off by a crowd of a thousand people at the North avenue station and three rousing cheers sounded through the street as the train in two sections pulled out of the station.

The company marched down West Front street under command of Captain H. B. Kitchell, countermarching on Park avenue thence to North avenue to the station. The eager expectant expressions on the faces of the men augured well for the success of the enterprise and it will be a disappointment to many if the boys fail to come up to the standard in the tests of endurance which are before them.

Fifty men are in the company and with their equipment, formed a formidable array. During the nine days encampment the Second Regiment will be put through war maneuvres which will tax their strength and tempers, but it is believed that the experience will be invaluable.

The members of Co. K, Second Regiment, this city, arrived at Gettysburg, Pa., 5.30 o'clock yesterday morning, after practically an all-night ride on the special train, without an accident of any kind. Major W. B. Martin was in charge of the third section. The local militia left the train at 5.45 and marched to the camp grounds, where a sandwich and coffee breakfast was served. Afterward the regimental camp was pitched.

The guard detail for yesterday comprised Captain Conrad Hall, of Co. I, as officer of the day and Lieut. Charles A. Peterson, as officer of the guard. The camp is composed of the following organizations:

29th Inf. U. S. A.; 3d Inf. N. G. N. J.; 2d Inf. N. G. N. J.; Battery B, N. G. N. J. The camp is equipped with McCall incinarators, shower baths and mess tables for the men. Quartermaster George Apgar, is, as usual, on his job, and the men of Co. K are sure of good "eats," which is the term used in camp. The camp is free from all trash pedlers, only farmers being allowed to sell their produce, such as fresh vegetables, milk and buttermilk, which makes the men feel at home, even though Sergeant (Milkman) Phillips is at home. He was kind to the boys, however, for he supplied them with fifteen quarts of ice cream at the station Saturday night before the start. The boys will never forget his kindness.

Dinner was served to the boys yesterday at 12 o'clock. During the afternoon the boys were allowed to go over the battle-field and other points of interest, affording them an opportunity to get acquainted with the surroundings. The work of some tactical problems for the week will be over some of the ground covered by troops on the old battlefield. Mess was srved last night at 5.30 and at 7 o'clock church service was held at regimental headquarters by the regimental chaplain. Today the boys will get down to good hard work.

Cost Freeman Straight $20.

For violating article 4, section 9 of the city ordinances relating to the handling of garbage Freeman Straight was fined ten dollars by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. On another charge of cruelty to animals Straight also had to pay a ten dollar fine. He was accused of driving a mule which was unfit for use. Some of the garbage used by Straight was carried through the streets without proper covering. Judge Runyon told Straight that it would cost him more next time.

CHILDREN'S SERVICE AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

At the morning service in the Congregational church yesterday and immediately following the sermon, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich gave a short talk to the children of the Sunday school. He illustrated his remarks with a lighted candle and a vover under which at times the candle was hidden showing that the children should not hide their lights "under a bushel," but should let them be always shining for Jesus.

At the conclusion of the talk twelve pupils of the school were presented with a golden candlestick for perfect attendance during the months of May and June. Their names follow: Russell Allen, Emma Barrett, Laura Bowers, Carter Goodrich, Harold Tomlinson, Russell Tomlinson, Elizabeth Martin, Eugene Martin, Margaret Rice, Lucy West, Grace West and Margaret Weseman.

The Sunday school will join in an excursion to Asbury Park on July 21.

FRESH AIR CAMP OPENS WITH 237 CHILDREN

The eighth annual opening of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp was formally made yesterday afternoon when besides the 237 children and mothers a large number of visitors attended the services. President J. D. Loizeaux was in charge and the principal speaker was Rev. E. G. Snowden, of Elizabeth. Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young, Mary Miller, Martin A. Korff rendered solos and Clifford A. Braider presided at the organ.

The meeting began with some hearty singing by the children, after which Miss Miller sang "Not Half Has Ever Been Told. Mr. Korff accompanied by Mr. Braider played a violin solo, "The Lost Chord." After the reading of the Scripture, by George A. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Young sang a duet, "The King of Love."

President Loizeaux gave an address of welcome during which he declared that while the association was in a prosperous condition, it is still dependent upon contributions for the work and hoped that during the season there would not be a falling off in the offerings of those who are interested in the work.

After a cornet solo by Mr. Young, Rev. Mr. Snowden talked for twenty minutes to the children taking for his topic, "Weeds." He drew many simple lessons from an ordinary garden and warned his young hearers that bad habits were the weeds to be avoided, so that good character might develop unhindered. Mrs. Young followed with a solo.

The oppressive heat kept many away yesterday, but even so the pavilion was nearly full. The meetings for the rest of the season will start promptly at 3.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoons.

On Wednesday night it is proposed to give the children a short entertainment which will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Henry and Martin A. Korff.

Several needed improvements have been made in the grounds notably a covered walk from the home to the pavilion designed for protection in stormy weather. Miss Saran Curry, who is in charge of the camp, believes this will be the greatest season of any and is looking forward to big results.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES AT SALVATION ARMY TENT.

Evangelistic services conducted by Adjutant Palmer and Capt. McMillan, of the National Staff and Band, were held at the Salvation Army Tent last night. The text of the evening's sermon was chosen from Isaiah and was "Watchman, what of the night? The watchman said, 'the morning cometh and also the night.'"

Following the service ice cream was served and a pleasant time was enjoyed by a large number.

On Saturday night, the services were conducted by the same two men. A series of recitations, entitled "A Night with the Poets," was the theme of the eevning's preaching. Ice cream was served.

GET TRUST CO. CHARTER

And Borough Bank Directors Resolve to Wind Up Its Affairs.

OFFICES IN MARSH BUILDING.

Change to Be Made on September 15—E. F. Feickert to Be One of the Chief Officers of New Concern.

The Borough National Bank went into liquidation today at a meeting of the directors held at the institution, 406 out of 500 shareholders being represented either in person or by proxy. The decision was made through a resolution and there was not a dissenting vote. This action was necessary according to the banking laws so that the new institution, to be known as the State Trust Company, may be incorporated in the right way. September 15 was the date fixed for the actual change.

It was announced at the meeting that the first floor of the Marsh building at Park avenue and East Second street, would be the home of the new concern. It was also learned that ten of the directors of the Borough National Bank will be the incorporators of the new trust company, and it is stated that some new interests will be identified with the company.

While nothing definite has been decided as yet regarding the officers for the new institution E. F. Feickert, formerly of the Plainfield Trust Company, will be one of the chief executive officers. Frederic E. Cortell, now cashier for the bank, will continue with the trust company, probably as cashier.

At the meeting today reports were received regarding the progress of the bank; also the progress of forming the new institution. Everything was reported to be in first-class condition. It was stated that application for a charter for the trust company had been granted, following a very careful examination by State officials into the condition of the bank's affairs. The examiners spent four days at the borough institution. The directors will file a certificate with the comptroller of the currency setting forth the decision.

The State Trust Company will start with a capital of $100,000 and $50,000 reserve. It is proposed to equip the new quarters in the Marsh building with all the latest equipment.

BABY CAMP FORMAL OPENING TOMORROW

If you care to see what a splendid work the City Union of King's Daughters is doing at the baby camp on the Watchung mountain, take a Somerset street car at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. A stage will meet that trolley car, and all others on the half hour at the foot of the hill to convey you to the camp for ten cents. At the camp you will be cordially greeted by a reception committee and every opportunity will be given for visitors to inspect the institution.

Thirty-five babes and the mothers of some are now enjoying the cool breezes that sweep over the mountain and the many comforts of the camp. Miss DeLaney, the superintendent, is giving her entire time to the care of the little ones. To carry on this work successfully this summer, funds are sorely needed. The object is one that should appeal to everyone. If you want to help along the good work, send your contribution to The Daily Press. It will be acknowledged promptly and transmitted to the proper authorities at the camp.

Lillian B. Vaughn, colored, was held in the sum of $200 this morning for the action of the October grand jury on a charge of forgery. It is alleged in the complaint that the Vaughan woman presented to the Flemington National Bank a check purporting to have been signed by Linda Williams, for $118 and secured the money. The check was honored and, it is alleged that the Vaughan woman secured the money Madison Williams, of 904 East Second street, signed the bond.

A DAY IN POLICE COURT

Well Assorted Variety of Cases Occupy Judge Runyon's Attention.

CITY TREASURY IS ENRICHED.

Men and Women Who Have Disobeyed the Mandate of the Law Haled Before the Local Court.

The city court room held the biggest crowd that it has seen in many a day this morning when Judge Runyon took his seat on the bench. Arrests for everything from plain drunk to forgery were on the docket. Some were fined and others let go with reprimands. Michael Finnerty had to contribute three dollars for being drunk and disorderly on Saturday night and Ann Bedford, Andrew Bedford and Barney Tracy helped the city treasury to the extent of five dollars each. Edna Walpole who was caught in the dragnet along with the Bedfords and Tracy, got off with a suspended sentence.

Kate Stevens, colored, was found lying helplessly drunk on Arlington avenue near Eighth street at 1 o'clock on Sunday morning and when aroused by the patrolman refused to go home. Her fine was $5. A fracas in which five colored people figured and in which Joshua Diggs was the goat occurred on West Third street on Saturday night and the police arrested besides Diggs, Nannie Vanderveer, David Gray, James Wade, and John Jordan. It seemed to the judge that it wall as a misunderstanding and after lecturing the quintet told them all to go and sin no more.

Joseph Erner and Mary's Minor, whose family troubles have had much airing in the city court recently, because of the belligerancy of their wives, evidently patched up their differences this morning before court convened, as when the judge asked for the complainant neither one wanted to press any charge. They were allowed to go with the judge's advice to keep the peace.

Michael Bonner and Patrick Hartridge, two husky employees of the water company had a more than jovial time on Saturday night which ended in a scrap. Both men are the best of friends and created some fun in the court room when they described their experiences with each other. They lost some new clothes which they had just bought and could not remember any thing that had happened and thought they were "birds in a gilded cage" when they awoke in a cell. Judge Runyon suspended sentence on both men.

NEGRO ON THE WARPATH

'Jack Johnson' Admirer Wanted to Fight Passengers on Trolley Car.

BUT HE CAME TO GRIEF.

Police Chief Kiely More Than a Match for Man, who Frightened Women and Children.

Alleging that Clifford Hill, a negro, of the Big Woods, near Westfield, had attempted to clean out their car, Henry Hicks, motorman, and Henry Devany, conductor of a main line trolley car appeared against Hill in the city court this morning and the colored man was remanded until tomorrow morning in order that other witnesses to the alleged offence may be produced.

According to the crew of the car the trouble started immediately after Hill boarded the trolley at Front and Park avenue, at 11 o'clock, Saturday night. A man whose name was given as McGauley, and who it was alleged had participated in the fight which followed, escaped before Chief of Police Kiely arrived on the scene. It is believed that the fracas started with a mention of the Jeffries-Johnson fight and that the negro becoming enraged at remarks made by white men on the car struck McGauley and in an instant the car was in an uproar.

William Caulfield declared that Hill started the fight by striking McGauley without provocation and besides wanted to fight everybody or anybody in the car. Women and children begged the motorman to stop the car and they jumped pell-mell into the street. In another minute two other cars had arrived at the switch on Fifth street near Washington and passengers alighted to watch the scrimmage which was going on in the street after Hill had been put off the car.

Chief Kiely happened to be on his way home and attracted by the loud yelling and scrapping hurried to the spot. Here he found Hill defying the entire crowd and begging them to "come on." The chief got a grip on the negro and started with him to headquarters. On reaching the corner of Watchung and Fifth street Hill tried to break away but the chief held on and landed his man.

It is expected that the other witnesses which will be on hand tomorrow morning will clear up the facts as to who were the aggressors in the fight. It is known that nearly all those but the car crew were more or less under the influence of liquor.

CRANFORD PAIR BEATS TRAVERS AND BREMMER

A thirty-six hole foursome on the links of the Cranford Golf Club, yesterday, attracted unusual interest. It required an extra hole to decide the match between Edward Wild and Max Marston, who were matched against Jerome D. Travers and W. B. Bremmer, the crack players of the Montclair Golf Club, who met defeat at the hands of the home pair. The visitors were defeated in a close match by 1 up.

On the 32 hole Travers and Bremmer were 2 up. The home pair won the 32, halved the 33, won the 34, halved the 35 and 36, necessitating the playing of an extra hole. Both Wild and Marston had beautiful drives, a trifle better than their opponents. Wild laid a pretty approach about seven feet from the hole and ran it down in the next shot getting a three and winning the match for the Cranford team on the 37th hole. The match was followed by a gallery of nearly two hundred, both morning and afternoon, including a number of the fair sex. A return match will be played on the Cranford links Sunday, July 24, between the same players. It is said that about $500 changed hands as a result of the match yesterday. The scores for both morning and afternoon follow:

Murdered While Fishing.

Joseph Trovatie, an Italian, residing at Raritan, was found yesterday murdered on the banks of the Raritan Canal, where he had been fishing. The name of the assailant is not known, but it is believed that he stealthily approached the Italian from the rear and placing a revolver to the back of his head, fired. The body was supported by a sapling.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. E. T. SCHMEYER

Schmeyer, aged 22 years, who died Saturday, following a long illness from tuberculosis, was held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from the late home, 1224 Cameron avenue. Rev. Dr. J. A. THERE'S ONE VICTORY SAYS NEWARK PASTOR

That the Christian life is one of struggle, and that the struggle of the present day Christian is far less strenuous than that of the men who were first brought into the life of Christ, were truths emphasized by Rev. Albertus Broek, at the Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning. Mr. Broek, who is the pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, of Newark, occupied the pulpit in place of his brother, Rev. John Y. Broek, the pastor. He selected for his text, "The Victory that Overcomes."

In support of his truths, Mr. Broek brought to the minds of his listeners, the fact that in the olden days, the disciples of Christ were surrounded by a thoughtless civilization, in which the aim of society was to undermine the existence of those, who openly proclaimed themselves constituents of the Lord, while at the present day these hardships are unknown to the Christian.

Again he brought out the fact that it is only by hard work, coupled with a true belief in the Lord, that the world can be overcome. The victory is made the more difficult because human nature does not seek the hard things of life. The disciples of Christ must have realized this, but they also realize that it would require hard work to overcome the world and with this purpose in view, they left their easy tasks and took up a burden surrounded with difficulties. Mr. Broek also dwelt upon the necessity for a true belief in the Lord, fixing this in the minds of his hearers, as a necessary requirement for the conquest of the world.

In conclusion Mr. Broek said: "There is but one victory, that overcomes the world; there is but one way in which we can live our lives, and there is but one way in which we can achieve success. And that is by a true belief in Jesus Christ."

In the evening, Mr. Broek preached at the Netherwood Reformed church for the pastor, Royal A. Stout.

Charles M. Greder.

Charles M. Greder, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greder, of 37 Jefferson avenue, died Saturday night at 10 o'clock at the home of his parents of a complication of heart and lung trouble. He had been ill for six weeks. His death occured just as the ambulance from the Muhlenberg Hospital arrived at the home of his parents to take him to that institution. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 from the residence of his parents.

Interment will be in the North Plainfield Cemetery.

DE PALMA THE WINNER

CHALMERS "40" A COMPETITOR.

Hupmobiles Perform Splendidly in Difficult Climb—Mitchell Car Does Well.

The second annual hill climb of the Plainfield Automobile club under the auspices of the A. A. A., on Saturday afternoon attracted a crowd of nearly ten thousand people. No accident occurred to mar the sport and the record for the climb, made last year during the Charter Day celebration by Deane Rankin in a Chalmers car, was broken by Ralph De Palma in a 200-horsepower Fiat machine, doing the distance in 1.20 flat. The previous record was 1.28.

Local automobile dealers were well represented in several of the events and their cars did all that was expected of them and just a little bit more. For instance, the Chalmers car entered by the A. C. Thompson Auto Company came within two and two-fifths seconds of equalling the record hung up by the big Fiat car. The Chalmers was driven up the tortuous path by D. Rankin and made the distance in 1.22 2-5. This car was closely pressed by the Houpt-Rockwell car which made the climb in 1.22 3-5.

The little Hupmobiles perhaps more than any of the cars to go over the course surprised the spectators with the ease with which they negotiated the hill. Five of these cars were entered in the first event, three of them belonging to the F. L. C. Martin Automobile Co. The best time in this class was made by a Hup owned and driven by A. C. Dam, whose time was given as 2.04. E. B. Libby in a Hup was second in 2.09. R. D. Martin, driving a Hup, was third in 2.19 4-5.

No one has done so much to promote the sport of automobiling more than F. L. C. Martin, whose cars have made records for themselves wherever they have been put to the test. Besides th victory of the Hup runabouts he has to his credit the easy win in the second event.

Many complimentary things were said by the contestants in the various events for the splendid policing of the course. Chief P. S. Kiely with Roundsman Maurice Higgins and ten patrolmen did admirable work in keeping clear every foot of the hill. It was strenuous work, however, and caused the perspiration to pour down the faces of the men. Chief Marshall Weiss with three assitants aided Chief Kiely materially in the work. Ralph de Palma whose time was the best, said to a reporter of The Daily Press that in all the contests he had ever seen this was the best. Not a hitch ocurred at any part of the game and he took pains to compliment the officials as well as the police.

These are the officers having the climb in charge: A. A. Wood, representative of the A. A. A., referee; Technical committee, chairman, A. F. Camalco, R. D. Williams, F. O. Ball and H. A. Todd; starter, Arthur Smith; timers, Dr. F. C. Ard, C. E. Varian, A. L. C. Marsh, E. A. Lowe, George J. Tobin and E. Rushmore; contest committee, H. A. Todd, Alexander Milne, A. B. Laing, F. L. C. Woman.

Wives and mothers generally serve as the chief corner stones of model homes. Sometimes they embody the pillars, the framework and the embellishments in addition to the financial support. The delicate artistic touches of all home sentiment are expected to emanate from the heart, brain and hand of woman. She performs the bulk of service from the foundation to the capstone of the home.—What-To-Eat.

Cleopatra's Envy.

Her caller picked up a little round gilt mirror that was on the arm of the big willow chair. "Dainty little thing," he said, holding it up and turning it over and over. "What would Cleopatra have given for such a little mirror as this, to put where she could find it when she wanted it! Worlds! To think of that beauty, whose only mirrors were polished silver. We don't know what an age we live in," he reflected as he laid it down.

The Way of the World.

Four-year-old James awakened early one morning and found his father dressing by lamplight and asked why he was up so early. "To earn potatoes for you, my lad," was his father's reply. Presently James slowly climbed out of bed, and his father asked why he got up so early. "Why, to eat the potatoes," came the answer. —Delineator.

Maori Legend.

In New Zealand the Maoris say that a man went out one night and on stumbling sprained his ankle. Whereon he lamented so loudly that at last the moon came down and took hold of him. In his fright he seized a bush, but the moon pulled that up by the roots and sailed back into the sky with both man and bush.

Why He Was an Artist.

"You always say my last husband was nothing of an artist," said the little widow. "That he was only a fake, but I think he must have had something of the artist in him." "Why?" asked her friend. "Because," she explained, "every little while you exhibit the same abominable disposition that he did."

Acute Heart Trouble.

"Yes, I remember him," said Alkali Ike. "He died very sudden." "Heart disease?" asked the eastern tourist. "Waal, now, I don't know as you kin say it was the heart any more'n the club, spade or diamond. Anyway, he dealt himself four aces."—Philadelphia Press.

The Producer.

"It must be annoying to have to ask your husband for money," said the intrusive woman. "I wouldn't think of doing so," replied Mrs. Cumrox. "We insist on family games of bridge and in that way avoid being under the slightest obligations for what he contributes."

Pointers for Orators.

There are three things necessary for the after-dinner speech. The first is to be able to stand up, the second to be able to speak up, and the third (and perhaps the most important of all) is to be able to shut up.

The Voice of Experience.

"So you've decided to build a house? How soon is it to be finished?" "The contractor says it will be ready for me in the fall. We are giving up this place in October." "And where do you expect to live next winter?"

The True and The False.

"She has a wealth of golden hair," said the poetic youth. "Are you sure," rejoined the practical young person, "that some of that wealth isn't counterfeit?"

What It May Come To.

"I've just thought of a brand-new philanthropy," said Mr. Dustin Stax. "What is it?" "I'm going to found a home for ex-billionaires who impoverish themselves by donations."

An Exception.

Binks—"Here is somebody who says that no woman is a suffragist unless she has a grouch on some man." Sinks —"That's queer. My wife isn't a suffragist."

Fault That Is Common.

Some people are so much occupied in going about doing good to others that they have not time to become good themselves.

London's Vast Wealth.

London, in monetary value, is worth two and a half times as much as Paris.

Earnest Man a Natural Leader.

Rulers of the City of London.

The city of London corporation consists of the lord mayor, 25 other aldermen and 206 common councilors.

Falls in with Their Desires.

Only the base believe what the base utter—Bellers.

Generally a Misfit.

Greatness which is thrust upon people seldom sets well.

Physician's Great Ally.

He is the best physician who is the best inspirer of hope.—Coleridge.

The Marions of Perth Amboy, defeated a picked team of local players, Saturday afternoon at the home ground by the score of 7 to 3. The game was an interesting one until the eighth inning, being 1-1. In the 8th, the Marions began to find the ball and walked away with the game.

GREAT JULY SALES.

L. S. Plaut & Co. have announced their great July sales which are now in full swing of selling.

This is one of important annual trade features of this store, dating back to the first year it came into existence. Each year these sales have been added to, their scope increased, until in the tremendous selling event now taking place it finds a fitting climax in the presentation of interest to all buyers, both men and women.

Economy combined with genuine merit in the goods is held by this old time concern to be the quintescence of successful value giving. By the buyer it is looked upon as the superlative of satisfactory shopping.

That this shopping ideal will be realized in no uncertain degree in the L. S. Plaut & Co. Special July sales may be accepted as a fact in advance, the strict policy of square dealing pursued by this firm consistently for so many years acting as its own guarantee.

It may likewise be said to be a double assurance to shoppers that they will not only find everything precisely as represented, but at a price that will mean a considerable saving over what they must of necessity pay at any other period of the year.

Miss Louella C. Harris, of Elizabeth, former soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, has been visiting friends in town for several days.

SUGGESTION OF RADICAL PREJUDICE AN INSULT

"It is an insult to the American intelligence to suggest that the supremacy of either the white race or black race is to be determined by a fistic combat," declared Rev. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, yesterday morning. "It is a dangerous thing for the public welfare to permit such a contest where such is the chief motive, when one of the principals has been called out of retirement to take the title for the white race.

"The Christian Endeavor Societies and kindred organizations speak the thought of millions of the best people of our land in their vigorous opposition to the presentation of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures. If it is unlawful to have prize fights in a State, because it is thought unwholesome for the best interests of the community, it should be unlawful to reproduce the prize fight in moving pictures.

"Supreme Court Justice Hendrick says that there is 'vested in the police, the power to stop exhibitions that tend to degrade the morals of the community or create public disorder.' If so, we cannot understand why the Mayor of New York is at a loss what to do. The Mayors of other cities have settled the matter against the pictures. Such an exhibtion tends to lower the moral tone of those who go to see them. We learn with much satisfaction from management of the local theatre that the Reno fight pictures will not disgrace our city.

"The racial antipathy that was very much in evidence in the recent fight at Reno has another suggestion. We have had this message of Jesus Christ and His apostles for two thousand years, that 'God hath made of one blood all men, that he has appointed the time of their living and the place of their habitation and that all men of whatever race are members of His family. If this be true, why do professed followers of Christ allow their minds to be dominated by racial antagonism?

"The Heavenly Father as He looks down upon His children does not say, 'I think a great deal more of you because you are a white man and less of you because you are a black man.' The time will come in your life when the supreme question will not be, 'Who are your ancestors or what is the color of your skin, but what is your relation to God and what did you do for His cause on earth?' That is the all-important thing in this day of opportunity.

OLDEST FRANKLIN MEDAL WINNER IN NEW JERSEY.

The Boston Journal of recent date announces that the much coveted Franklin medals, distributed annually in accordance with the will of Benjamin Franklin were this year awarded to twenty-one boys in the Boston Latin, the English High and the Mechanical Arts High Schools.

It adds that the oldest Franklin medal student living today in Boston is Charles J. Capen, who won his medal at the Latin School in 1835.

One of our Plainfield citizens has been able to come within three years of Mr. Capen's record, for William L. Gavett received his in 1838. The medal is of silver about the size of a half dollar, and is decorated on one side with a fine head of Franklin and the words, "Gift of Franklin, A. D., 1788."

The reverse bears the inscription: "Reward of Merit by the School Committee to W. H. Gavett, 1838."

Mr. Gavett will celebrate his eighty-sixth birthday on the 15th of this month and he is doubtless the oldest of the few Franklin medal owners in New Jersey.

Fire in Rink Building.

A fire, the cause of which is unknown, broke out in the rink building on Watchung avenue owned by Charles H. Hand, yesterday afternoon at 3:30. It started under a stairway in the inside of a shoemaker shop and the dense smoke emanating from some burning rubbish made it difficult for the firemen to locate the seat of the blaze. It was finally put out with a single extinguisher. There was no one in the store since Saturday night.

BUICK CARS

ARE FEARED BY EVERY ENTRANT IN EVERY CONTEST IN WHICH THEY PARTICIPATE

I have said that before and I wish to repeat it for it was surely proven in our local hill climb last Saturady. In event No. 2 open to any Gasoline Stock Car selling for $801 to $1,200 the Model 10 Buick selling for $1,000 was making good time when it lost two tires and, of course, had to stop. The officials were willing to let it run over the course again and according to the A. A. A. rules, put the matter before the other contestants all of whom were good enough sportsmen to want to see which was the best car—save one, and, of course, that barred the little car from that particular event. But in event No. 9 the Model 10 Buick covered the course in 1 minute and 40 seconds, whereas the best time in event No. 2, from which it was barred, was 2 minutes 3 4-5 seconds, which shows a pretty good reason for the protest. This $1,000 Buick car was taken from the Broadway showroom floor late Friday evening and driven straight to Plainfield without even waiting o inflate the tires, which caused its trouble on the hill, and we think this decidedly stock car made a very good showing considering the fact that it had not been especially tuned up for the occasion. The $1,750 Buick took first prize in its class in event No. 4 for cars selling for $1,600 to $2,000, by the time of 1 minute and 32 seconds.

Buick cars won 204 firsts last year in all kinds of contests all over the country, establishing more World's Stock Car records than all other cars combined. During the three days racing July 1, 2 and 4 on the great Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Buick cars won 11 firsts and 7 seconds, establishing national records in a manner never before known during the history of motordom. When you buy a Buick you get the best there is.

LITTLE FALLS DROPS BEFORE DUNELLENITES

Dunellen had but slight difficulty in scoring a walk over in its game with Little Falls on the Madison avenue field, Saturday afternoon, the home nine winning by the score of 11-2. Coakley was in the box for Little Falls and had he received a semblance of support, there is no doubt but what the fans would have seen a good game. As it was, he had no catcher able to hold him, and every ball he pitched, excepting a straight one got away from his backstop. The Little Falls infield was also erratic and wild, and the game finally resolved itself into one, in which the pitcher, Coakley, was forced to do all the playing.

As a result of Coakley's inability to "speed 'em up," the Dunellen batters enjoyed a slugfest. In the feast Miller and Ramsberger showed to advantage. The score and summary follow:

Ran in Front of Auto.

Gladys Adelman, a twelve year old daughter of H. Adelman, of 118 Liberty street, ran in front of an automobile belonging to the F. L. C. Martin Co., and driven by John Kline on Saturday evening, and was slightly injured in the foot. Mr. Kline picked the little girl up and carried her to her home, where her injuries were found to be slight. The accident occurred at the corner of Liberty and Second street.

Swackhamer Spoke.

S. S. Swackhamer spoke last night in the First Baptist Church, at Freehold on the subject, "A Grisis in Government." It was a union meeting of several of the congregations. Much stress was laid on the duty of churchmen to support the churches in their efforts to secure a vote on the saloon question and to break the power that has persuaded the Legislature to deny the people this right.

LOCAL ASSOCIATION WINS A CLOSE GAME

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team defeated the Orange Association nine on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, in one of the best contests of the season, by a score of 3 to 1. The locals scored in the first inning through a single to right by Hand, who went down to second on Fritts' hit to short, and a single by Adams to left brought him home. In the second inning Slocum singled over second base, stole second and came in on Peacock's hit. The third tally was made in the sixth inning. Wilcox singled to right, stole second reached third on a sacrifice and scored on a fielder's choice. Orange scored its only run in the fourth inning. Grover singled after McCall fanned, Denny struck out, and a two-bagger by Knowl brought Grover home. Both pitchers worked well, Frederickson fanning sixteen men. The score:

FOUR FLOCKS UNITED FOR SUNDAY SERVICE

That the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord formed the basis of an interesting short sermon by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, at the union service in the First M. E. church, last night. Although the excessive heat had an appreciable effect on the congregation, all four churches joining in the service, were well represented. A quartet choir sang an anthem and a trio, while Miss Jessie Haynes, alto soloist, sang a selection as an offertory.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, read the Scripture lesson, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, offered prayer.

Dr. Chambliss took his text from Psalms 37;23-24, in which it is shown that the Lord directs the footsteps of a good man. "There is something heroic in the man who looks to God," said Dr. Chambliss, "and says by His grace I'll climb up to it. It is not a question whether we are living above sin, but whether after falling from grace we are still able to press onward. We are told that the Lord arranges not only life at large, but every detail.

"We know that he was always busy with details when on earth, giving minute directions. He visited the prisons, healed the sick and made the blind see and He promises the reward to those who are faithful in little things. Sometimes it looks as though life was one series of accidents, but we must remember that not one single step is taken at random. Under these conditions is it any wonder that He should order the steps of a good man.."

Referring to wrecks in life, Dr. Chambliss said that they were all due to a disregard of the proper signals. There are no wrecks when the Lord orders one's steps. If a man follows God's rule he need have no cause for worry and what a blessed assurance it is if one only commits their way unto the Lord.

The Union service next Sunday night will be held at the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will preach the sermon.

Funeral Will Be Private.

The remains of William E. Moffett have been brought from South River, where the young man was drowned on Thursday, to his late home on Elmwood place, and the funeral will be private at the convenience of the family. Mr. Moffett was the son of Mrs. Susan and the late Elmore D. Moffett, and was well known in this city, where he was employed for many years as a clothing salesman. He is survived by a wife and three children.

Open Air Service Postponed.

Because of the threatening weather, the open air service which was to have been he'd on the lawn next to the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., was called off. The meetings, however, will be held as previously announced on the remaining Sundays. George McNeely, of Newark, will have charge of the services.

THE CANDY GHOST

Young Mrs. Morway stood on the bottom stair surveying the library table at her left. On it still reposed the five-pound box which she and her husband had left there the night before filled to the brim with the finest chocolates. She had eaten only two and Harold had eaten none. Now the box was absolutely empty.

They stared at each other unbelievingly. Then Mrs. Morway tossed her head and went in to breakfast. If Harold really thought it was funny, let him keep it up. She would find the candy when she straightened up the house. As for Morway, he felt that he was being trifled with.

The constraint lasted several days, during which neither mentioned the mysterious disappearance of five pounds of perfectly good candy. Janet had turned the house upside down without finding the hidden sweets. Then she brought home a bag of molasses chips and the next morning when she came downstairs, Harold with her, they both gasped. The molasses chips bag was empty. Thereupon they made common cause of the trouble.

"There isn't another living soul in the house but you and me!" Janet quavered, almost tearfully. "Even the maid is away on a visit. There isn't a thing disturbed or taken but the candy, and every door and window is locked, as it should be. There's no use talking, Harold; we've got a g-g-ghost!"

"Nonsense!" Morway hastened to say, though he said it nervously. "Still, the candy's gone. It's decidedly puzzling."

"It's ghastly!" announced his wife, setting down the coffee pot with a little shivery bang. "Harold, did you ever walk in your sleep?"

"Never!" declared her husband.

"Well, if a ghost didn't take the candy you must have done it," Mrs. Morway insisted. "You've probably dug a hole in the coal pile down cellar and concealed it. Please, won't you shovel off some of the coal and see if—"

"I will not!" said her husband, firmly. "I'd rather endure a ghost. Besides, I tell you I never do anything else when I sleep except sleep! Maybe you did it yourself."

"Why, Harold!" his wife cried, indignantly. "You know, I'm so afraid of the dark! But what could have taken it? I'm afraid to stay here alone to-day."

The Morways' candy ghost sprung into immense popularity among their friends, who insisted on a ghost party, but the Morways objected. They said if it was a ghost they didn't want to see it, because somebody would have hysterics. They were sure it was a ghost, because after leaving candy on the library table they tied strings to their wrists and the other ends to the brass rods of the bed to disprove the sleep-walking theory. But the candy disappeared. However, as Tommy Taylor pointed out, there was nothing to prevent a clever sleep-walker from untying a knot in a string and later tying it again.

Two or three weeks later still another box nearly full of candy was emptied during the night. The Morways could not resist leaving the bait exposed. They had endured so many thrills that they had developed an appetite for them. The question of the ghost had turned into a thing of serious consequence. Not a scrap of the missing candy was to be found in the house. Even the coal pile had been explored by a boy.

"There's no use beating about the bush," Tommy Taylor said at one of the Morways' Sunday evening teas which had grown terribly popular because everybody talked solely about the ghost, "you've got a sea serpent in the house! No mouse could get away with five pounds of chocolates at one fell swoop."

"Besides, there aren't any mice," said Mrs. Morway, with finality. There were shadows under her eyes. "I shall go crazy if we don't find out who—what does it!"

The state of nervousness in which the Morways were tangled made the tension of family life too great. In spite of everything each suspected the other. Finally, Mrs. Morway went away on a visit and the night before she left a candy box remaining below stairs was emptied as were the others.

"I'm afraid to leave you alone in this house!" she quavered, as she and Morway started for the train. "Harold—did you forget and leave that plate of chocolate fudge I made for you out on the table? I told you to put it inside the sideboard!"

"I forgot it," confessed Morway nervously. "Oh, it'll be all right!"

The first letter Mrs. Morway got from her husband stated without preamble that when Morway, after putting her on the train and spending the rest of the evening at his cousin's, had returned home at midnight he found the fudge plate empty. "This," he wrote, "proves that neither you nor I have been doing it. I am going to bait several mousetraps and if they don't nail the ghost I shall purchase a bear-trap, establish a salt-lick and spread a net for the sea serpent."

Left alone, Morway devoted himself to catching the ghost. And three days later he wired his anxious wife: "Am having the ghost stuffed and mounted and shipped to you by express. It was a rat!"

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER
COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"My Sister, Captain Plum."

At the top of the slope he stopped and waited for the other to come up to him.

"I've got a ship off there," he called, pointing inland. "Take a short cut for the point at the head of the island. There's a boat waiting for us!"

Neil came up panting. He was breathing so hard that for a moment he found it impossible to speak but in his eyes there was a look that told his unbounded gratitude. They were clear, fearless eyes, with the blue glint of steel in them and, as he held out his hands to Nathaniel, they were luminous with the joy of his deliverance.

"Thank you, Captain Plum!"

He spoke his companion's name with the assurance of one who had known it for a long time. "If they loose the dogs there will be no time for the ship," he added, with a suggestive hunch of his naked shoulders. "Follow me!"

There was no alarm in his voice and Nathaniel caught the flashing gleam of white teeth as Neil smiled grimly back at him, running in the lead. From the man's eyes the master of the Typhoon had sized up his companion as a fighter. The smile—daring, confident, and yet signaling their danger—assured him that he was right, and he followed close behind without question. A dozen rods up the patch Neil turned into a dense thicket of briars and underbrush and for ten minues they plunged through the pathless jungle. Now and then Nathaniel saw the three red stripes of the whipper's lash upon the bare shoulders of the man ahead and to these every step seemed to add new wounds made by the thorns. As they came out upon an old roadway the captain stripped off his coat and Neil thrust himself into it as they ran.

Even in these first minutes of their flight Nathaniel was thrilled by another thought than that of the peril behind them. Whom had he saved? Who was this clear-eyed young fellow for whom the girl had so openly sacrificed herself at the whipping post, about whom she had thrown her arms and covered with the protection of her glorious hair? With his joy at having served her there was mingled a chilling doubt as these questions formed themselves in his mind. Obadiah's vague suggestions, the scene in the king's room, the night visits of the girl to the councilor's cabin—and last of all this incident at the jail flashed upon him now with another meaning, with a significance that slowly cooled the enthusiasm in his veins. He was sure that he was near the solution of the mysterious events in which he had become involved, and yet this knowledge brought with it something of apprehension, something which made him anticipate and yet dread the moment when the fugitive ahead would stop in his flight, and he might ask him those questions which would at least relieve him of his burden of doubt. They had traveled a mile through forest unbroken by path or road when Neil halted on the edge of a little stream that ran into a swamp. Pointing into the tangled fen with a confident smile he plunged to his waist in the water and waded slowly through the slough into the gloom of the densest alder. A few minutes later he turned in to the shore and the soft bog gave place to firm ground. Before Nathaniel had cleared the stream he saw his companion drop to his knees beside a fallen log and when he came up to him he was unwrapping a piece of canvas from about a gun. With a warning gesture he rose to his feet and for twenty seconds the men stood and listened. No sound came to them but the chirp of a startled squirrel and the barking of a dog in the direction of St. James.

"They haven't turned out the dogs yet," said Neil, holding a hand against his heaving chest. "If they do they can't reach us through that slough." He leaned his rifle against the log and again thrusting an arm into the place where it had been concealed drew forth a small box.

"Powder and ball—and grub!" he laughed. "You see I am a sort of revolutionist and have my hiding places. Tomorrow—I will be a martyr." He spoke as quietly as though his words but carried a careless jest.

"A martyr?" laughed Nathaniel, looking down into the smiling, sweating face.

"Yes, tomorrow I shall kill Strang."

There was no excitement in Neil's voice as he stood erect. The smile did not leave his lips. But in his eyes there shone that which neither words nor smiling lips revealed, a reckless, blazing fury hidden deep in them—so deep that Nathaniel stared to assure himself what it was. The other saw the doubt in his face.

"Tomorrow I shall kill Strang," he repeated. "I shall kill him with this gun from under the window of his house through which you saw Marion."

"Marion!" exclaimed Nathaniel. "Marion—" He leaned forward eagerly, questioning. "Tell me—"

"My sister, Captain Plum!"

It seemed to Nathaniel that every fiber in his body was stretched to the breaking point. He reached out, dazed by what he had heard and with both hands seized Neil's arm.

"Your sister—who came to you at the whipping post?"

"That was Marion."

"And—Strang's wife?"

"No!" cried Neil. "No—not his wife!" He drew back from Nathaniel's touch as if the question had stabbed him to the heart. The passion that had slumbered in his eyes burst into savage flame and his face became suddenly terrible to look upon. There was hatred there such as Nathaniel had never seen; a ferocious, pitiless hatred that sent a shuddering thrill through him as he stood before it. After a moment the clenched fist that had risen above Neil's head dropped to his side. Half apologetically he held out his hand to his companion.

"Captain Plum, we've got a lot to thank you for, Marion and I," he said, a tremble of the passing emotion in his voice. "Obadiah told Marion that help might come to us through you and Marion brought the word to me at the jail last night—after she had seen you at the window. The old councilor kept his word! You have saved her!"

"Saved her!" gasped Nathaniel. "From what? How?" A hundred questions seemed leaping from his heart to his lips.

"From Strang. Good God, don't you understand? I tell you that I am going to kill Strang!"

Neil stood as though appalled by his companion's incomprehension. "I am going to kill Strang, I tell you!" he cried again, the fire burning deeper through the sweat of his cheeks.

Nathaniel's bewilderment still shone in his face.

"She is not Strang's wife," he spoke softly, as if to himself. "And she is not—" His face flushed as he nearly spoke the words. "Obadiah lied!" He looked squarely into Neil's eyes. "No, I don't understand you. The councilor said that she—that Marion was Strang's wife. He told me nothing more than that, nothing of her trouble, nothing about you. Until this moment I have been completely mystified. Only her eyes led me to do—what I did at the jail."

Neil gazed at him in astonishment. "Obadiah told—you—nothing?" he asked incredulously.

"Not a word about you or Marion except that Marion was the king's seventh wife. But he hinted at many things and kept me on the trail, always expecting, always watching, and yet every hour was one of mystery. I am in the darkest of it at this instant. What does it all mean? Why are you going to kill Strang? Why—"

Neil interrupted him with a cry so poignant in its wretchedness that the last question died upon his lips.

"I thought that the councilor had told you all," he said. "I thought you knew." The disappointment in his voice was almost despair. "Then—it was only accidentally—you helped us?"

"Only accidentally that I helped you—yes! But Marion—" Nathaniel crushed Neil's hand in both his own and his eyes betrayed more than he would have said. "I've got an armed ship and a dozen men out there and if I can help Marion by blowing up St. James—I'll do it!"

For a time only the tense breathing of the two broke the silence of their lips. They looked into each other's face, Nathaniel with all the eagerness of the passion with which Marion had stirred his soul, Neil half doubting, as if he were trying to find in this man's eyes the friendship which he had not questioned a few minutes before.

"Obadiah told you nothing?" he asked again, as if still unbelieving.

"Nothing."

"And you have not seen Marion—to talk with her?"

"No."

Nathaniel had dropped his companion's hand, and now Neil walked to the log and sat down with his face turned in the direction from which their pursuers must come if they entered the swamp.

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

CHALMERS WINS

Piston Displacement Event With Flat Front in The Johnston's Drive Hill Climb Saturday

Beating the Time Made by 2 60 H.P. Stearns, 2 Model 17 Buick, 1 Berkshire, 1 S. P. 0, Etc.

The same CHALMERS "FORTY" stock chassis also won the second Prize in the free for all event, time 1 minute 22 2-5 seconds, being defeated only by the 200 H. P. Fiat by only 2 2-5 seconds. The Houpt Rockwell ran third.

We only entered this Chalmers stock chassis in these two events, and we won one first and one second prize. It took a 200 H. P. FIAT racing car driven by DePalma to beat us 2 2-5 seconds. Wherever a Chalmers is entered it generally wins. This again demonstrates that the Chalmers is the equal of any stock car made regardless of price. A Chalmers "Thirty" also won the second prize in the Glidden tour defeating a score of high priced cars.

BASEBALL.

The Gesang and Turn Verein added two more victories to their string on Saturday and Sunday defeating the Netherwood A. C. on Saturday by the score of 8 to 7, and the Finderne A. C. yesterday by 10 to 0. This latter game was a walkover for the G. and T. V. Montross pitched a no hit no run game, only one of the Finderne boys reaching third base. Hansen and Harris made clean home runs in both games.

Mrs. H. Y. Shafer and daughter, Miss Marie Shafer, of Flemington, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Teeter, of 137 Grove street.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, baptized Laura DeWitt Jack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Jack, at the morning services yesterday.

GOLF.

At the Park Golf Club, Saturday, there was the play for the President's and golf club cups, and a large number of members competed for the trophies. All of the scores were close, W. V. Byard again leading the field for the two cups. He was hard pressed by Miss Lydie Loizeaux, the only woman contestant, who returned a score of 99, 23-76, against Mr. Bayard's 96, 23-73. The leading scores:

W. V. Bayard, 96, 23-73; George A. Chapman, 100 26-74; Nelson A. Miller, 106, 30-76; Miss Lydie Loizeaux, 99, 23-76; Alexander Gilbert, 103, 26-77; W. R. Faber, 103, 22-81; Charles B. Morse, 103, 19-84.

There was also much interest in the weekly competition for the Ladies' Summer cup, nine holes. The scores:

Miss Lulu Fuller, 62, 28-34; Miss Grace A. Ten Eyck, 58, 16-42; Miss Bess R. Ten Eyck, 75, 30-45; Mrs. Frank W. Jones, 60, 11-49.

The chief event at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday was an 18-hole match play, handicap, against par, 70, the handicap being three-quarters of the difference between the players' handicap and par. There was a large field out and the competition was very close in both classes.

William T. Glenney led the Class A players, being all even while in Class B, there was a tie between T. W. T. Maxwell and J. V. Beekman, both being 2 down, and each having a handicap of 25. The scores:

Class A—William T. Glenney 6, all even; R. G. Morse 13, 5 down; Arthur Murphy 8, 5 down; S. H. Patterson 4, 6 down; E. A. Cruickshank 15, 6 down; E. T. Willson 12, 8 down; L. G. Carman 14, 8 down.

Class B—T. W. T. Maxwell 25, 2 down; J. V. Beekman 25, 2 down; H. T. Eaton 20, 3 down.

Another interesting event was the final play between W. Lester Glenney and Dudley H. Barrows for the Golf committee cup. At the end of the first eighteen holes both players were all even, necessitating another round. The contestants started on the second round, but were unable to finish, and the match was postponed until Saturday.

OBJECT TO CITY "DUMP"

West End Residents Protest Against a Nuisance in That Section.

THE COMMON COUNCIL ACTS.

Favorable Result When Conditions Are Made Plain to the City Fathers—"Dump" Ordered Closed.

The city "dump" which has been maintained at the foot of Compton avenue, and which was recently closed by order of Mayor Fisk, had a good airing at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night. A delegation of residents from that section led by Herbert Langford and E. H. Mumford, appeared before the city fathers and told them in plain words something about this nuisance in the West End which has been allowed to continue for two years.

The result was that a resolution offered by Charles C. Randolph and adopted, ordered the "dump" closed permanently, and later a resolution offered by Mr. Clay and adopted, authorized the street committee to make a thorough investigation of the subject, at public expense, and report to the Common Council. It will be a part of the work of the committee to recommend ways and means to separate ashes from garbage, which has not been done and which is really the cause for the kick in the West End.

Mr. Langford, who was granted the privilege of the floor, wanted to know what had become of a resolution passed by the Common Council sometime ago in reference to the city "dump" in the West End. He said that he handed it to Mr. Buxton, noticed by the newspapers that it had been presented, but had learned that it had since been sidetracked. The speaker was also anxious to know who was responsible for allowing all sorts of things to be dumped at the foot of Compton avenue, he was sure that H. C. Compton had never given such permission.

"I think we have been sorely afflicted in the West End," said Mr. Langford. "First they gave us the crematory for the burning of garbage, then the small-pox hospital and now a city dump. Put this dump on Seventh and Eighth streets among the rich nabobs and I will guarantee that it would not remain there long. We should be considered as much as the rich people.

"During the past two years it has been impossible to sit on my front porch owing to the horrible stench. I took this matter up a year ago with the Mayor and the dumping was abated for a time, but since that time conditions have been worse. Where is our Board of Health. What is it doing? I assure you we have been great sufferers from this nuisance. I have acted as a special policeman for the past two years in trying to abate the nuisance, but do not propose to do so any longer. I have stopped ashmen who have come to the dump with all sorts of stuff and they have told me that this material came from homes as nice as my own and they refused to take it away.

"I understand that they are now dumping this stuff near the new Jefferson School, and I pity the residents in that neighborhood for I know what it means. My wife has had malaria for the past two years and other residents in my neighborhood have been similarly affected, and what we want is this intolerable nuisance stopped."

Upon the invitation of Mr. Langford, Mr. Mumford also added words of protest. He said that he had been induced to remove here from the city by Edmund Rushmore and other friends, but if he had had any idea that he was going to a neighborhood where a city "dump" was maintained he never would have come to Plainfield. In fact, he had threatened to break his lease and go back to New York if the nuisance was not abated.

Mr. Mumford said that ashmen had been permitted to dump fish heads and all kinds of garbage at this dump and he thought it was time that the practice was stopped once and for all. He described the terrible odors and stench that permeated the rooms of his home, making life almost unbearable.

Mayor Fisk, who was present, explained the origin of the city "dump" adding that it was thought to be an economical way of filling in that section for the proposed opening of Dunellen avenue. At first nothing but ashes were dumped there, but later he found that ashmen were also carting garbage to the place. A year ago the dumping was stopped and the dump was ordered closed. Sim-

NOT TO EXTEND SEWERS TO ROSE STREET NOW

There was considerable opposition to including Rose street, in the ordinance providing for the extension of the sanitary sewer system, when Mr. Gloak moved for its adoption on first and second readings, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night. Mr. Buxton was anxious to have the street included, presenting a petition signed by Peter McDonough and others, who represent 968 feet frontage.

The opposition to including Rose street was led by Mr. Clay, who said that there is not a building on the street to be benefitted by the proposed sewer. Mr. Buxton said he felt sure that it would be needed as Mr. McDonough intends to erect several buildings on that street.

Mr. Mygatt also opposed the extension of the sewer in Rose street. The chief point for opposition was that there is a sewer on Randolph road, where the only building on the street faces, and one in Arlington avenue, near another building.

Mr. Clay's motion to leave Rose street out of the ordinance was carried by a vote of seven to three, Councilman Clay, Holt, Mygatt, C. C. Randolph, Frank Randolph, Taylor and Tolles voting in the affirmative and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak and Wilson in the negative. A petition protesting against the improvement was also read.

REGULATIONS CONCERNING ST. IMPROVEMENT WORK

For the purpose of securing uniformity in the future in the macadamizing of streets in the city, Mr. Holt, chairman of the committee on laws and ordinances, at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, offered an ordinance, which was read for information, covering this matter. The ordinance provides that when it is proopsed to macadamize a street plans for the same must be filed, showing that the work shall conform to the established standard set by the Common Council; also that the work shall be done under the direction of the street commission. The ordinance further provides that no public work on streets shall be done except by ordinance of the Common Council; that macadam shall be of a certain thickness and width, but this shall not prevent the laying of sewers in private streets.

Copies of the ordinance will be sent to each member, it being the purpose of the Common Council to pass the same in the near future. President Tolles and others expressed their opinions that the ordinance is a good one.

Mr. Holt recalled the ordinance providing for the regulation of and storage of gasolene, stating that the fire and building committee had thought it wise to withdraw the original ordinance, as several changes had been suggested and the committee desired to offer a new ordinance with the amendments.

These changes are minor ones, but the committee thought it best to incorporate them and make the ordinance that much stronger. It is essentially as printed in The Daily Press recently. The new ordinance was adopted on two readings and again ordered advertised.

On motion of Mr. Clay, the ordinance to license, regulate and prohibit shows, etc., was passed on third reading in its original form. No one was present to speak for or against this action.

Charles H. Hand petitioned the Common Council for permission to erect a corrugated iron awning at 316 Watchung avenue, and the matter was referred to the fire and building committee.

THROWN FROM CARRIAGE; ESCAPED SERIOUS HURTS.

An accident in which Mrs. Theodore Mantz, of East Seventh street, and Miss Edna Oliver, of East Fifth street, were the victims of a runaway horse, occurred on Saturday afternoon near Lebanon. Mrs. Mantz was painfully, though not seriously hurt and Miss Oliver escaped injury.

While driving toward this city the shafts dropped from the harness and the horse took fright. The surrey in which the two women were seated turned over and both were thrown out. Mr. Mantz said this morning that his wife was progressing nicely at their home and that no serious consequences were expected from the mishap.

SUPERVISION OF TROLLEY

Proposed Ordinance Will Prevent Operation of Unservicable Cars Here.

FINES WILL BE IMPOSED.

The Mayor Vested With Power—Street Commissioner to Make Thorough Inspections Quarterly.

The Councilmanic committee on laws and ordinance believes that it has taken a long step forward in a movement to rid the local trolley system of some of its objectionable features. This was shown at the adjourned meeting of the Common Counpcil last night, when Mr. Holt, chairman of the committee, presented an ordinance, which was read for information and which it is proposed to pass on first and second readings at the August meeting.

The ordinance, which represents a good deal of work and several conferences with Corporation Counsel Marsh, has many good features, including the maintenance of the Public Service Corporation's entire equipment here in first-class condition; that the street commissioner shall make a thorough inspection every three months and report the result to the Mayor.

For certain specified infractions of the ordinance the company may be fined $20 a day for every day the camplained-of conditions continue, and for other more serious infractions, such as the continuance of operating cars with flat wheels, exceedingly noisy motors, etc., after being informed of the fact by the Mayor a fine of $50 a day can be imposed.

Copies of the ordinance will be sent to each member of the Common Council; also the Public Service Corporation. As to the mater of keeping the cars clean and sanitary, the Board of Health will be informed that that is its duty and that it has the power to adopt an ordinance carrying full power with authority to fine the corporation for infractions.

VETOED RESOLUTION OF COMMON COUNCIL

Mayor Charles J. Fisk communicated with the Common Council, last night, returning without his sanction the resolution which awarded the $30,000 worth of street improvement bonds to the City National Bank. He informed the members that the private sale of such bonds was against the State law, which provides that ten days' notice must be given, allowing for public bids. He stated that while he thought the offer of the local bank an advantageous one, he did not approve the method. No further action was taken last night.

In accordance with a resolution by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, the contract for the building of the extension to the Richmond street storm sewer was awarded to Edmund F. Saxton, of New York, his bid being the lowest. In round figures his bid was about $900.

A resolution offered by Mr. Buxton and adopted, authorized the borrowing of $5,000 in anticipation of taxes for the benefit of the fire fund.

TEN YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOYED CAMP LIFE.

A merry party of campers, including Plainfield, New York and Westfield young people, have just returned from Clark's Landing, Point Pleasant, after an enjoyable outing of ten days. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. G. Harold Whitney, Miss Edith Mooney, of Westfield; Miss Margretta Runyon, Miss Ethel Prior, Miss Helen Whitney and Martin B. Stutsman, of this city; Leonard Beckley, Irwin Yerkes and Albert Marsden, of New York city.

There was only one exciting incident of the outing and that was experienced by Miss Runyon. While engaged in crabbing on Saturday, one of the lively little creatures fastened its claws on her finger and before she could release the hold, an injury resulted. The finger swelled to twice its natural size, but prompt treatment relieved the pain and now the finger is almost well again.

LAKE HOPATCONG LIFE

Plainfielders Enjoying Summer Days at the Ideal Jersey Resort.

MANY OCCUPYING COTTAGES.

Camp Life Appeals to a Considerable Number—Tom Muir an Officer of the Canoe Club.

According to persons in a position to know, there are more Plainfield people summering at Lake Hopatcong this year than in any of the popular resorts previous seasons. The cottage and camping colonies include many local residents while the hotels number them by the scores. To all appearances, the lake is becoming Plainfield's leading inland recreation point.

Among the cottagers who are now comfortably ensconced until cool weather comes are Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Woodhull, of West Front street, who are at their pretty place, "Barwood," on Halsey Island. Mr. and Mrs. S. P. T. Wilbur, whose cottage "Elkswood" is on the mainland; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Haynes, at "Chotola" in Chamberlain Cove, and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Janke.

Camp "Ram's Horn," on Halsey Island, conducted by Tom Muir, has been a mecca for Plainfielders during the recent hot spell. Among the guests were Barton Davis, Hugh Sweeny, Judge William N. Runyon, Thomas Hanna, Albert Koch, Albert Keenan, Joseph Kregar, Edward Byer, John Matthews, William Codding, Elton Giles and Edward Balzer, Jr.

Camp "There-He-Goes," situated on Halsey Island next to "Ram's Horn," has for its occupants William and Harry Hoffman, of West Front street, and Wallace Morton, of Orchard place, who will remain all season. The camp is in an ideal spot and attracts many visitors. Morton is chef, and between meals is practicing canoe paddling, having entered the annual races to be conducted in August by the Hopatcong Yacht Club. He is an enthusiastic canoeist and was one of the organizers of the Camper's Canoe Club formed last week with the following officers: Commodore, Ellwin Quick, of Somerville; vice-commodore, William Hoffman, of Plainfield; pennant bearer, S. E. Barnes, of Paterson; treasurer, Tom Muir, of Plainfield. The club had its first cruise up Little Nigger brook and next Thursday goes on a ten-mile paddle down the River Styx.

Another camping party from Plainfield located on Halsey Island last week was composed of Edward Schaub, Gardener Bristol, Will Donnelley, Clarence Williams,. Mr. Bristol is remaining over for the rest of the month.

Roy Titsworth, of Madison avenue, is a guest at "Barwood" for the summer. Among the guests on the mainland are Jack Riffert, John Lyness, Taylor Mehaffey, of Brooklyn, formerly of Plainfield. Mr. Riffert will be one of the end men in the annual minstrel show of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club to be conducted in its handsome new club house next month.

NETHERWOOD CAMP EXERCISES TONIGHT TO BE ENJOYABLE.

Members of the Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will conduct the exercises at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp tonight. It is expected that many of the friends of the camp will be present and that the children will enjoy another service of the kind which delights both them and Miss Curry.

Tomorrow night an entertainment has ben planned for the children in which Martin A. Korff and several musicians will take part.

Fined for Drunkenness.

An Italian laborer, whose name and address were unascertainable and who was arrested Saturday night on Somerset street, charged with being drunk and disorderly, was fined $5 in the borough court this morning. He was allowed to go free Sunday morning after sobering up, upon furnishing bail of $5 with instructions to appear this morning. He failed to show up, and the fine followed.

Routine Business Only.

Only regular routine business was transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the Borough Board of Health, which was held last night in the Borough Council chambers.

TO MACADAMIZE STREETS

Abutting Property Owners to Be Heard Before Measures are Signed.

THE MAYOR SO ANNOUNCES.

Mr. Fisk Uses a Novel Way of Ascertaining Public Sentiment on the Proposed Improvements.

Several public hearings were granted at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, one of which was regarding the proposed action to macadamize about thirteen different thoroughfares throughout the city. There was one protest, against the improvement of Leland avenue from Front street to Greenbrook, and the ordinance was so amended as to leave out that section and include South avenue to Berkeley avenue. The other streets included in the list are Thornton avenue, West Fourth street, Randolph road, Johnson avenue, Putnam avenue, Central avenue, Prescott place, Stebbins place, South Second street, Jackson avenue, Netherwood avenue and Essex street.

Ordinances covering these streets were passed on third reading. Mayor C. J. Fisk stated after the meeting that he had directed postal cards mailed to every property-holder on the line of the streets named for improvement, notifying them that he will give a hearing at his office Friday night to all parties interested before singing the ordinances. He wants thorough publicity given before the final action is taken.

A public hearing was also granted on the ordinance to vacate New street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, and no one appearing, it was finally passed on third reading. The petition favoring the project was signed by all the interested property-owners. The part of land to be vacated has been an unused thoroughfare for many years.

After a public hearing on the ordinance relating to the laying and repair of sidewalks and no one appearing for or against, it was adopted on third reading.

COMES FROM ENGLAND TO GET SOME APPLES

Former Physical Director Haywood, of the Y. M. C. A., who has been in England since leaving here several years ago, is visiting friends in town for a time. Mr. Haywood was physical director of the association at Birmingham, England, for three years, resigning because of the increased hard work. His home is now at Manchester, and he came to this country for the purpose of making arrangements to export American apples. He claims that he can handle ten thousand barrels of apples a week and he proposes to establish an extensive business abroad.

Mr. Haywood witnessed the obsequies of King Edward and was one of the many hundreds of thousands of people who viewed the body as it lay in state. He was in the line for nearly three hours before he was able to pass the central point of interest. Mr. Haywood declares that it was the greatest sight he ever witnessed.

More Than 300 Shares Subscribed.

The Union Building and Loan Association at its monthly meeting, last night, opened the sixty-eigth series and more than three hundred shares were subscribed for. The fourth series was paid off and many who received their money at once took shares in the new series. Considerable favorable comment has been heard about the payment of the fourth series, especially as it only required 134 months, ten months less than the average.

Auto and Carriage Collide.

A collision occurred this morning shortly before 8 o'clock on West Front street, near Somerset in which an automobile driven by A. J. Martin, of New Brunswick, took a wheel off a carriage occupied by William Campbell, of Scotch Plains. No one was hurt and according to eyewitnesses of the accident the automobilist was blameless.

Will Organize a Baraca Class.

Under the auspices of the men of the South Plainfield Baptist church, it is proposed to organize a Baraca Bible class, tomorrow night. Rev. Joseph J. Allen, the pastor, has the matter in charge, and in connection with the meeting there will be a supper. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, will speak at the meeting.

FINED FOR CAUSING DISTURBANCE ON CAR

For causing a disturbance on a main line trolley car on last Saturday night Clifford Hill colored, of Big Woods, Westfield, was fined $25 this morning in the city court by Judge Runyon. James McAuley, Barney Caulfield and Constable J. Ernest Clark, of Westfield, gave damaging evidence against the negro. McAuley exhibted wounds on his hands where he declared Hill had bitten him during the fight. Other witnesses testified that the negro when accused of assaulting one of the passengers, passed his bundles to a colored woman who apparently accompanied him and immediately started the fracas which resulted in a near riot

Richard Cottis, of Westfield, attemped to defend the negro but Judge Runyon failed to be impressed with his testimony. John Keenan, another witness, also living in Westfield, and who bears an unimpeachable reputation, told the court that Hill was intoxicated and graphically described the subsequent events up to and including Chief Kiely's interference and arrest of the colored man.

Unless Hill manages to pay his fine today he will be taken to Elizabeth, where he will have to spend the next twenty-five days.

WOMAN IS HELD UP; WATCH ONLY BOOTY

Martha Mock, an employe at the Brass Kettle Inn, near Scotch Plains, was held up last night by an Italian and robbed of her watch. Fortunately for her she had left her pocketbook at home. The Italian escaped without being recognized and Miss Mock could give the police no description of him.

The holdup and robbery occurred just after Miss Mock had alighted from the trolley at 8:15 o'clock last night and while she was crossing the fields in the direction of the hotel where she is employed as a maid. The highwayman at first demanded the woman's money, but when she declared that she had none he snatched a silver watch which was dangling from a pin and chain at her shirt waist and made a get-a-way.

Miss Mock gave the alarm as soon as she recovered her equilibrium and senses, but it was then too late to make a pursuit successful.

S. P. C. A. HOLDS REGULAR JULY MEETING AT Y. M. C. A.

The July meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held in the reception room of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon was productive of an addition of three to the active membership.

Reports from the various officers were read in which the activities of the society were demonstrated. The horse bonnets provided by the society have been adopted by several of the leading firms in the city and others have signified their intention of adopting this means of protection for their animals.

Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, the special agent made several reports of investigations made during the past month including the examination of the horses at Fire Headquarters. These horses were found to be in splendid physical condition and free from any complaint. Dr. F. C. Ard presided at the meeting.

FARMER OVERCOME BY HEAT.

New Market, July 12.—Working on his farm, near here, Saturday afternoon, Winfield Madison was overcome by the heat and fell to the ground, where he lay undiscovered until after 8 o'clock in the evening. Then farm hands became alarmed over his failure to come home and went to look for him. They found Madison in a comatose state and carried him to the house, where he is in a serious condition.

The team he was using was seen in one place for a long time, but it was supposed that Madison had stopped the horses and had gone to rest in the shade for a while.

STATION AGENT MISSING

In a Letter, Wm. Day Says He Will Drown Himself at Coney Island.

ADDRESSED TO HIS WIFE.

He Left Oak Tree Yesterday Morning Stating That He Was Going to See His Dentist.

William Day, who for several years has been the agent at Oak Tree and at Potter's Crossing for the Lehigh Valley Railroad, went away yesterday morning ostensibly for the purpose of going to call on a dentist. When he failed to return home at noon his wife became worried, and when he did not come home last night efforts were made at once to locate his whereabouts but without success.

This morning Thomas Brantingham, of Park avenue, received a letter from Day for Mrs. Day, in which the writer said that he had gone to Coney Island and that his body would be found there as he intended to drown himself. Mrs. Day is wholly unable to account for her husband's action. So far as she knows everything was all right both in her husband's railroad work and his domestic life was said to be a happy one.

Mr. Day was stationed at the South Plainfield office for several years, and later was transferred to the charge of the stations at Oak Tree and Potter's Crossing. He was located at Potter's during the day and at Oak Tree the rest of the time, dividing up his work to meet the conditions at each station which are near each other.

Mr. Day, it is said, has always borne a good reputation and was known as an efficient and careful railroad man. His friends are at a loss to know why he should go away with the intention of taking his life. The railroad officials have been notified and today another man is serving in Mr. Day's place.

A friend of the family called all of the local dentists on the telephone last night, but was unable to get any trace of Mr. Day. Yesterday, Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis while riding in their automobile near Sewaren, saw a strange-appearing man on the road. Before they reached him he jumped into some woods and disappeared. The description of Day did not tally with that of the man seen at Sewaren, and doubtless was not the man in question.

ANOTHER MEMORIAL WINDOW AT FIRST M. E.

Mrs. Joseph B. Yerkes and her son,, George Burgess, have placed a beautiful memorial window in the First M. E. church in memory of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Burgess, who were active members of the church for a great many years. This is the second memorial window given to the church, the first one being that of James W. Jackson in memory of his parents. The latest window is next to the one given by Mr. Jackson.

The window represents the resurrection of the Lord. The other one represents the ascension of the Lord. Beneath the new window is this inscription:

To the Glory of God
In Loving Memory of George H. Burgess,
Died January 9, 1895;
Anna Scott Burgess
Died May 3, 1909.

Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle and children, Mildred and Edward, of Lincoln place, have returned from a two weeks' visit with relatives at Somerville.

The eleven delegates from the local branch of the Y. W. C. A., to the summer conference of that association; which is being held at Silver Bay, N. Y., are expected home on Friday.

GOLF.

After a temporary lull, the metropolitan district will again become active in a competitive golf way this week. First on the list is the championship tournament of the National Freight Traffic Golf Association, to be held today, tomorrow and Thursday over the links of the Essex County Country Club. Partly conflicting with this will be the first Long Island championship meeting, carded for the Brooklyn-Forest Park public links, from July 13 to 16. On Thursday many veteran golfers will qualify in an eighteen-hole round for the right to compete in match play for the "Eagle" trophy and the championship of Long Island. The first sixteen will qualify. Besides the veterans there are entered a number of youngsters who aspire to the first title, and naturally the Brooklyn-Forest Park golfers feel quite strong on their native heath.

Prizes will be awarded for the three other sixteens, runners-up and the beaten eight divisions in each flight. The final in the championship division will be at thirty-six holes.

Besides the competition for championship honors, there will be a Saturday handicap, which is rapidly filling. Among the entries already received are those of Fred Hereshoff, of Garden City, metropolitan champion, and Gilman P. Tiffany, of Powelton, former Hudson River champion, who will test the mettle of some of the local contingent, among whom are George G. Baxter, Charles T. Sweeney, H. J. Donnelly and Deveraux Lord.

Freight Traffic golfers have been running off spring and fall tournaments since 1905, and this coming attraction will probably draw a large entry. There will be an eighteen-hole medal play round for a starter to-morrow, and those finishing in the first sixteen will earn the right to continue at match play for the championship. Tomorrow there will be a separate eighteen-hole medal play handicap, open to those who failed to qualify. First and second match rounds for the qualifiers will also be in order, while on Thursday there will be another handicap coincident with these semi-final and final rounds in the championship.

The regular monthly meeting of the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church will be held in the church parlor, tomorrow night at 9 o'clock.

Our July Clearance Sale Is Rich in Money Savings

Every day witnesses unusual value-giving. We are eager to clear the decks and willingly cut prices down to lowest point. Buying is brisk, big and enthusiastic—because there exists no equal opportunity of obtaining desired merchandise at such small cost.

A big manufacturer of muslin underwear in need of orders to keep his factory going during the dull period called on our syndicate of buyers in New York with a proposition that he would make up any garments at actual cost of manufacture to keep his work force together. The proposition was submitted to us and all got together, we bought and bought at a low figure as the following list of items that have just arrived will show. These are well made undermuslins, clean and fresh, cut full in every way. The lowered prices does not affect the quality.

Infractions of Auto Law.

Recently, it has been noticed that more than the usual number of automobiles have ben operated at night without the rear light burning. The law provides a heavy penalty for this infraction of the State law. Another thing of which many autoists have been guilty of late, is that of running their machines between a trolley car and the curb while passengers are alighting and getting on. There have been several narrow escapes in which people have come close to being knocked down.

Miss Rebecca Rose and Miss Bertha Andrews, of Upper Montclair, have returned home after a pleasant visit with Miss Edna C. Swain, of Craig place.

"YELLOW" JOURNALS ARE BLAMED FOR WARFARE.

Yesterday the Friends resumed the work of their biennial conference at Ocean Grove, and one of the most important addresses was delivered by Henry W. Wilbur, of Swarthmore, Pa., who spoke on "The Friends and the Present Trend of Religious Thought."

Mr. Wilbur dealt with the fundamental position of the Society of Friends as a reason why it is qualified to make an interpretation of the subject in terms of the spiritual and the practical. He claimed this interpretation largely consists in discovering the elements of truth in religion.

Dr. O. Edward Janney, of Baltimore, president of the conference, spoke of "The Upbuilding of a Religious Society, concluding that the first essential thereto is the personal righteousness of its members, when they have the assurance that the organization is worth building up. He urged Sunday school effort as an adjunct to the upbuilding.

"Conditions That Make for War," were discussed this afternoon by Edward Clarkson Wilson, of Baltimore, who cited ignorance as a cause; also the so-called yellow journalism and other forms of sensational utterance.

Yale and Politics.

"The ambitions of politics seem to be more and more a divisive force in the family of Yale graduates," says the Springfield Republican. "The troubles of Gifford Pinchot and others with William H. Taft, Yale, '78, are reasonably familiar. Now comes along William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, N. J., who was graduated from Yale in the class with Lee McClung, present United States treasurer, and announces himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination to the seat in Congress held by Charles N. Fowler, who has aired his troubles with and his disapproval of Speaker Cannon on sundry occasions. Mr. Runyon, if we mistake not, was a songster on the Yale Glee Club in his day, while Mr. Fowler was a member of the Yale crew a dozen years earlier."—Elizabeth Journal.

Plan Fowler Reception.

Plans are being made to tender a reception to Congressman Charles N. Fowler in Hackensack Friday night. The proomters of the reception are George L. Record, of Jersey City; William P. Martin and Lathrop Anderson, of Newark. The three men, together with several men prominent in political circles in Hackensack, held a secret conference in that city last Wednesday night, when the plan was made.

OFF TO WASHINGTON TO WAR ON R.R. RATES

Terry Parker, counsel for the Commuters' League of New Jersey, left at 9:56 o'clock last night for Washington, where he appeared today before the Interstate Commerce Commission to present the protest of the commuters against the increase in commutation rates on the railroads operating in the State, which are scheduled to go into effect July 20. Mr. Parker has prepared a lengthy argument to show why the new rates should not be allowed. Attorney-General Edmund Wilson will officially represent the State.

Under a provision of the newrailroad law the Interstate Commerce Commission will be asked to suspend the rates for 120 days. If the suspension is granted the burden of proof of the reasonableness of the proposed rates will rest on the railroads. If a date is set for a final hearing, when the railroads must show cause for the increases, it was said last night that a strong delegation would probably then go from New Jersey to give support to the contest for just transportation rates.

Owing to an important business engagement, Howard Marshall, president of the Commuters' League, was unable to go to Washington to be present at the hearing today. Frank H. Sommer, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, who left for Washington yesterday morning, will be at the hearing.

The rates against which the lawyer for the commuters will make protest today were to have gone into effect on June 26, but when numerous complaints were made the railroads agreed, at the instance of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to delay their enforcement until July 20. Doubt has been expressed as to the authority of the commission to interfere with the commutation charges and if the decision is against the railroads there is a possibility of an appeal to the courts on the part of the corporations with the purpose of having these rates declared beyond the purview of the interstate commission.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The first anniversary of the Ebenezer Baptist church will be celebrated July 18-21, with special speakers every evening. Rev. G. E. Scruggs is the pastor.

Francis Mortimer, of Franklin place, who has been under treatment for scarlet fever in the contagious disease ward at Muhlenberg Hospital, has about recovered and expects to return home the last of the week.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. Church will continue to hold its meetings Sunday evenings during the summer. The topic next Sunday night will be "The Christian's Rewards Here," and Miss Elsie Horn will be the leader.

DE FESTETICS WINS FIRST POINT IN NOVEL SUIT.

The case of Mrs. Elsie de Festetics against Gyula de Festetics, of this city, was called before Vice Chancellor Garretson, in Jersey City, yesterday morning and on request of Samuel S. Swackhamer, of counsel for Mr. de Festetics, was laid over for two weeks.

Vice Chancellor Garretson, however, notified counsel for the complainant, that all briefs which are to be considered in the action must be filed within a week from yesterday. This is considered as a partial victory for Mr. de Festetics, by those who are following the case in this city.

Playground Commission to Meet.

There will be an important meeting of the Playground Commission in the Mayor's office at 5.30 this afternoon. As there is much pressing business to be transacted, a full attendance of the commission is requested.

Judge Isaac P. Runyon and his family leave the city tomorrow for a month's stay at Ocean Grove. The Judge has been ill for a fortnight and his physician believes that the rest and change will do him an immense amount of good.

If the gas company can get five property-owners to sign an agreement to have their houses piped, it will extend its mains along Brookside avenue. What, with electricity and city water already installed, is there left to give this country village all the conveniences, unless it be a trolley line.

Frank Van Nest, who resided here for many years, visited his old home last week and was greeted by his many friends, who were glad to hear of his success on Staten Island, where he is now engaged in business and makes his home.

Fred C. Lounsberry, who formerly owned a summer home here in connection with a chicken farm, has retired from the Crescent Embossing Company, and will take a much-needed rest.

William Hamilton, the popular village blacksmith, has added a new industry to his business. If you have a trap that needs a new rubber tire, he is the man to do the work and is sure to please.

ilar action was taken recently, and upon the request of the Board of Education, ashes are now being dumped near the new Jefferson School, a man being placed there to see that nothing but ashes and no objectionable matter is carted to that point.

The Mayor said that the residents of the West End, especially in the neighborhood of Compton avenue, have had a just and righteous kick, adding that conditions at the city "dump" are simply "rotten." He further explained that he had ordered the dump closed and lime spread over the debris, but Mr. Langford interjected, "It will take several months to remove the odor at that."

It is safe to say there will be no further trouble from the dump for the present, at least for the protest of the residents seemed to impress the councilmen that it was a good thing to remove from that section of the city.

THE FORUM.

Favors Mr. Fowler.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Now that Judge William N. Runyon has formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Fifth Congressional district of New Jersey in opposition to Charles N. Fowler, I should like to trespass upon your space sufficiently to state the reasons why I believe Mr. Fowler should be nominated in preference to Judge Runyon.

There is a widespread impression, that the Democrats will have a majority in the next House of Representatives. This impression is due to a general feeling of dissatisfaction with the conduct of the present Republican majority, particularly with regard to the tariff. Almost all of the vitally important provisions of the railroad law, one of the most important of the administration measures, were inserted as the result of insurgent influence. The attitude of the insurgents in both House and Senate has met with ready sympathy throughout the country, as shown by the recent elections in Massachusetts and New York, and the recent primaries in Pennsylvania and other States. The spirit of insurgency is not confined to the central and western States. This being so, is it wise to rebuke, by refusing to renominate, a repreesntative whose course, during the present Congress has been in substantial accord with the progressive ideas which are so fast gaining ground? Is it not probable that such action will drive to the support of the Democratic candidate those who, although Republicans, are utterly unwilling to lend any semblance of approval to the methods heretofore followed by the Republican organization in Congress, led by Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon?

Will not a refusal to renominate Mr. Fowler inevitably be interpreted, not only throughout this State, but throughout the entire country, as an endorsement of Cannonism? Will the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional district of New Jersey stand for that?

Now as to the merits of Mr. Fowler's candidacy.

In his recent open letter of May 23d last, Mr. Fowler stated the platform upon which he seeks a renomination, and which I have not yet seen published in the newspapers of Plainfield. It is as follows:

"Now that the issue may be clearly made and the Republicans of the Fifth Congressional District may be fully informed with regard to my attitude upon all national questions of vital importance, I desire here to state the platform upon which I stand:

"ONE—I am in favor of limiting the power of the Speaker of the House of Representatives to the single duty of presiding over its deliberations.

"TWO—I am in favor of pure food, pure drugs and honest weights.

"THREE—I am against national waste and profligacy and opposed to special privileges, which of necessity invariably work injustice to the people. I believe that all of our national resources covered by the public domain belong to the people of the United States and that there inherently exists in the government the power to protect and conserve the property of the people, to the end that all property of the people may be saved and preserved for the whole people instead of a favored few.

"FOUR—I am in favor of the conservation of our greatest asset and chief resource, the American citizen—his morals, his health, his intelligence, his just rights and equal opportunities under the operation of righteous laws.

"FIVE—I am in favor of a broad tariff commission, to the end that protection may be guaranteed to the consumer as well as to the producer. I am in favor of a tariff based upon ascertained facts and not based upon corrupt agreements. I am in favor of a tariff measuring the difference of the cost of the production at home and abroad. More than this is unfair to the American consumer, and less than this is unfair to the American laborer.

"SIX—I believe that every grant of power by any State or the general government to any corporation carries with it the implied obligation that the power so granted will be exercised with reason, justice and equity. Therefore, the State or general government granting such power has reserved to itself the right to control and regulate every State corporation and compel it to do justice and equity to and between all the citizens of such State or of the United States.

"Since the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states was granted to the general government, the power to compel all corporations doing an inter-state business of a commercial character to do justice and equity to and between all the citizens of the United States, besides in the general government of the United States.

"SEVEN—I am opposed to a central bank in favor of a financial and banking system in harmony with our political institutions—one that will completely emancipate the United States Treasury from its present perils, that will base all of our bank credits upon gold reserves, and one that will give us a currency directly related to trade and commerce, and convertible into gold coin."

This platform, in my opinion, can and should be heartily approved by every Republican.

I believe Mr. Fowler's opponents may be divided into two classes; the regular politicians, whom he so bitterly attacked in his recent letter, and those whose unfavorable opinions are based either on extracts from his reecnt letter which have appeared in various papers, or on what I believe to be deliberate misrepresentations industriously circulated by his political foes for many years.

As to the politicians whom he singled out for attack in his letter, and their sympathizers, their hostility is easily understood and occasions no surprise. It is to Mr. Fowler's honor that the issue between them and him should be drawn as sharply as possible.

With the other class of Mr. Fowler's opponents there is ground for reasonable argument. Personally, I regret that Mr. Fowler in his letter used epithets so freely. I do not think they strengthen an argument, and I believe his letter would have carried more weight had they and some other parts of it been omitted. However, that is a question of taste, and I do not consider anyone justified in condemning Mr. Fowler solely on account of that letter unless he has read the whole of it.

Immediately after its publication, long before Judge Runyon was even thought of as a candidate for the Congressional nomination, I was credibly informed that before its publication, Mr. Fowler's letter was submitted to Judge Runyon for criticism, and that he unqualifiedly approved it.

With Mr. Fowler's principal attack upon the corrupting influence of money in politics, and his effort to prevent the re-election of Senator Kean, I am in hearty sympathy.

It has been charged against Mr. Fowler that he is a self-centered man. It is difficult to understand precisely what is meant by this charge. If it is meant that he uses his public office for purposes of private gain, I do not believe it. If it is meant that when he is a candidate for re-election he concentrates his energies on efforts to bring about his success, he is not different from any other candidate. Judge Runyon will undoubtedly be equally self-centered until after the primaries. If it is meant that he has devoted his energies while he has been in Congress chiefly to the study of the financial question in an effort to bring about a real, scientific and lasting reform of our currencey, I say the subject is big enough to justify such action, and the whole country owes him a debt of gratitude for it. If it is meant that he makes campaign speeches only in his own campaigns, it is not true. He has campaigned in support of gubernatorial candidates all over this state, and in support of the Republican ticket in nearly every State east of the Rocky Mountains.

It has been charged that he does not contribute freely enough to campaign funds. In my opinion this charge is an admission of the charges made by Mr. Fowler against Senator Kean. It is an admission that the popularity of a public officer is proportioned to the size of his contributions to the campaign fund. I have not been actively interested in politics very long, but I have learned that whenever the county committee of Union county is short of money, the source of supply to which they always look with confidence is John Kean, or his brother, Hamilton, and in my judgment such a state of affairs is extremely pernicious to the general good.

Judge Runyon has been always looked upon as a citizen of the highest character. For him, personally, I have only the kindest feelings. In 1906 he openly espoused the New Idea cause, announced his regret that he had previously been associated politically with an organization of whose corruption he had at last been brought to a realizing sense, and pledged himself never again to join hands with it. His friends will not willingly believe that he has now repudiated those excellent resolutions, but they may justly demand that he make a public declaration of the principles for which he now stands. The statement which he made in announcing his candidacy for Congress is beautifully vague. What does he stand for? Is he opposed to Aldrichism and Cannonism? If elected, will he vote for Cannon for speaker? Will he follow the lead of the regular organization, or will he join with those who struggle to promote the welfare of the people as against what are generally known as "the interests?" Is he in favor of a revision of the tariff?

These are some of the questions which Judge Ruonyon may fairly be called upon to answer.

I believe the selection of a candidate for Congress at the approaching primaries should be determined by the principles which each candidate supports.

Let Judge Runyon announce the principles for which he stands, and then the people can intelligently indicate their choice.

HOWARD C. TRACY.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER
COPYRIGHT 1908 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

Suddenly the memory of Obadiah's note shot into Nathaniel's head, the councilor's admonition, his allusion to a visitor. With this memory there recurred to him Obadiah's words at the temple. "If you had remained at the cabin, Nat, you would have known that I was your friend. She would have come to you, but now—it is impossible." For the first time the truth began to dawn upon him. He went and sat down beside Neil.

"I am beginning to understand—a little," he said. "Obadiah had planned that I should meet Marion, but I was a fool and spoiled his scheme. If I had done as he told me I should have seen her this morning."

In a few words he reviewed the events of the preceding evening and of that morning—of his coming to the island, his meeting with Obadiah, and of the singular way in which he had become interested in Marion. He omitted the oaths but told of Winnsome's warning and of his interview with the Mormon king. When he spoke of the girl as he had seen her through the king's window, and of her appealing face turned toward him at the jail, his voice trembled with an excitement that deepened the flush in Neil's cheeks.

"Captain Plum, I thank God that you like Marion," he said simply. "After I kill Strang will you help her?"

"Yes."

"You are willing to risk—"

"My life—my men—my ship!"

Nathaniel spoke like one to whom there had been suddenly opened the portals to a great joy. He sprang to his feet and stood before Neil, his whole being throbbing with the emotions which had been awakened within him.

"Good God, why don't you tell me what her peril is?" he cried, no longer restraining himself. "Why are you going to kill Strang? Has he—has he—" His face flushed with the question which he dared not finish.

"No—not that!" interrupted Neil. "He has never laid a hand on Marion. She hates him as she hates the snakes in this swamp. And yet—next Sunday she is to become his seventh wife!"

Nathaniel started as if he had been threatened by a blow.

"You mean—he is forcing her into his harem?" he asked.

"No, he can not do that!" exclaimed Neil, the hatred bursting out anew in his face. "He can not force her into marrying him, and yet—" He flung his arms above his head in sudden passionate despair. "As there is a God in heaven I would give 10 years of my life for the secret of the prophet's power over Marion!" he groaned. "Three months ago her hatred of him was terrible. She loathed the sight of him. I have seen her shiver at the sound of his voice. When he asked her to become his wife she refused him in words that I had believed no person in the kingdom would have dared to use. Then—less than a month ago—the change came, and one day she told me that she had made up her mind to become Strang's wife. From that day her heart was broken. I was dumbfounded. I raged and cursed and even threatened. Once I accused her of a shameful thing and though I implored her forgiveness a thousand times I know that she weeps over my brutal words still. But nothing could change her. On my knees I have pleaded with her, and once she flung her arms round my shoulders and said, 'Neil, I can not tell you why I am marrying Strang. But I must.' I went to Strang and demanded an explanation; I told him that my sister hated him, that the sight of his face and the sound of his voice filled her with abhorrence, but he only laughed at me and asked me why I objected to becoming the brother-in-law of a prophet. Day by day I have seen Marion's soul dying within her. Some terrible secret is gnawing at her heart, robbing her of the very life which a few weeks ago made her the most beautiful thing on this island; some dreadful influence is shadowing her every step, and as the day draws near when she is to join the king's harem I see in her eyes at times a look that frightens me. There is only one salvation. Tomorrow I shall kill Strang!"

"And then?"

Neil shrugged his shoulders.

"I will shoot him through the abdomen so that he will live to tell his wives who did the deed. After that I will try to make my escape to the mainland."

"And Marion—"

"Will not marry Strang! Isn't that plain?"

"You have guessed nothing—no cause for the prophet's power over your sister?" asked Nathaniel.

"Absolutely. And yet that influence is such that at times the thought of it freezes the blood in my veins. It is so great that Strang did not hesitate to throw me into jail on the pretext that I had threatened his life. Marion implored him to spare me the disgrace of a public whipping and he replied by reading to her the commandments of the kingdom. That was last night—when you saw her through the window. Strang is madly infatuated with her beauty and yet he dares to go any length without fear of losing her. She has become his slave. She is as completely in his power as though bound in iron chains. And the most terrible thing about it all is that she has constantly urged me to leave the island—to go, and never return. Great God, what does it all mean? I love her more than anything else on earth, we have been inseparable since the day she was able to toddle alone—and yet she would have me leave her! No power on earth can reveal the secret that is torturing her. No power can make Strang divulge it."

"And Obadiah Price!" cried Nathaniel, sudden excitement flashing in his eyes. "Does he know?"

"I believe that he does!" replied Neil, pacing back and forth in his agitation. "Captain Plum, if there is a man on this island who loves Marion with all of a father's devotion it is Obadiah Price, and yet he swears that he knows nothing of the terrible influence which has so suddenly enslaved her to the prophet! He suggests that it may be mesmerism, but I—" He interrupted himself with a harsh, mirthless laugh. "Mesmerism be damned! It's not that!"

"Your sister—is—a Mormon," ventured Nathaniel, remembering what the prophet had said to him that morning. "Could it be her faith?—a message revealed through Strang from—"

Neil stopped him almost fiercely.

"Marion is not a Mormon!" he said. "She hates Mormonism as she hates Strang. I have tried to get her to leave the island with me but she insists on staying because of the old folk. They are very old, Captain Plum, and they believe in the prophet and his heaven as you and I believe in that blue sky up there. The day before I was arrested I begged my sister to flee to the mainland with me but she refused with the words that she had said to me a hundred times before—Neil, I must marry the prophet! Don't you see there is nothing to do—but to kill Strang?"

Nathaniel thrust his hand into a pocket of the coat he had loaned Neil and drew forth his pipe and tobacco pouch. As he loaded the pipe he looked squarely into the other's eyes and smiled.

"Neil," he said softly. "Do you know that you would have made an awful fool of yourself if I hadn't hove in sight just when I did?"

He lighted his pipe with exasperating coolness, still smiling over its bowl.

"You are not going to kill Strang tomorrow," he added, throwing away the match, and placing both hands on Neil's shoulders. His eyes were laughing with the joy that shone in them. "Neil, I am ashamed of you! You have worried a devilish lot over a very simple matter. See here—" He blew a cloud of smoke over the other's head. "I've learned to demand some sort of pay for my services since I landed on this island. Will you promise to be—a sort of brother—to me—if I steal Marion and sail away with her tonight?"

CHAPTER VI.

Marion.

At Nathaniel's astonishing words Neil stood as though struck suddenly dumb.

"Don't you see what a very simple case it is?" he continued, enjoying the other's surprised silence. "You plan to kill Strang to keep Marion from marrying him. Well, I will hunt up Marion, put her in a bag if necessary and carry her to my ship. Isn't that better and safer and just as sure as murder?"

The excitement had gone out of Neil's face. The flush slowly faded from his cheeks and in his eyes there gleamed something besides the malevolence of a few moments before. As Nathaniel stepped back from him half laughing and puffing clouds of smoke from his pipe Marion's brother thrust his hands into his pockets with an exclamation that forcefully expressed his appreciation of Captain Plum's scheme.

"I never thought of that," he added, after a moment. "By heaven, it will be easy—"

"So easy that I tell you again I am ashamed of you for not having thought of it!" cried Nathaniel. "The first thing is to get safely aboard my ship."

"We can do that within an hour."

"And tonight—where will we find Marion?"

"At home," said Neil. "We live near Obadiah. You must have seen the house as you came into the clearing this morning from the forest."

Nathaniel smiled as he thought of his suspicions of the old councilor.

"It couldn't be better situated for our work," he said. "Does the forest run down to the lake on Obadiah's side of the island?"

"Clear to the beach."

Neil's face betrayed a sudden flash of doubt.

"I believe that our place has been watched for some time," he explained. "I am sure that it is especially guarded at night and that no person leaves or enters it without the knowledge of Strang. I am certain that Marion is aware of this surveillance although she professes to be wholly ignorant of it. It may cause us trouble."

"Can you reach the house without being observed?"

"After midnight—yes."

"Then there is no cause for alarm," declared Nathaniel. "If necessary I can bring 10 men into the edge of the woods. Two can approach the house as quietly as one and I will go with you. Once there you can tell Marion that your life depends on her accompanying you to Obadiah's. I believe she will go. If she won't—" He stretched out his arms as if in anticipation of the burden they might hold. "If she wont—I'll help you carry her!"

'And meanwhile," said Neil, "Arbor Croche's men—"

"Will be as dead as herring floaters if they show up!" he cried, leaping two feet off the ground in his enthusiasm. "I've got 12 of the damnedest fighters aboard my ship that ever lived and 10 of them will be in the edge of the woods!"

Neil's eyes were shining with something that made Nathaniel turn his own to the loading of his pipe.

"Captain Plum, I hope I will be able to repay you for this," he said. There was a trembling break in his voice and for a moment Nathaniel did not look up. His own heart was near bursting with the new life that throbbed within it. When he raised his eyes to his companion's face again there was a light in them that spoke almost as plainly as words.

"You haven't accepted my price, yet, Neil," he replied quietly. "I asked you if you'd—be—a sort of brother—"

Neil sprang to his side with a fervor that knocked the pipe out of his hand.

"I swear that! And if Marion doesn't—"

Suddenly he jerked himself into a listening attitude.

"Hark!"

For a moment the two ceased to breathe. The sound had come to them both, low, distant. After it there fell a brief hush. Then again, as they stared questioningly into each other's eyes, it rolled faintly into the swamp—the deep, far baying of a hound.

"Ah!" exclaimed Neil, drawing back with a deep breath. "I thought they would do it!"

"The bloodhounds!"

Horror, not fear, sent an involuntary shiver through Nathaniel.

"They can't reach us!" assured Neil. There was the glitter of triumph in his eyes. "This was to have been my way of escape after I killed Strang. A quarter of a mile deeper in the swamp I have a canoe." He picked up the gun and box and began forcing his way through the dense alder along the edge of the stream. "I'd like to stay and murder those dogs," he called back, "but it wouldn't be policy."

For a time the crashing of their bodies through the dense growth of the swamp drowned all other sound. Five minutes later Neil stopped on the edge of a wide bog. The hounds were giving fierce tongue in the forest on their left and their nearness sent Nathaniel's hand to his pistol. Neil saw the movement and laughed.

"Don't like the sound, eh?" he said. "We get used to it on Beaver island. They're just about at the place where they tore little Jim Schredder to pieces a few weeks back. Schredder tried to kill one of the elders for stealing his wife while he was away on a night's fishing trip."

He plunged to his knees in the bog.

"They caught him just before he reached the swamp," he flung back over his shoulder. "Two minutes more and he would have been safe."

Nathaniel, sinking to his knees in the mire, forged up beside him.

"Lord!" he exclaimed as a breath of air brought a sudden burst of blood-curdling cries to them. "If they'd loosed them on us sooner—"

He shivered at the terrible grimace Neil turned on him.

"Had they slipped the leashes when we escaped, we would have been with poor Schredder now, Captain Plum. By the way"—he stopped a moment to wipe the water and mud from his face—"three days after they covered Schredder's bones with muck out there, the elder took Schredder's wife! She was too pretty for a fisherman." He started on, but halted suddenly with uplifted hand. No longer could they hear the baying of the dogs. "They've struck the creek!" said Neil. "Listen!"

After an interval of silence there came a long mournful howl.

"Treed—treed or in the water, that's what the howling means. How Croche and his devils are howling now!"

MORE BOYS GOING TO CAMP COMFORT

Just eight happy boys from the Holy Cross church are anxiously watching weather indications today with all the boyish enthusiasm and expectancy that a delightful moonlight trip up the picturesque Hudson river with the Rev. George A. Warner involves. There will be no trouble for the boys—everything has been carefully arranged for the trip, and the weather man in full sympathy with the plans of the boys has promised a full moon.

Those who will make the trip are Clay and William Irons, of West Eighth street; Miner Trowbridge, of Kensington avenue; Norman S. McGee, of Willow avenue; Russell Brakeley and Albert Maurer, of Dunellen; and William Carson, of the borough.

Some of the boys will stay at "Camp Comfort," until September 3; some of the boys will remain there until August 1; but the Rev. Mr. Warren will receive boys throughout the summer months. At preesnt the camp enrollment numbers thirty-five. Including the choir boys, this makes a total of fifty-six so far this season.

A number of the parents of the boys have visited the camp; and several have made the trip in autos. Accommodations have usually been found at the Farm House Inn. Among those who made the trip last week were Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Ball, of the borough, parents of Benson Hall, the youngest, and one of the most popular boys in camp.

The Rev. Mr. Warner was in town today completing arrangements for the trip up to the camp with the boys who leave tonight. Outside berths have been engaged on the night boat; but the boys will not retire until they have had a few hours' enjoyment of the music on the boat, and the beautiful scenery by moon light and by searchlight.

TOWNSHIP CIVIC CLUB OPPOSES ANNEXATION

Placing itself on record as being radically opposed to the plan, the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society voted down a proposition to annex the township to the borough at a meeting held last night at Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann's school, on Watchung Crest. Contrary to expectations there was hardly any discussion of the question, and from the tenor of the remarks at last night's session, it was perfectly apparent that the residents of the township are well satisfied with its present status.

It took but a very few minutes to dispose of the question, as there was only one speaker on the motion, Dr. Richard Moldenke who talked against annexation. "That the society go on record, as being opposed to the annexation of the township to the borough at the preesnt time," was the purport of the motion made by C. C. Wheeler. It was quickly seconded by George Mobus, township clerk.

When President Francis de la R. Anderson called for remarks, Dr. Moldenke talked briefly:

"At one time there was a strong sentiment in favor of annexation," said he, "but at present it is deemed advisable that the township stand alone, for to unite with the borough now would necessitate the assumption of a portion of expenses recently contracted by the borough." When the question was put to a vote, it was passed without a dissenting voice.

Several committee reports were read, which showed what has been accomplished. Of special interest was the report of Dr. Groszmann, chairman of the roads committee, who spoke of the benefits derived by the township on Johnson's drive as a result of Saturday's hill climbing contest. It appears that $250 was spent by the township committee in preparing the hill for the climb.

President Anderson also reporting for the Somerset street committee, announced that the oil for that thoroughfare between the end of the trolley line and Watchung would be received soon. A coating of fine stone will be laid over the oil. The road will probably be repaired under the direction of the borough street commissioner John Y. Barrett, and will be fixed in a like manner as the roads in the city.

Another matter considered was that of having the attention of the Borough Board of Health called to the old house on Somerset street at the end of the trolley line. The house is in a disreputable condition, is very unsightly and from the sentiment expressed at last night's session is a menace to the health of the community.

President Anderson appointed the following as a committee for attendance at the Borough Council, township committee, and freeholders meetings: C. C. Wheeler, F. E. Bodin and John Herman.

At the conclusion of the business session, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, was called upon by President Anderson for a few personal remarks. He spoke glowingly of the prospects of and benefits to be derived from living in Watchung. He also sounded a keynote looking to the future of the schools of the township.

After the business meeting refreshments were served, and a social hour was enjoyed by the members of the association.

During the social session, Mrs. George M. Sellick, of Jersey City, sang a soprano solo.

CONES CARRY CRAMPS

Therefore the Board of Health Will Not License Their Sale.

PTOMAINE POISON PREVENTED.

Action of Local Authorities Likely to Prove Beneficial—Street Vending of Ice Cream Stopped.

For selling ice cream cones form a wagon, James Costas, a Greek, of West Front street, was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon, in police court, this morning and received a suspended sentence.

The apprehension of Costas is the result of a crusade started by John O'Brien, the local health officer. From now on no licenses will be granted by the health department permitting the sale of ice cream in cones from wagons on the street.

Last Monday reports from several parts of the State were received here, telling of the ptomaine poisoning of women and children who had indulged in the luxury of a cooling cone.

But these accidents hav not influenced the action to be taken by th local Board of Health. It is a matter of pride with all the officials of the city that the health department has so far taken every precaution known toprevent the propogation of disease and the bringing of Costas to the court room this morning was intended as a preventive measure respecting the sale of ice cream on the streets.

Residents of the city can materially aid the health department by refusing to buy the stuff. It is impossible for any public vendor of the succulent cones to provide a fly-proof vehicle on the streets. It does not matter how many protective screens are thrown over and around one of the perambulating ice cream parlors, the ubiquitous fly is always on the job.

It is no exaggeration to say that ninety per cent. of all the ills of summer are due to the infection carried by the house fly and it behooves those who love their children to see that they do not patronize a street vendor of cones.

Anyway, the Board of Health will not issue any licenses for the sale of the cones in the streets of Plainfield and it appears to be a fact that the local board is the first to take such action in the State.

NEW TRUST CO. HAS ONE YEAR TO BEGIN BUSINESS.

The conversion of the Borough National Bank of North Plainfield into a trust company to be located in this city as authorized by State Banking and Insurance Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis, makes the eighty-third financial institution of this character to be chartered by the State of New Jersey. The backers of the new institution, which is to be known as the State Trust Company of Plainfield, will have one year within which to take advantage of the approval given by Commissioner Lewis, but the latter is advised that the promoters will at once proceed to dissolve the Borough National Bank which they now own, as told in this paper, and reorganize with increased capital and assets as a trust company.

Commissioner Lewis said yesterday that his agents had made a thorough investigation into the affairs of the Borough National Bank and found them in such condition as to warrant the charter which he has granted. As told in this paper exclusively the new trust company will begin business with a capital of $100,000, while the Borough National Bank had only $50,000 capital.

Mission Workers at Dunellen.

The Plainfield Rescue Mission will have charge of the prayer-meeting at the Dunellen Methodist church, tonight. Superintendent John Le Matty will conduct the service, assisted by the converts and other workers. There will be special music, including solos and trios. All interested are invited.

THEY LIKE PLAYGROUNDS

Nearly Eleven Hundred Children Enjoy Privileges During First Week.

REPORTS OF SUPERVISORS.

Average Daily Attendance 216 With Absolute Absence of Roughness—Drinking Fountains Installed.

A total attendance of 1,079 children for the first week, or an average attendance of 216 children each day, were the figures, which were submitted by playground supervisors, the Misses Moe and Childs, in their support of the opening week to the playground commission at a meeting of the body held in the Mayor's office yesterday afternoon. No accidents were reported, neither was there a case calling for discipline. These results bespeak highly efficient supervision and were in every way satisfactory to the commission.

The playgrounds were opened last Tuesday and from the very start were a tremendous success. The first day's attendance was highly satisfactory to the supervisors, but as the week progressed the number present increased. Miss Harriett Moe was placed in charge of the Bryant school grounds while the Franklin yard was under the supervision of Miss Mary Childs. These two put forward their best efforts to amuse the children and to organize a spirit of comradeship. So successful have been their efforts, that the number of children present daily grew larger. Yesterday's report was the first they have submitted, and it was highly gratifying to the members of the commission.

Since the opening, slight improvements, have been made at both grounds. At the Bryant school yard, a large canvas shelter is being erected; here also the children's slide has been covered by a shelter, so that the children are well protected from the sun's rays. Out-door drinking fountains have been installed at both places, and in every way, the grounds are now suitable places in which the city's children may secure relief from the heat.

CHARITY ORANIZATION SOCIETY HANDLED MANY CASES IN JUNE.

Those in charge of the work of the Charity Organization Society appreciate the prompt response to the request for an electric fan, which was made through The Daily Press, and it has been doing good work. The month of June was a particularly heavy one for the society. The total number of cases in charge was 133, with 63 calls by applicants and 127 calls by consultatives. The agents Miss Margaret C. Holly and Miss Mabelle C. Phillips made 337 visits.

Through the society seven persons were admitted to institutions, seven were referred to the clinic at the hospital, nine cases were investigated for the hospital, nineteen cases of tuberculosis were reported, four children were placed in homes and four cases were brought before the city court.

Regular stock Chalmers (stripped) that made Johnston's Drive Hill Climb in 1 m. 22 2-5 secs.

There has been considerable discussion as to whether or not the Chalmers car entered by Thompson Automobile Co., which made such a wonderful showing was a regular stock or a special built car. When interviewed today Mr. Thompson said positively that the car they entered was a regular 2-year-old 1909 model just the same as you would buy for $2,750. The only difference being that it was stripped.

In the piston displacement races, this car burst a front tire on the first turn, making nearly the entire run on a flat tire, yet it beat the time made by all the other cars except the 200 H. P. Fiat driven by De Palma.

AUTO SIRENS TOO NOISY

Move by Police Board to Eliminate a Screaming Nuisance.

HEALTH BOARD TO CO-OPERATE

Garbage Handlers Must Also Be Careful—Steps to Insure Peace Quiet and Health Taken.

At a meeting of the Police Board of the Common Council held last night it was decided that the noise producing sirens and horns of automobiles are a menace to the health of the community and in order to protect the people from the nuisance steps are to be taken immediately to stop it.

Patrolmen from police headquarters have been instructed to caution automobile drivers of the attitude of the committee and the police, and, if after a warning is ignored they are to arrest the offenders and a suitable penalty will be imposed. Sirens alone are not the causes of all the complaints which have come to the ears of Mayor Fisk. It is notorious that mufflers have been left uncovered apparently without thought of their noise and these, too, are included in the general crusade against noise producers.

The specific charge to be brought against violators of the quiet of the city is in section 2 of the ordinance which relates to the "peace and good morals of the city." Co-operation will be had with the Board of Health, which has also begun a fight against certain other violations of ordinances.

Something which handlers of garbage will have to think of while engaged in their regular occupation will be to remember that garbage and ashes must not be mixed. An active campaign has been begun against this class of offenders and in future they will be haled to court and fined. According to John O'Brien, the local health officer, people have been throwing fly-attracting garbage in with their ashes in barrels and other receptacles. As the flies are spreaders of disease and in order to control as much as possible the propagation of disease germs and prevent it the citizens of the city are asked to see to it that their employees do not violate the ordinance which makes the offense a misdemeanor.

REGULATION CONCERNS ALL REGISTERED LETTERS

A general order issued yesterday by Postmaster General Hitchcock and received today by Postmaster Elias H. Bird, this morning, makes it imperative in the future for anyone sending a registered letter and wishing a return receipt for the same to write on the envelope these words "Return Receipt Required."

Postmaster Bird desires that everybody who sends registered letters through the local postoffice should pay strict attention to this order of the Washington authorities. The clerk receiving registered mail in the Plainfield postoffice will not be required to see that a return receipt card is sent with the letter unless the special request is written on the envelope.

CRUELTY CHARGE PROVED; NO PENALTY INFLICTED

The case against John Kitchen, pound keeper and dog catcher in which Judge William N. Runyon, deferred decision until this morning, resulted in a technical conviction of Kitchen, but no penalty was imposed.

In the city court this morning after Judge Runyon rendered his decision in the Kitchen case a general discussion took place in regard to the humane killing of the animals sentenced to death. Mr. Rushmore, who has volunteered to provide a "producer's gas" tank for the purpose, explained its working and it seemed to be the opinion that this method will effectually prevent cruelty in the destruction of animals which have no excuse for existence.

The matter of caring for the dogs which are caught by Kitchen is solved by the proposition made by Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, the special agent of the S. P. C. A. Mrs. Van Hoesen has declared her willingness to take the animals off Kitchen's hands and after they have been duly executed by gas at the Rushmore tank the Glaser Co. to remove and bury the carcasses.

There was no opposition to the method proposed and Mrs. Van Hoesen will apply to Mayor Fisk for a letter of instruction to the poundkeeper so that the animals may be turned over to her without question as to their disposition.

'MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING' ON RICHMOND STREET

A fire which did not necessitate the calling out of the department occurred on Sunday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock, at 302 Richmond street in which F. Saverio Travigno was the principal loser. Some one above the apartments occupied by Mr. Trivigno, threw or dropped a cigar butt or a lighted match upon the newly painted awning in which Mr. Travigno takes a great deal of pride.

Friends were visiting the barber at the time and he did not notice the little curls of smoke which ascended from time to time, becoming more pungent every moment, but somebody cried "fire" and in a moment the whole population was out in the street besides the denizens of the surrounding tenements.

"Pull de vire!" shouted one; "Don't do it," screamed another, but what was the use of calling out the fire department? Tony Machaline and his girl, Maria, knew just what to do.

Maria whispered to Tony, that some "black hand" man had attempted to wreck the home of the most popular barber on Richmond street, and she, for one, did not propose to stand by and see the whole block consumed without raising her hand in its defense.

The argument went along for a few moments, but in the meantime the brand new awning and paint were being consumed by the flames. "Tony," yelled aMria, "hurry up and get the water wagon, it's just coming down the street."

Tony likes Maria and, as a matter of fact, he thinks a whole lot of her and perhaps, some day, he will put the question to her which will settle forever the question which will either make him the happiest or most miserable of men.

The fire did $10 damage.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Herring, of The Bristol, will go to Lebanon, Hunterdon county, the last of the week, for a short sojourn, after which they will spend some time at Ocean Grove.

SEARCHING FOR W. T. DAY

Missing Station Agent's Clothes Found at Coney Island Bath House.

BELIEVE HE'S NO SUICIDE.

An Uncle, Who Received Letter from Absent Man Thinks Latter is Trying to Scare His Wife.

Wilson T. Day, the former ticket agent at Oak Tree and Potter's Crossing on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, who disappeared from his home Monday morning, as told exclusively in the Daily Press, is still missing. A man answering to his description went to Balmer's bathing pavilion, West Fifth street, Coney Island, Monday afternoon.

Day has not been seen since and his apparel, having cards in a pocket bearing the name of "Wilson T Day," was taken to the Coney Island station. Shortly after 8 o'clock last night, Robert W. Day, an uncle of the missing man, went to the Coney Island station and reported that he had received a letter from his nephew, saying that he intended to kill himself. The letter was postmarked Monday July 11, 5 p. m. The uncle said he believed that his nephew was simply trying to scare his wife.

The letter received by the uncle was similar to the one sent to Mrs. Day. In that letter he said that his body would be found at Coney Island as he intended to drown himself.

The railroad officials have received no further information regarding Day, and the efforts to find the missing man are being made by his relatives and friends. Day left home to visit a dentist, his wife believing that he would return within a short time. No trace of the man can be found in this vicinity. The police think it is incredible that Day would be going about without any clothes, but if he has not made away with himself, they are at a loss to understand what has become of the man.

Day and his wife had rooms over the station at Oak Tree and neighbors say that the pair lived happily together and so far as they know there is no apparent reason why he should have disappeared from home. He would divide his time between Oak Tree and Potter's Crossing, having charge of both stations, and in this way he made a substantial living. The police of the State as well as New York have been asked to keep a lookout for Day.

WATCHUNG AVE. EXTENSION A BIG IMPROVEMENT

The extension of Watchung avenue, in the borough, from Codington avenue to Johnstonn's Drive, has been completed and all that remains to be done to finish the contract is the macadamizing of that thoroughfare. This improvement is considered one of the best made in this section in many years. There is now a movement on foot to extend this road across the Drive and David Stead's farm, which would make a most desirable connection with one of the main roads in the township, and a short cut to some of the towns over the mountains.

According to the present arrangement one can drive through Watchung avenue over Johnston's Drive to Somerset street, a main thoroughfare. It serves as a connecting link between Union, Somerset and Morris counties. As practically all of this improvement is in the borough, that municipality is bearing all of the expense. The road was extended chiefly upon the request of residents of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Association, although residents of the borough favored the improvement, as it affords an outlet without going a roundabout way to Somerset street, the only main thoroughfare across the mountains.

Reduced Bail to $1,500.

William G. De Meza, as counsel for William Jackson, colored, of this city, charged with an atrocious assault on former Patrolman Anderson, appeared before Judge Atwater in the Union County Court, this morning, on the application of a rule to show cause why the $3,000 bail fixed for his client should not be reduced. Judge Atwater said that he thought the bail was excessive after the argument by counsel, and reduced it to $1,500.

MOUNTAIN CAMP OPENED

Informal Reception to Visitors Arranged by King's Daughters.

SEVERAL IMPROVEMENTS MADE.

Change of Buildings Gives Better View—New Porch for Outdoor Sleeping—Screens Needed.

Under bright skies and among two hundred visitors, young and old, the Baby Camp on the mountain, conducted by the circles of the King's Daughters, was formally opened yesterday afternoon. There were no special ceremonies attending the event, but what the children did to the ice cream furnished by the Cup Bearers' Circle, under whose auspices the camp was opened, astonished even the old timers. Thirty-four children, including nine babies, represent the first instalment to be cared for.

Many changes for the better have been made in the buildings of the camp including a porch facing the roadway. The kitchen has been separated from the main building and stands alone on the north side. Here ten loaves of bread are baked every day, but this quantity is insufficient for the mouths to be fed and three large loaves are bought from the baker. It requires ten quarts of milk to supply the daily needs of the children.

Some of the babies and their mothers appeared yesterday to be sadly in need of the recreation afforded by the camp life. There are both white and colored babies there, but, as each has a soul, there is no prejudice shown. One of the youngest of the flock seen yesterday was in a precarious condition, but after a day or two it is believed the child will be on the road to a safe recovery.

All the Circles of the King's Daughters were represented yesterday and the visitors included many who are not members of the Circles. Nearly every church in the city sent a contingent and words of commendation were heard on all sides. The work is a noble one and worthy of support.

Mrs. Bird, the matron in charge, feels encouraged over the outlook for this season owing to the generous contributions being sent in, but more money will be needed as the work goes on. The various circles will take turns in entertaining the children on Saturday afternoons and the religious services will be held each Sunday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Special programs of music will be features of the Sunday afternoon services, and visitors will be cordially welcomed.

One thing that would add greatly to the comfort of the babies would be a screen to cover the entire front porch of the main building. If this porch could be enclosed with wire netting the babies could sleep out in the air comfortably. Just now mosquitoes are in the majority.

THIEVES AT OTTO KAHN'S.

Caretaker Fights them in Carriage House While Family is Away.

Thieves entered the carriage house at Cedar Court, Otto H. Kahn's country home near Morristown just after midnight yesterday morning and had several sets of harness packed up ready to take away when they were driven off by the care taker, John Tuer.

Armed with a club, he came upon a man tying up a bundle of harness and he whacked him over the head. The thief went down shouting, "Shoot him!" Tuer looked behind him and saw another one at a window. He rushed over there and swung his club, when this man slashed him on the hand with a knife. The two men dashed away then and were soon lost in the shrubbery.

Mr. and Mrs. Kahn and family are at Bar Harbor for the summer.

ENDORSE JUDGE RUNYON

Plainfielder's Candidacy Given O.K. by Elizabeth's Downtown G.O.P. Club.

SOME PROMINENT SPEAKERS.

Arrangements Made for Big Meeting to be Addressed by Runyon—A Dollar Dinner Planned.

Enthusiastic endorsement was given the candidacy of Judge William N Runyon, of this city, for the Republican congressional nomination in the Fifth district by the Downtown Republican club, the most influential party organization in Elizabeth, last night. Ringing speeches eulogizing the popular Plainfielder were made by prominent Elizabethans and the pledge was given that the members would bend every energy to give him a rousing majority at the party primaries at the county seat.

Among the speakers were President William Woodruff, of the Twelfth Ward Republican Club, Mr. Fowler's district; President Jas. MacMasters, of the Union County League of Republican Clubs; President J. Vaneriski, of the Elizabeth Hungarian Republican Club, and others.

Arrangements were made to hold a big meeting of the club early in August and an invitation has been extended to Judge Runyon to address the members on that occasion. A committee was also appointed to act in co-operation with a similar committee representing the Union County Republican Committe for a dollar dinner to be held at Elizabeth early in September. At that feast, New Jersey's most prominent Republican leaders will be the speakers. John Stamler declined a re-election as president. Charles Wagner, a lawyer, was chosen in his place.

The Rahway Republican Club has also endorsed Judge Runyon's candidacy.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Plainfield Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow;

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all.

Plainfield people endorse our claim.

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Though I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills in the past few years, I value them as highly as ever. My kidneys were weak for years and I suffered severely from backache. I was unable to sleep well and when I arose in the morning my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Every cold I caught settled in my kidneys and aggravated my suffering. I doctored but the medicines I used did me no good. At length I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began taking them. They went directly to the seat of my trouble, disposing of the pains and making me feel like a different person."

Our July Clearance Sale Is Rich in Money Savings

Every day witnesses unusual value-giving. We are eager to clear the decks and willingly cut prices down to lowest point. Buying is brisk, big and enthusiastic—because there exists no equal opportunity of obtaining desired merchandise at such small cost.

A big manufacturer of muslin underwear in need of orders to keep his factory going during the dull period called on our syndicate of buyers in New York with a proposition that he would make up any garments at actual cost of manufacture to keep his work force together. These are well made undermuslins clean and fresh, cut full in every way. The lowered prices does not affect the quality.

BAMBERGER'S

THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE

MARKET, HALSEY & BANK STS.

The Meaning of a Bargain.

BARGAIN—a gainful or satisfactory transaction—WEBSTER. Lucid enough, isn't it?

"Bargain" is probably the most hackneyed word of the English language and the one OFTENEST MISAPPLIED.

We read of "bargains" in this; "bargains" in that and "bargains" in the other thing.

Do the majority of these so-called bargains bear investigation and do they all measure up to the above definition? Are all the bargains that you have encountered "GAINFUL AND SATISFACTORY?"

Shades of Noah Webster! If the wise old lexicographer knew how grossly this word was being misused, HE'D COME TO LIFE AGAIN AND PROTEST.

Bargain, the idea! Why, half the stores don't know the meaning of the word.

At this store, in order to be called a bargain, a thing HAS TO BE A BARGAIN. We never lure you with promises which we cannot fulfill, and we never "blow our horn" unless we have SOMETHING TO "BLOW" ABOUT. No matter how small an item may be in OUR store news, if we call it a BARGAIN, you may depend upon it absolutely.

Get Sunday's "Between Ourselves" and see what we say about WILL-O-THE-WISP advertising.

GOLF.

At a meting held at the Astor House, New York, Monday, the Eastern Professional Golfers' Association voted to conduct its annual championship tournament on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 26 and 27, over the Salisbury links, at Garden City. More than passing interest will be attached to the coming meeting, for the reason that conditions have been changed so as to combine medal and match play.

Contestants will qualify in an eighteen-hole stroke round and then fight it out in flights of eights according to the merit of their scores. There will be three eights. Only on rare occasions have professionals been pitted against each other at hole play and the innovation is bound to prove popular. It was voted to charge an entrance fee of $5, as there is some uncertainty as to the exact amount of money likely to be raised.

A year ago the Eastern championship was held at Searsdale, and Alec Smith, present national and metropolitan open title holder, won. The usual medal play conditions then prevailed. Smith is not in sympathy with the match play idea, however, so there is some uncertainty as to his competing in the coming affair.

Three new members were elected at Monday's meeting. They were F. H. Belwood, of Garden City; Dan Mackie, of Dunwoodie, and James Thomson, of the Philadelphia Country Club.

Plainfield, N. J., July 13, 1910.

AN IDEAL CANDIDATE.

On all sides, the candidacy of Judge William N. Runyon for the Republican congressional nomination has met with a hearty reception in his home city. So far as Plainfield is concerned, and this is a stronghold of independence in party politics, his announcement has practically united the Republicans for when it comes to him there are no party divisions.

Judge Runyon's career among us has shown that he is worthy of the confidence that his fellow citizens repose in him. It was not surprising therefore that men of all shades of political ideas and in all walks in life should have persuaded him to enter the contest for such an honorable position in the Government. And it was but the exercise of common sense and political sagacity on the part of the regular organization to give him its endorsement when the popular judge had consented to run. Certainly it would have meant suicide for the regular forces to have opposed him.

It cannot be denied that the local candidate is by all odds the most popular man in the city. His magnetic personality, his exceptional attainments, his sterling character and above all his untainted record in public and private life, makes him the strongest sort of a candidate, particularly in Union county, which holds the balance of power in this district. A better choice could not be found in the district. This paper predicts that the candidate will receive an overwhelming majority at the Republican primaries and a flattering majority at the general election.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

TRUSTEES QUESTION PRACTICAL JOKERS

Marshal Logan, of Scotch Plains, with the aid of County Detective Gallatian, succeeded in apprehending the young men of the village who are charged with defacing the fence about the Baptist church parsonage, several weeks ago, and they appeared before the trustees of the church, last night. The pastor, Rev. Franklin K. Mathews, was also present, as was Marshal Logan and Detective Gallatian.

The trustees have decided not to give out the name of the four young men for the present, wishing to spare their families the notoriety. The culprits were given the "third degree" and it worked so well that much information was gained concerning the pranks about the parsonage, as well as the Fourth of July escapade.

The officials of the church have not yet decided just what action will be taken against the young men, although it is assured that some form of punishment to fit the case will be meted out to the culprits who were responsible for so much damage to the church property. The examination last night was conducted behind closed doors.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Julius Nuccello, five years old, was struck by an automobile in Springwood avenue, Asbury Park, last night, and was cut about the head and face and internally injured.

Attracted to the front of a store at Broadway and Kaighn avenues, Camden, Monday, a bull broke loose from a herd and wrecked a heavy plate glass with its horns.

After grappling all night, William Houston and David Grapevine recovered the body of Eugene Briston, who was drowned while bathing in Union Lake, Sunday. Briston was a young glassblower and a well-known local athlete.

Pinned in the top of a tree by a ten-inch limb which he had sawed off, crushing his breast, Harry Carter, of Clayton, suffered untold agonies while men with ladders and ropes rescued him. His breast was badly crushed.

Elisha Gardner, historian and a resident of Pitman, has been unconsciously carrying a broken rib several days. One day last week he fell on a fence paling, but thought nothing of it at the time. A daily increasing pain caused him to call on a doctor yesterday, and he is now in splints.

GOVERNOR FORT RETURNS.

The State's Executive Expresses Himself as Highly Pleased at Jersey Troops' Showing.

After a hot, tedious ride of nine hours Co. K arrived at "Camp Instruction," Gettysburg, Pa., in excellent shape and lost no time in pitching tents. A breakfast was served on the train and upon arrival at camp hot coffee was served. Sunday's dinner comprised roast beef, potatoes, bread, butter and coffee; for supper, beef stew, bread, butter, stewed prunes, potatoes and coffee.

The menu Monday morning comprised Hamburger steak, potatoes, bread, butter and coffee, and for dinner there was served fried steak, bread, butter, potatoes, coffee, and for supper there was stew, rice pudding, bread, butter and coffee.

Sunday night a severe storm struck the camp about 7.45. It was accompanied by a heavy wind which blew down several tents and flooded the officers' quarters. The camp site of the Second Regiment is one of the best in the whole field. The officers' quarters are pitched in a woods which affords them a great deal of shade and that is greatly appreciated during the hot weather that is being experienced. Sergeant De Camp is always on the hunt for water, as he is so "dry." Privates Thompson and Cardner are burning up the roads on borrowed bicycles. "Chief Cook" Farrel and his assistant, are always on a still hunt, but not for chickens. Sergeant Hort is kept busy forming details for everything. Sergeant Manning says that he would rather be in old South Plainfield than Gettysburg. Wonder why?

The orders for July 12 were as follows:

Forenoon. Officers tactical ride and walk and study of exercise for afternoon under the direction of regimental commander. Afternoon. Squadron and battalion exercises in advance, rear and flank guards and patrols under direction of regimental commander. Artillery battalion exercises in rear guard. At close of exercises troops marched to camp under direction of non-commissioned officers; officers discuss exercises on the grounds.

Sergeants Phillips and Trenchand are among those who are greatly missed from camp. Sergeant Hort, in the darkness Monday night, tried to give Sergeant Major Bilyeu a drink from a sieve and couldn't understand why the latter made such a fuss.

The mess for Tuesday follows: Breakfast, steak, fried potatoes, bread, butter and coffee; dinner, baked beans, boiled potatoes, gelatin, bread, butter and coffee; supper, beef stew, boiled rice, bread, butter and coffee.

As Sam Rothberg is no longer a member of the company, Corporal Winter is taking his place, in sending postals. He buys stamps by the thousand. Yesterday, Captain Kitchell was officer of the day, Privates Clawson and Harrison were on guard.

Governor Fort this morning returned to Trenton from Gettysburg where yesterday he witnessed the maneuvers of the Second Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard under the direction of regular army officers. He expressed himself as highly pleased at the showing made by the New Jersey troops. "Our boys did finely," commented the Governor, "and the tactical work they were put through gave them a new and needful view of army life."

CARNIVAL TO OPEN.

Rahway, July 13.—A carnival will open tonight at New Brunswick and Hazlewood avenues, under the auspices of Lincoln Hook and Ladder Company No. 2, and will continue until July 20. The carnival will consist of twenty attractions, among which will be a voting contest for the most popular young woman in Rahway. The contestants are Miss Mabel Swearer, Miss Dolly Cornelius, Miss Flora Denbleyker, Miss Kittie Darrah, Miss Susie Bloomer.

The one receiving the greatest number of votes will receive a diamond ring, and will, with great ceremony, be crowned queen of the carnival with six attendants, Tuesday night, July 19.

Colonel Rheinhardsen Speaks.

Colonel Rheinhardsen, from the National headquarters of the Salvation Army was the speaker at the tent service last night. The colonel is at the head of the army's financial department in the United States, and is a very able and interesting talker. He dwelt, last night, mainly on general principles of present day Christianity. A large number was on hand to hear his address.

CLEVELAND TOWER PLANS ARE APPROVED

Plans for the Cleveland memorial tower to be built in connection with the new graduates' building at Princeton were approved yesterday at a meeting of the trustees of the Cleveland Monument Association, held in the director's room of the Prudential building, Newark. Preliminary work for constructing the monument will be commenced in the near future.

The tower, according to the design of the firm of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, of New York, will be of gothic type, 175 feet high and will be built on a high point, which is part of what is known as the "golf links." It will form a central point of the new group of graduate buildings. This position is considered particularly fitting for Mr. Cleveland was, up to the time of his death, chairman of the committee on the graduate buildings.

In the tower will be a memorial room filled with Mr. Cleveland's personal effects and interesting relics of his official career. The cost of the tower will be $100,000, of which $75,000 is already in sight. The plans for the structure were adopted on recommendation of the special committee, of which John F. Dryden is chairman.

It was voted at the meeting to increase the membership of the board of trustees from thirty-four, its present number, to fifty.

Those present at yesterday's meeting were: Former United States Senators John F. Dryden and James Smith, Jr., former Governor Franklin Murphy, John W. Griggs, of Paterson; Anthony R. Kuser, of Bernardsville; Richard V. Lindabury, Moses Taylor Pyne, of Princeton; Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morristown; Henry D. Winton, of Hackensack, and Dean Andrew J. West, of the graduates' school at Princeton.

REFUSAL OF FLAG ANGERS JR. O. U. A. M.

Hoboken, July 13.—Following a refusal of the Hoboken Board of Education to accept a flag for the new High School from Reliable Council No. 169, Jr. O. U. A. M., a letter received by the secretary of the board was read and it stated that Reliable Council was not at all pleased at the turn down it received.

The letter was hurriedly read by Secretary Kerr and filed away. The newspapermen present were not given a chance to see its contents. The letter stated that 400 members of the council were chagrined at the refusal of the board to accept their flag and declared that it was the Jr. O. U. A. M. that secured an increased appropriation for the board from the State. The letter concluded by asking the privilege of presenting a Bible to the school, inasmuch as the Board of Education had seen fit to accept a flag from an individual rather than from the Jr. O. U. A. M.

The offer of Reliable Council was refused by the board at a meeting held two weeks ago and the reason advanced was that the offer of a flag by M. H. Baumgarten, second vice-president of the Board of Trade, had been made previous to that of the Jr. O. U. A. M. After the reading of the letter from Reliable Council the matter was referred by President Daab to the committee on school government and when, after an executive session, the committee failed to report the matter was laid over until the next meeting.

MAY DESTROY TEXT BOOKS.

Trustees May Act on Health Board Suggestion.

Roselle Park, July 13.—The destruction of all the books used at the Lincoln School during the past year was the subject of serious and lengthy consideration by the Board of Education Monday evening. The matter was brought to the attention of the school commissioners by the Board of Health, which body in view of the epidemic of scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough which existed in the Aldene section for the past few months, recommended that all of the books be destroyed before the beginning of another school year in order to avoid all possibility of contagion.

President S. W. Kingsland and Clerk William Morris, of the Board of Health, appeared before the Board of Education in regard to the matter.

BADLY HURT BY TRAIN.

Elizabeth, July 13.—Struck by an Atlantic City express train on the Long Branch division of the Central Railroad near Bayway late yesterday, Charles Chester, supposed to live in Carteret, is in the General Hospital suffering from a fractured arm and several broken bones. It is feared by the hospital authorities that he will not recover.

Chester was returning from work when he was struck by the train before he noted its approach. He retained consciousness long enough to crawl to a ditch adjoining the railroad. He was discovered a short time after the accident.

FOWLER WITH ROOSEVELT

Fifth District Representative Lunches with 'T. R.' at Oyster Bay.

THE TWO MET YESTERDAY.

Judge Runyon's Opponent Refuses to Tell the Object of His Mission—May Get Ex-President's Endorsement.

Representative Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, the opponent of Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, for the Republican congressional nomination in the Fifth district, received the "glad hand" from former President Theodore Roosevelt, at the latter's editorial sanctum in "The Outlook" offices in Fifth avenue, New York, yesterday. The New Jersey Insurgent was one of many callers who had a chat with the Republican Insurgent chieftain, who holds daily heart-to-heart talks with those engaged in a warfare on the National administration.

What Mr. Fowler's mission was could not be learned by the New York reporters for the conference was behind closed doors. When Mr. Fowler departed he refused to tell what had taken place. It is supposed, however, that he told "T. R." of his campaign for both the Congressmanship and the United States Senatorship he is now waging. That he received some encouragement is believed by some owing to the fact that he was invited to take luncheon with Mr. Roosevelt at the latter's home in Oyster Bay, L. I., today. This engagement he kept.

When seen by an Elizabeth Journal reporter this morning, Mr. Fowler declined to make any statement as to what took place yesterday. Report has it that Mr. Roosevelt will send some powerful Insurgents into this district before the Republican primaries in an effort to prevent the regular Republican organization from winning the day with Judge Runyon, whom it supports. Should this transpire, it will present an interesting situation for the Federal administration forces may be heard from also in this section.

SAYS WIFE BIT HIM.

Prisoner Dwyer Explains Intense Pains in His Hand.

Elizabeth, July 13.—Unable longer to bear the pain caused by a deep and rapidly swelling wound on his left hand, William Dwyer, sent to the county jail a week ago by Judge Mahon for ninety days on a charge of attempting to rob a woman of her pocketbook in Elizabeth avenue, Monday was compelled to ask for surgical treatment.

Dwyer was released from jail but two weeks ago, after serving a six months' sentence, and he now claims that the wound on his hand was caused by his wife's teeth three days after his discharge from the institution. He says that she attacked him and sank her teeth into his hand.

Marshal Culver, of the borough police force, started on a ten days' vacation yesterday. He expects to spend a good part of the time at Atlantic City. During his absence, Special Marshal W. Kiernan, of Steiner place, will fill in on the force.

George Wilkinson, C. P. A., of this city, is at Toronto, Canada, attending the annual meeting of the Dominion Association of Chartered Accountants on Thursday and Friday. The convention will end on Saturday with an excursion to Niagara Falls by boat.

RECIPROCITY WITHDRAWN

New York Physicians Renig on Treaty Entered Into in 1907.

RELATIONS NOW BROKEN OFF.

Correspondence Between Representatives Shows Animus and an Apparent Discourtesy.

New Jersey doctors can no longer get the privilege of practicing medicine in New York by formal application, following the breaking of the arrangement that went into effect between the two States January 1, 1907, whereby doctors could offer their licenses in the other State and be permitted to practice. The Board of Regents of New York annulled the reciprocal relations on the ground that the New Jersey standard of qualifications for medical students was below that of New York. But New Jersey physicians object to this stand on the ground that the compact was made after long investigation of the medical statutes of both States, and that as no changes were made in New Jersey the action taken by officials in New York is unfair.

The New York Board of Regents held that the New Jersey authorities, working under an opinion of the attorney-general, lowered the standard of requirements as insisted upon by the regents of the Empire State and the latter thereupon refused to license New Jersey doctors, with the result that New Jersey in the futu e will not indorse licenses that are issued to medical men in New York.

Assistant Commissioner of Education Augustus S. Downing, of New York, said yesterday that it was not a question at any time of the New Jersey authorities refusing to indorse licenses granted in New York, but the regents had been compelled because of interpretation of the statutes to rescind the relations.

"The attorney-general of New Jersey," said Mr. Downing, "gave an opinion last fall that the medical statutes allowed the authorities to receive men who did not have the preliminary education required by the statutes of New York State. They require three years of high school work, and the fourth year work must be made up before the end of the second year of the medical course.

"But the decision of the New Jersey attorney-general was in effect that a man without a high school training might go to the medical school and there complete the high school work. If he had finished his medical course there was nothing for the authorities to do but to graduate him.

"Thus you will see the high standard insisted upon by the State of New York was lowered. Last winter the Legislature of New Jersey tried to pass a remedial act so that the statutes would conform to those of New York State. The bill did not get through, however, and there remained nothing for the regents to do except to discontinue indorsing the medical certificates held by New Jersey physicians."

Resenting the action of the regents of New York in annulling the reciprocal relations in medicinal affairs, the New Jersey State Board of Medical Examiners decided to refuse indorsement of the certificates of medical licenses issued in New York until such time as New York shall lift the ban.

New Jersey medical examiners, physicians and surgeons take exception to the declaration of the New York authorities that the medical statutes of this State have lowered the standard for applicants for medical license. They contend that ample care is still taken to protect the public from inefficient practitioners.

Dr. H. G. Norton, of Trenton, is secretary of the State Board of Medical Examiners, and he says this State was unfair in placing a ban on the certificates issued there. He has sent the following letter to Mr. Downing:

Trenton, July 12.—The following letter, which seems self-explanatory, has been directed to August S. Downing, first assistant commissioner of education at Albany, N. Y., by Dr. H. G. Norton, secretary of the Board of Medical Examiners of New Jersey:

Your communication of June 23, in reply to mine of 22 ult. in reference to the annulment of the reciprocal relations between the States of New Jersey and New York, has been duly considered.

In reply, I have been directed to advise you that this board feels that the Board of Regents of New York, in rescinding the reciprocity agreement between these States acted without sufficient consideration of the subject, or due regard for the interests of the medical profession.

This reciprocity agreement was reached after long and thorough investigation of the medical statutes of both States on October 25, 1906, and went into effect January 1, 1907. The medical statutes of New Jersey have not changed in any respect since that time; nor have the standards of the examinations been lowered. This agreement has worked satisfactorily in the past; is highly prized by the medical profession of both States and promotes the interests of the public and of the profession. This board, therefore, requests that the annulment be reconsidered and the reciprocity agreement be renewed.

Knowing that the medical societies of the State of New Jersey are opposed to indorsing the license of any State which refuse to indorse the license of New Jersey, the Board of Medical Examiners this day passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That on and after November 2, 1910, further indorsement of the certificates of medical license issued by the tSate of New York issued by the State of New York agreement of reciprocity between the States of New York and New Jersey is renewed in the interim.

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1908 by BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

A curse was mingled with Neil's breath as he forced his way through the bog. Twenty rods farther on they came to a slime covered bit of water on which was floating a dugout canoe. Immense relief replaced the anxiety in Nathaniel's face as he climbed into it. At that moment he was willing to fight a hundred men for Marion's sake, but snakes and bogs and bloodhounds were entirely outside his pale of argument and he exhibited no hesitation in betraying this fact to his companion. For a quarter of a mile Neil forced the dugout through water viscid with slime and rotted substance before the clearer channel of the creek was reached. As they progressed the stream constantly became deeper and more navigable until it finally began to show signs of a current and a little later, under the powerful impetus of Neil's paddle, the canoe shot from between the dense shores into the open lake. A mile away Nathaniel discerned the point of forest beyond which the Typhoon was hidden. He pointed out the location of the ship to his companion.

"You are sure there is a small boat waiting for you on the point?" asked Neil.

"Yes, since early morning."

Neil was absorbed in thought for some time as he drove the canoe through the tall rice grass that grew thick along the edge of the shore.

"How would it be if I landed you on the point and met you tonight at Obadiah's?" he asked suddenly. "It is probable that after we get Marion aboard your ship I will not return to the island again, and it is quite necessary that I run down the coast for a couple of miles—for—" He did not finish his reason, but added: "I can make the whole distance in this rice so there is no danger of being seen. Or you might lie off the point yonder and I would join you early this evening."

"That would be a better plan if we must separate," said Nathaniel, whose voice betrayed the reluctance with which he assented to the project. He had guessed shrewdly at Neil's motive. "Is it possible that we may have another young lady passenger?" he asked banteringly.

There was no answering humor to this in Neil's eyes.

"I wish we might!" he said quietly.

"We can!" exclaimed Nathaniel. "My ship—"

"It is impossible. I am speaking of Winnsome. Arbor Croche's house is in the heart of the town and guarded by dogs. I doubt if she would go, anyway. She has always been like a little sister to Marion and me and she has come to believe—something—as we do. I hate to leave her."

"Obadiah told me about her mother," ventured Nathaniel. "He said that some day Winnsome will be a queen."

"I knew her mother," replied Neil, as though he had not heard Nathaniel's last words. He looked frankly into the other's face. "I worshipped her!"

"Oh-h-h!"

"From a distance," he hastened. "She was as pure as Winnsome is now. Little Winn looks like her. Some day she will be as beautiful."

"She is beautiful now."

"But she is a mere child. Why, it seems only a year ago that I was toting her about on my shoulders! And—by George, that was a year before her mother died! She is sixteen now."

Nathaniel laughed softly.

"Tomorrow she will be making love, Neil, and before you know it she will be married and have a family of her own. I tell you she is a woman—and if you are not a fool you will take her away with Marion."

With a powerful stroke of his paddle Neil brought the canoe in to the shore.

"There!" he whispered. "You have only to cross this point to reach your boat." He stretched out his long arm and in the silence the two shook hands. "If you should happen to think of a way—that we might get Winnsome—" he added, coloring.

The sudden grip of his companion's fingers made him flinch.

"We must!" said Nathaniel.

He climbed ashore and watched Neil until he had disappeared in the wild rice. Then he turned into the woods. He looked at his watch and saw that it was only 2 o'clock. He was conscious of no fatigue; he was not conscious of hunger. To him the whole world had suddenly opened with glorious promise and in the still depths of the forest he felt like singing out his rejoicing. He had never stopped to ask himself what might be the end of this passion that had overwhelmed him; he lived only in the present, in the knowledge that Marion was not a wife, and that it was he whom fate had chosen for her deliverance. He reasoned nothing beyond the sweet eyes that had called upon him, that had burned their gratitude, their hope and their despair upon his soul; nothing beyond the thought that she would soon be free from the mysterious influence of the Mormon king and that for days and nights after that she would be on the same ship with him. He had emptied the pockets of the coat he had given Neil and now he brought forth the old letter which Obadiah had rescued from the sands. He read it over and over again as he sat for a few moments in the cool of the forest and there was no trouble in his face now. It was from a girl. He had known that girl, years ago, as Neil knew Winnsome; in years of wandering he had almost forgotten her—until this letter came. It had brought many memories back to him with shocking clearness. The old folk were still in the little home under the hill; they received his letters; they received the money he sent them each month—but they wanted him. The girl wrote with merciless candor. He had been away four years and it was time for him to return. She told him why. She wrote what they, in their loving fear of inflicting pain, would never have dared to say. At the end, in a postscript, she had asked for his congratulations on her approaching marriage.

To Nathaniel this letter had been a torment. He saw the truth as he had never seen it before—that his place was back there in Vermont, with his father and mother; and that there was something unpleasant in thinking of the girl as belonging to another. But now matters had changed. The letter was a hope and inspiration to him and he smoothed it out with tender care. What a refuge that little home among the Vermont hills would make for Marion! He trembled at the thought and his heart sang with the promise of it as he went his way again through the thick growth of the woods.

GOVERNOR TO OCCUPY "LITTLE WHITE HOUSE"

Today Governor Fort is sitting as the head of the Court of Pardons at Trenton. This winds up his business in the State House for the remainder of the summer, and he will not be in Trenton again until September. The first of next week he will go to the "Little White House by the Sea," as the Governor's house at the Sea Girt camp grounds is called, and from then until the end of hot weather he will direct the affairs of State from that point. Camp will open July 23 and continue this year only two weeks, as against five weeks in former years. The executive mansion at Sea Girt is a pleasant place during the summer and the Governor plans to continue to remain there with his family for sometime after the soldiers have gone away.

The biggest time at the encampment this year will be the day selected by the Governor for the entertainment of members of the Legislature, State and county officials and newspapers editors and correspondents. Heretofore it has been the custom for the Governor to act as host to legislators one day, to the State and county officials another day and to the newspapermen at still another time. Owing to the fact that the camp will continue only two weeks this year the law-makers, officials and newspapermen will be invited to be the guests of the Governor at one time. The date of the affair has not been definitely fixed, but it will probably be on the Tuesday or Thursday of the second week of the camp. More than 500 invitations to the reception will be issued this week, and the list of names to whom they will be sent will include a great array of political influences from every section of the State.

While the Governor is away from Trenton for the remainder of the summer the executive offices in the State House will be in charge of Charles A. Ransom, the executive clerk.

He became weak soon after boarding the train and died before medical attendance could be procured.

CENSUS WORK PLEASES

Director Durand Highly Satisfied with Regular Decennial Statistics.

OVER 70,000 ENUMERATORS.

The Census Bureau Expects Soon to Announce the Populations of the Various Cities of the Country.

An idea of the wide scope, as well as of the present status of the various statistical operations of the Census Bureau may be gained from a report which Census Director Durand, at Washington, has made to Secretary Nagel, of the Department of Commerce and Labor. This report covers the progress of the three great branches of the regular decennial census—population, agriculture and manufactures—and also the current annual investigations which the bureau conducts from year to year and certain special investigations in which it has recently been engaged, aside from the decennial census.

Concerning the population division the report states that the work of over 70,000 enumerators has been substantially completed. The schedules containing the population returns have been received from 38,000 districts, or more than half the total number. Some idea of the magnitude of the work of enumerators, which includes the agricultural census as well as the population, may be gained from the fact that between October 2, 1909, and May 28 last, 32,747,132 schedules, blanks, etc., were sent to supervisors and enumerators, contained in 145,743 packages.

When the population schedules are received they are subjected to a hand count for the purpose of determining the number of people on which the pay of the census enumerator is in most cases based. They are then subjected to examination with reference to their correctness, especially with respect to mother tongue and occupations. Next they go to the punching machines, where one card is punched for each person; these cards will later be tabulated by electric tabulating machines.

The first of the new style electric punching machines were received May 2; actual work with them on the returns of 1910 was begun on May 23, and about seventy-five of the machines are now in operation day and night. There are also about 140 of the old style plunger punching machines in use. At the present time about 125,000 cards are being punched daily, but it is expected to increase this number shortly to 900,000 cards, and to complete the punching for the entire population by about October 1.

The agricultural division anticipates the receipt of about 7,500,000 farm schedules, besides a large number of irrigation, plantation, florist and nursery schedules, as well as about 2,000,000 schedules covering live stock in cities and villages, not on farms. Fully one-third of the schedules of each kind have already been received and are in the hands of the clerks for examination and tabulation. The schedules are first classified according to the color of the farmer, the tenure and the size of the farm, and are then tabulated by means of various kinds of adding machines. About 200 adding machines will be used in this work.

The Agricultural Division also has charge of the annual statistics of cities. The returns for the fiscal year, 1908-9 have been tabulated and are about to go to the printer. Twenty men are in the field collecting similar statistics for the year 1909-10.

Relative to the Division of Manufactures, the report shows that about 1,200 special agents have been put in the field for the collection of statistics of manufactures, in addition to seventy-eight clerks detailed from the Washington office for the same work. The work of collecting these statistics in the District of Columbia and Delaware is entirely completed, in Maryland it is practically completed, and in other parts of the country it is about two-thirds completed. The preliminary report on manufactures for the District of Columbia has been given to the press.

The Division of Mines and Quarries, which is a branch of the Manufactures Division, has made substantially similar progress in the field canvass.

The Division of Vital Statistics, which collects annual statistics of birth and deaths, reports that the tabulation of the mortality statistics for 1909 is well under way and is expected to end by July 20. From January 1 to May 31 the reports of 160,280 deaths occurring during 1910 were received by this division. It is preparing to issue its first report on birth statistics, covering the year 1908, the tabulation for which is nearly completed.

The personnel and expense of the Census Bureau have naturally grown rapidly with the new work of the decennial census. The bureau had 761 clerks in the Washington office on December 1, 1909, and 1,908 clerks on June 1, 1910, the number increasing since then at the rate of about fifty per day.

The Disbursing Office paid out over $510,000 in May. The payment of enumerators' accounts began on May 12, and from 1,500 to 2,000 enumerators are being paid off daily, the payments on this account reaching nearly $100,000 per day at the present time.

The Census Bureau expects soon to begin giving out to the press and the public the population returns for the cities of the country. Announcements will be made from day to day, as rapidly as the totals are correctly ascertained, one announcement being made in the morning for the convenience of the evening newspapers, and another in the afternoon or evening for the morning newspaprs.

TWO NEARLY MEET DEATH.

Forced to Leap Overboard from Burning Launch.

Bayonne, July 13.—Fred J. Sauerman and a companion, both living in this city, had a narrow escape from death in an explosion on board the Viking on New York Bay last night. The launch became enveloped in flames. The men were driven to the stern. There the flames rapidly approached them.

The heat became so intense that they leaped overboard. They were rescued by passing yachtsmen. The Viking was badly damaged.

— Water Trough for Horses.

Elizabeth, July 13.—The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has opened two stations for the watering of horses, one at Westfield and Morris avenues and the other at Second and East Jersey streets. These stations are to be kept open during the entire summer.

FRIENDS' CONFERENCE AT OCEAN GROVE ENDS

Many of the local Friends have been in attendance at some of the sessions of the biennial conference of the Religious Society of Friends of the United States and Canada which opened at Ocean Grove, on July 7, and closed today. A cordial address of welcome to the Friends by Rev. A. E. Ballard, president of the Ocean Grove Association, with a response from the chairman, Dr. O. Edward Janney, of Baltimore, were followed by a liberal and comprehensive paper on "A Sense of the Larger Fellowship," by Dr. Jesse H. Holmes, professor of Biblical literature at Swarthmore College.

Some of the other topics considered were "Religious Education of Boys and Young Men," by President Isaac Sharpless, of Haverford College; "The Society of Friends and the Present Trend of Religious Thought," by Henry Wilbur, of Philadelphia; "The Upbuilding of a Religious Society," by Dr. O. Edward Janney; "Conditions that Make for War," by Edward Clarkson Wilson, and "Friends and Political Life," by A. Mitchell Palmer, congressman from Stroudsburg, Pa.

There was a large congregation at both the Sunday morning and evening meetings, there being an estimated attendance of nearly 6,000 people in the morning and nearly 4,000 in th evening. There were many sermons from Friends and Dr. Ballard said, "I am at home with you in your religious expressions. In the essentials we are together. In the consciousness of God we are united."

Society Issues Cook Book.

Roselle, July 13.—The Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian church will soon issue a cook book, which is now in the hands of the printer. It will probably be ready for distribution in a few weeks. Nearly 100 tried recipes, contributed by the wome nof the church, comprise the book and few of the recipes are duplicated.

Judge Isaac P. Runyon and his family left this morning for Asbury Park, where they will spend the next week.

LIGHTNING THREATENS "K"

Officers' Quarters at Gettysburg Escape by Miracle.

TACTICAL RIDE AND WALK.

Second New Jersey Has Accomplished in 24 Hours What Other Regiments Could Not Do in Entire Week.

Another severe thunder storm visited "Camp of Instruction," at Gettysburg, Pa., Tuesday morning, and the boys of Co. K had a lievly time of it. Lightning struck a large tree near the officers' quarters, doing considerable damage and a newspaper correspondent, named Riley, of the Newark News, was stunned and fell from his horse. The quarters were flooded with water for a time.

The details for yesterday were as follows: Police, Corporal Winter, in charge; Privates Otto aHnsen, Gunner Hansen, Thompson, W. Winter, Clawson and Anderson; guard, Sergeant Manning and Private Hort; regimental quartermaster detail, Private Sharp; kitchen, Privates Schwomdinger and Brooks. Sergeant Littell is detailed as instructor of the guard for the remainder of the week.

Tuesday night Captain John Handlet, chaplain, who has made a thorough study of the battle of Gettysburg, and who has frequently visited the battlefield, delivered an address in front of regimental headquarters, on the battle of Gettysburg. Officers were permitted to leave camp to visit the battlefield immediately after thir return from the tactical ride and walk yesterday, and at the same time all enlisted men of the regiment, not on guard or assigned to other duty, were, with the permission of their company commanders permitted to visit the field immediately after the drill, which was concluded at 2.45, returning in time for mess which was served at 7.30 o'clock.

Assistant Cook Whitford has been buying all the souvenirs in camp, which he will distribute among his friends upon his return. He always was known as a philanthropist.

Private "Sam" Beetham has discovered many relatives in this section and he devotes all his spare time visit'ng them.

Private "Bill" Hartpence has been dubbed the "boss tent raiser," in camp, and there is some talk of his going with the regular army.

Private Brooks makes so much noise snoring that his tent-mates cannot sleep.

The mess for yesterday follows: Breakfast, hash, bread, butter, coffee; dinner, fried steak, bread, butter, potatoes, Jello and coffee; supper, scrambled eggs, rice pudding, bread, butter, coffee.

The Second Regiment is upholding its reputation nicely. The chief medical officer of the camp said yesterday: "The Second New Jersey has accomplished more in twenty-four hours than the two preceding regiments did in their entire tour of the duty."

Ebel Hearing, Monday.

The hearing of Carl Ebel, of Grove street, arrested on complaint of Alonzo Terry for disorderly conduct, July 4th, will be held Monday morning in the borough police headquarters. Ebel and Terry had a war of words because of Ebel's shoot'ng off of some fireworks on the morning of July 4th, and as a result Terry had Ebel arrested. Coddington and Swackhamer are counsel for Ebel, while William G. De Meza represents Terry.

A Gift to Trinity Reformed Church.

A friend of Trinity Reformed church, whose name cannot be ascertained because of modesty, has presented the church with a hundred new hymn books for use in the lecture room where the prayer metings of the congregation are held. The gift is appreciated. The books are of the series of "Church Hymns and Gospel Songs," as compiled by Ira D. Sankey, James McGranahan and Geo. C. Stebbins.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Leave Tomorrow.

The twelve boys, members of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A., who leave here tomorrow morning at 6.27 for the association's camp, Waywayaden, in Sussex county, have been busily engaged in packing their effects today, and in making final preparations for their trip. The boys will be under the direction of G. L. Listman and will reach the camp in time for lunch.

Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue, are planning to spend their vacation at Tolland, Mass.

FOWLER NOT ENDORSED

Progressives to Keep Hands Off in the Congressional Primary Battle.

J. H. CRANE FOR JUDGESHIP.

Re-affirm Their Allegiance to William P. Martin for Gubernatorial Nomination—Conference Last Night.

That the "progressives" will not endorse either Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, nor Charles Newell Fowler, of Elizabeth, for the Republican primary nomination for representative from the Fifth district, was practically decided by the New Idea wing of the party here at a conference last night. Many of the progressives" are heartily in favor of Mr. Runyon and it was decided, in effect, not to take any action regarding the congressional fight.

Former Assemblyman William P. Martin, of Essex county, and George L. Record, of Jersey City, were present, and assurances are given the former that the "progressives" are enthusiastic over his candidacy for the Gubernatorial nomination. They endorsed him for that nomination several weeks ago.

From what can be learned the concensus of opinion among the "progressive's" appears to be for J. Henry Crane, for the city judgeship nomination. Judge Runyon's term expires th's fall and he will not be a candidate for renomination. It is reported that the "regulars" will favor either Francis J. Blatz or Harry C. Runyon, but this cannot be stated positively.

Arrangements have been made by the "progressives" to hold a meeting next week at which plans will be made for the campaign both as concerns the local and county tickets.

The terms of Ralph I. Tolles, first ward; Frank L. Holt, second ward; Duncan W. Taylor, third ward, and Frank W. Randolph, fourth ward, expire this year and their successors in the Common Council will be chosen at the September primaries. All except Mr. Randolph are candidates for renomination. If Mr. Tolles is a candidate for the mayoralty, legally he cannot be a candidate for Common Council. Mr. Randolph, it is known, has stated that he will not take a renomination.

NO WATER THREATENED THE BAPTIST EXCURSIONISTS.

Disproving the generally accepted theory that it always rains when the Baptists go on an excursion, ideal weather prevailed today for the members of the First and Temple Baptist churches to Asbury Park. It required twelve coaches to carry the excursionists and all left Plainfield about 8.30 happy with every prospect for a fine day at the shore. There were no "left-overs," and when Conductor Wm. Brightman called "all-aboard," everyone was comfortably seated and anxious for a safe and quick trip.

John G. McLaughlin is chairman of the general committee, and he was assisted by James E. Church, Harold Serell, L. W. Randolph, U. B. Crane and Frank Stewart. The excursionists will leave the shore tonight at 7.20 and are due to arrive home about 9 o'clock.

FIRST DEATH IN FAMILY FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS.

The funeral services of Mrs. Cramer, aged 82 years, mother of Mrs. Joseph A. Haynes, of the borough, were held yesterday at her home in Annandale, and were largely attended. The death of Mrs. Cramer marked the first one in that family in sixty-one years about the length of her married life. She and Mr. Cramer had lived in the house in which she died about sixty years. She was well known here, where she was accustomed to visit at times. Mrs. Cramer was born on July 4, and her relatives and friends were glad that she was able to celebrate her birthday the fourth of this month.

May Have Had Rabies.

Doorman Thomas O'Gorman shot a supposedly mad dog in the store of Samuel Levine, on Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon at 3:30. It was reported that the dog had bitten several other canines before being cornered under the counter at Levine's. One shot did the trick.

Division Commander Here.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, met last night and enjoyed a visit from the division commander from Weehawken. There was a good attendance of members, including several veterans, who made short remarks of encouragement to the sons.

HEALTH CRUSADE IS ON

Exposure of Food to the Dust and Flies Must Stop Now.

BAKERS MUST BE CAREFUL.

Active Work by Local Officials Will Prevent Destruction by Disease.

The crusade inaugurated by Health Officer John O'Brien to prevent the introduction into the homes of residents of this city of food unfit for the table is being prosecuted with special vigor today and it is quite likely that violators of certain laws of the State will have to face charges tomorrow morning.

Complaints from various sources have reached the office of the Board of Health regarding the exposure of meats, vegetables and fruits on the streets of the city. In many instances the complaints allege, the stuff which they are expected to purchase and eat has been displayed on the stands in front of the places of business without any covering or protection from dust and flies.

One woman this morning attempted to buy some berries at a fruit store, but after seeing the swarm of flies which fled at her approach, she left the place with disgust written on every feature of her face. "Is there not some law which will prevent such things?" she asked.

It would benefit the whole trade if common care were taken in the exhibits which some of the smaller dealers make of their goods especially on streets where traffic is great. This is not the first case in which complaint has been made during the past week and Mr. O'Brien has announced his intention of enforcing the pure food laws to their limit.

Several cases of mixture of ashes and garbage have been brought to light today and the offenders will have to submit to the penalty which may be imposed. There is no desire on the part of the Board of Health to impose any hardship upon local fruit and vegetable dealers but it will be made plain that unwarranted exposure of foodstuffs will be prosecuted.

Some of the bakers will be visited for exposing their products for sale after having been driven about the city for hours, and in fact the whole force of the health department will be utilized in seeing to it that the provisions of the pure food law are complied with in Plainfield.

CHAS. EMMONS ABSENT SINCE FOURTH OF JULY.

It developed yesterday that Charles Emmons, a mason of 18 Steiner place, has been missing from his home since July 4 and has neither been seen nor heard of by his friends since then. No reason for his disappearance has been assigned by his friends.

Mr. Emmons is a man of about forty years. He is married and has two children. From all accounts his domestic life had been happy. He was formerly employed by Joseph Brant, a mason.

The borough police have not as yet been notified. Chief Marshall Weiss when asked about the case yesterday declared that he had heard nothing of it, either officially or informally.

BABY CAMP PORCH WILL BE ENCLOSED IN SCREENS.

As a result of the article published yesterday in the Daily Press some kind friends of the baby camp on the monutain conducted by the King's Daughters have signified their willingness to provide the screens for the new porch now being built.

Mrs. Frank W. Jones, president of the King's Daughters notified this paper this morning that the suggestion had met with immediate response. The porch will be about fifty feet long and to entirely screen it will cost in the neighborhood of $50. The donors' names are withheld by request.

Nightingale Property Sold.

Mrs. Charles Nightingale's residential property at 40 Sandford avenue, which is now occupied by T. B. Koons, was sold yesterday at sheriff's sale to establish the title. William A. Coddington purchased the property for $6,250, exclusive of taxes, interest, etc., amounting to about $250 additional.

David Angerbauer of East Third street, is enjoying with his family, the ocean breezes at Asbury Park. The family went with the excursion of the First Baptist church this morning.

MURDERER MAY BE HERE

Three Crimes Following Discovery of Trovate's Body on Sunday.

STEPHEN MILLER A VICTIM.

Mrs. Stillwell Also Helps the Supposed Assassin by Contributing $2.33—Hunt Being Made.

It is firmly believed that the murderer of Joseph Trovate, the Italian, who was found murdered beside a tree on the banks of the Raritan River on Sunday, is hiding in the Watchung hills. The holdup of Miss Martha Smock near Scotch Plains on Tuesday afternoon and the threatened killing of Mrs. Thomas Stillwell and Stephen Miller, of the same place, last night, leads the authorities to believe that all three crimes were committed by the same individual.

Mrs. Stillwell was held up at the point of a revolver within a few hundred yards of her home and compelled to hand over her pocketbook containing $2.33. Mr. Miller was awakened from sleep near midnight by the pressure of cold steel against his forehead. Beside the bed stood an undersized, thick set man who demanded that Mr. Miller tell the hiding place of his little store of cash. Too frightened to yell or resist Mr. Miller told the intruder where to find the twenty-four dollars which represented his savings for months. Securing the booty the robber made his exit through the front window and disappeared in the darkness.

Mrs. Stillman declares that while approaching her home and when only three hundred feet from it she was suddenly confronted by a short, dark man who held a revolver pointed at her breast. She unhesitatingly handel over her pocketbook and the man made off through the woods.

From the descriptions obtained of the man the police are inclined to think that he is the same one in all three cases and a sharp search is being made throughout the entire neighborhood.

Mrs. Stillwell said afterwards that the man was an Italian and spoke good English and that he said he wanted money to "go home" as his enemies were after him.

The mare is described as having one white forefoot, and the runabout to which she was attached an ordinary black vehicle of the type usually found in the country districts.

TWO PROMINENT CANDIDATES FOR CITY JUDGE.

Francis J. Blatz is being urged by many "organization" leaders for the Republican primary nomination for the city judgship and they predict that he will get the plum. The candidate was born in this city thirty-five years ago and has always lived either in the city or the borough. He attended the Plainfield public schools and later was graduated from the North Plainfield High School. He studied law with former Judge John Ulrich and John H. Van Winkle. In 1897 he was graduated from the New York Law School with the degree of LL. B., and was admitted to practice in this state in the same year. Three years later he was admitted as a counsellor. Mr. Blatz is a member of Plainfield lodge, B. P. O. E., Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and Miantonomo tribe, I. O. R. M. He is a director of the Central Building and Loan Association.

J. Henry Crane a member of the Union County Republican committee and who is regarded as a "regular," has the support practically of the "progressives" from what can be learned of the action taken at last night's conference of the leaders of that wing of the party. He is a native of London, England, and is the son of Rev. Arthur Crane, of Brooklyn, a retired clergyman. He is thirty-three years of age and received his early education in Boston's public schools. He is a graduate of the Thornton Academy, Saco, Maine. For some years he was employed by the Equitable Life Insurance Company, in former President Hyde's office. He studied law and was admitted to the New Jersey bar in 1902. Four years later he was made a counselor. He is a member of Anchor Lodge, F. & A. M., of this city, and of the Masonic Club of New York city. He is the secretary of the First Baptist church men's club. For several years he has taken an active part in local politics.

OPEN CARS SOON ON SOMERSET STREET LINE

Within the next two weeks, it is expected that the closed cars, which have been running on the Somerset street and Arlington avenue lines will be taken off and substituted by an open car service. That the open cars have not been put into service before now is due to the fact that the trolley roadbed on Somerset street, between Grandview avenue and Johnston's Drive is undergoing repairs, and while these conditions exist, the open cars could not be run to advantage on the line.

These cars have long bodies and short trucks, and as a result are subject to considerable jolting. This fault is aggravated the more so, because of the roadbed, and it has been deemed incompatable by the officials to run these cars until the fault is remedied.

The roadbed will, in all probability be repaired by the end of the next two weeks, and following this the open car service will be inaugurated. A number of complaints have been heard of late concerning the condition of affairs on this line, and the news of the relief will be eagerly welcomed.

WOMAN'S CRIES CAUSE POLICE TO BE SUMMONED

One of the liviest chases the police have had in recent times happened last night. Frank Marienscheck telephoned headquarters at 9:10 last night that someone was being murdered or hurt in an automobile near his home. A shrieking woman was the cause.

Chief Kiely and a patrolman started out in the patrol wagon and upon their approach the automobile started up at a tremendous clip. Down through West Front to Rock avenue the chase was kept up until striking the Greenbrook road the automobile disappeared in a cloud of dust.

It was so dark that it was impossible to distinguish the number of the gas wagon. The automobile had but two occupants and when the machine started to run from the approaching wagon the woman had ceased to scream.

Inspecting County Roads.

The road committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders stopped at the Hotel Waldorf today for dinner. They are making an inspection of the county roads to ascertain what repairs are necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Duttenhofer, of East Second street, have returned home and Mrs. Duttenhofer is improving from an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital.

FIVE VILLAGE CUTUPS MAY RECEIVE PUNISHMENT

It was learned today that William Stanbery, John Ford and three other young men by the names of Demarest, Mills and Deane, all of Scotch Plains, were the ones implicated in the pranks about the Baptist parsonage at that place several weeks ago, and were given the "third de ree," Tuesday night by the trustees of the church. Deane, it is understood, left town, but was named by the others as being one of the party charged with painting the skull and crossbones on the parsonage fence and committing other pranks.

What form of punishment will be given the young men has not been announced as yet, but doubtless the young men will be taught a lesson so that so far as they are concerned they will not care to repeat the offense. No attempt has thus far been made to apprehend Deane. He is said to be a vaudeville actor and is on the road. He is the oldest of the party of five, the others being under twenty years of age. It is believed that the same boys had something to do with the Fourth of July pranks at the Plains.

DAY'S WHEREABOUTS ARE STILL UNKNOWN

Wilson T. Day, the former agent at Oak Tree and Potters' Crossing on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, who disappeared on Monday, is still missing and relatives and friends have received no information as to his whereabouts. A search is still being maintained by the relatives and the police of New York and New Jersey are also on the lookout for the man.

There is an opinion that Wilson in leaving his clothes in a bath-house at Coney Island, may have had other clothes to wear, and that he may have adopted that course to scare his wife. In his letter to his wife, Day gave her instructions as to what to do with certain things, enumerating in detail many things about the household. He even requested her to be good and kind to a pet cat that has been in the family for several years. Friends and neighbors speak of Day in the highest terms and they are puzzled to know what led him to disappear.

Royal Fishing Club Outing.

The Royal Fishing Club, of Plainfield, comprising John Case, L. A. Hummer, George R. Schlereth, John H. Schenck, Clinton Carver, Charles Stahl and Andrew Lutkins, will leave Monday for Waretown, where they will spend four days fishing. With such experts of the rod it is predicted that other anglers will have little show.

MAYOR FISK WON'T RUN

He Confirms Report That He Will Not Accept a Renomination.

OTHERS ARE MENTIONED.

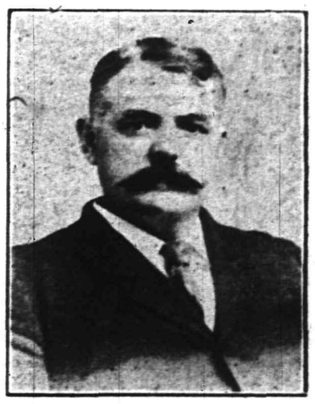
President of Common Council Ralph I. Tolles a Favorite—Clay, Mygatt and Mellick Also Mentioned.

Charles Joel Fisk will not be a candidate at the Republican primaries to succeed himself as mayor. This report was confirmed by the mayor, himself, when talking to a representative of this paper over the telephone from his banking house in New York today.

Charles J. Fisk.

Ralph I. Tolles, president of the Common Council, is the likely man as the choice of the "organization" forces at the primaries and his opponent will be George W. V. Moy, a prominent lawyer, who is backed by the "progressives." Mr. Tolles has told his friends that he does not desire to make the run and does not want the office but it can be stated positively that his friends are now urging him to announce his candidacy and that they expect that within a few days he will consent to do so.

When Mr. Fisk was asked if his decision was final he said that it was and he admitted that for several days the city committee has had in its possession a letter so stating. He would not give out the letter and referred the newspaperman to Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., the chairman of the Republican city committee, for further information. Mr. Hetfield is out of town today.



Ralph I. Tolles.

"I am not a candidate for renomination," said Mayor Fisk. "I have been giving much of my time as a citizen in one capacity or another for about nineteen years in the city's interests and I feel that I should be allowed to step down now. Of course, I shall always keep up my interest in the city's welfare but I can not spare the time for a fourth term as mayor." Many warm friends have asked me to be a candidate again, but I cannot comply with their requests."

In addition to Ralph I. Tolles several others are prominently mentioned for the nomination. These include Councilmen George S. Clay, and Frederick E. Mygatt and former Council Presidents George P. Mellick and Leslie M. Daniel. Mr. Clay, it is reported, does not want the office. Mr. Mellick declined four years ago to run and it was then that Mr. Fisk consented to accept the nomination.

Mr. Fisk has been one of the most, if not the most prominent man in Plainfield for many years. He is a son of the late Harvey Fisk, the noted New York banker, who floated Civil War loans, and was born in Jersey City, July 16, 1858. He received his only education at the Charlier Institute, New York City. He started as a messenger boy in the banking house of Fisk & Hatch when eighteen years of age after working

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Extensive improvements have been recently made on the Linke building on North avenue. The new wide concrete walk has been finished and large plate glass windows have been placed in position, so that the place now looks very attractive.

Walter Sisty, formerly of South Plainfield, is now located in Dunellen and has opened a pleasure resort on his lawn. The Dunellen Sunday school will hold a picnic there soon.

Watson Stillwood, of Cliffwood, recently visited his son, Alex., in New Market. The elder Stillwood, who sustained a broken arm recently, is now getting on nicely.

Local Methodists have great expectations of what tomorrow night's dime festival will bring forth. It is to be held on the lawn of Mayor William Eanford's home.

The anual assessment figures, which have been compiled by Assessor John H. L. Peters, will soon appear.

The reservoir in Clark Township is getting very low and unless there is rain within a few days the supply taken out each day will have to be lessened to avoid exposing the banks.

A part of Broad street will be shut off for the next few days, while the blocks between the trolley tracks are being relaid by the trolley company.

Garwood postoffice is being equipped with new boxes of a keyless pattern.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Runyon property which is over one hundred years old is being repaired and remodeled. It has been one of the landmarks of this place for the past century and has been much neglected and the neighbors in the vicinity are pleased to see the change. Now that the spirit of improvement is spreading everywhere may we not hope that the postoffice which, it is said, has not had a coat of paint in forty years, be renovated.

Judging from the number of camps on Spring Lake the sport must be thoroughly enjoyed. Frank Clark, of Cranford, has a lot of boats to rent, which he brought over for the Fourth of July celebration, and is going to leave them here for the summer.

Wilson Day, who disappeared from his home at Oak Tree, is not supposed to be dead by his many friends in this village. He was happy in his family relations and his accounts at the railroad station are correct as far as known.

The boys in the village, who belong to Company K, and are camping at Gettysburg, have written home that the recent storm was the most severe one ever experienced in that section.

Ralph Eckart, who resided here for many years, recently went to the far west, where he married, and is getting along well in his business enterprises.

Mrs. Delany, of Edgebrook Cottage, is fast improving from an abscess in her head.

The case of William Chamberlain to disposses a tenant was settled out of court.

ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTES READY FOR REVOLUTION

"The defeat of the Shackleton bill granting the right of the franchise to women with sufficient property qualification will signalize an outbreak such as England never knew before. The women and the men who sympathize with them will temporize in this matter no longer."

This semi-revolutionary statement was made yesterday by Walter E. Claren, M. P., the leading parliamentary champion of the suffragettes. The statement followed the passage of the franchise bill to its second reading in the House of Commons Tuesday. This temporary victory, however, was short-lived, for the Commons thereupon voted to send the bill to the committee of the whole, instead of to a subsidiary committee. In committee of the whole the bill cannot be taken up for passage without the approval of Premier Asquith, who is hostile to the measure and who will see to it that it is not called out at this session.

It was stated at the headquarters of the suffragette movement yesterday that the women would wait a brief time to see if Asquith would yield to what they say is a popular demand for the passage of the bill.

"But if he refuses, you may be sure we will resort to violence and violence of a nature that will make our former 'outbreaks' seem tame.

"We are militant suffragettes," the women declare, "because we cannot get what we demand peacefully."

The Shackleton bill provides that women with property, together with women who already vote in municipal elections, may vote in parliamentary elections.

James Meredith, a visitor at Atlantic City from Salem, O., proved on Tuesday to be a victim of a slick game that allowed the police to start on their work of rounding up an alleged crowd of swindlers, but also cost the confiding Meredith the $50 which he had brought to the shore for his vacation expenses. According to the angry visitor, he was inveigled into a game of matching pennies by two chance boardwalk acquaintances and was an easy victim when his sporty friends demanded higher stakes.

These are well made undermuslins, clean and fresh, cut full in every way. The lowered prices does not affect the quality.

on his grandfather's farm in Ewing township, Mercer county, N. J. Nine years later he became a member of the well-known banking firm formed by his father and his brothers.

In 1892, Mr. Fisk was chosen a member of the Common Council, of this city, filling the unexpired term of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman. He served for two terms and in 1896 was elected mayor. He declined renomination and was chosen by Mayor Rockfellow as a member of the Board of Health and was president of that body when he resigned in 1907. He was elected Mayor again in 1906 and again in 1908. While in the Common Council and while as Mayor he has had the department of accounts systemized. As head of the fire bureaus, he had the department brought up to date and had several new fire houses built, as he did when head of the street department by having sidewalks laid throughout the city and having numerous thoroughfares macadamized. Plainfield's model sewage disposal system is also largely due to his efforts. During his first term he re-organized the police department and was also instrumental in having the Martin act applied to Plainfield. He reorganized the board of health and made its usefulness greater.

For a number of years, Mayor Fisk was chairman of the Republican city committee and was also a member of the Union County Republican committee. He has been twice a delegate to Presidential conventions and a number of times to State conventions of his party. For a long time he was a member of the congressional committee in the Fifth district. Until recently he was president of Muhlenberg Hospital resigning when as mayor he became an ex-officio member of the board of governors. Through his efforts the institution was removed to its splendid new house which it now occupies.

During his present administration as Mayor, Mr. Fisk has brought about a score of improvements, including brick pavements in the business section, a new police headquarters, a new fire house in the Netherwod section, and has been instrumental in having many new and costly school buildings erected. A year ago he appointed a playground commission and there are now two public playgrounds here.

Mayor Fisk brought about the present excise regulations in Plainfield years ago which formed the basis for the Bishops' law. In 1898, he was appointed by Governor Fort president of the State Excise Commission, whose findings led many cities to improve and make more stringent their excise regulations.

The Mayor is a former president of the Watchung Hunt Club and is a member of the New Jersey Park Association.

UPHOLDS PUBLIC OPINION ON FIGHT PICTURES

Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze dealt a severe blow to the promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures at Jersey City yesterday afternoon. He went there unexpectedly and charged the grand jury that if an exhibition of moving pictures of the Reno fight is given in Hudson county he will call the grand jurors together in order that an indictment may be presented for action by them.

His action is the first official and judicial one of its kind that has been taken in this State and the only one where the attention of a Metropolitan district grand jury has been chaged on the fight pictures. It may affect the entire State.

It was understood that the grand jury was to go into court to present several murder indictments to either Judge Blair or Judge Carey and that the jurors would be discharged for the term. When announcement was made that Judge Swayze would receive the jury it was noised about that there would be something doing. Judge Swayze started off his charge by saying:

"The court has determined not to discharge you for the term. More than two months intervene between the present time and the opening of the September term, and serious matters may in the meantime make it desirable to have prompt action by a grand jury.

"Last week there was a prize fight in the tSate of Nevada. An attempt may be made in this county to show moving pictures of that fight, although I hope that the timely action which the police authorities intend to take may prevent it. There seems to be some doubt about the law in other States.

"There can be none in New Jersey. The law is thus stated by a legal writer of repute: 'A public exhibition of any kind that tends to the corruption of morals, to a disturbance of the peace or of the general good order and welfare of society is a public nuisance. Under this head are included all puppet shows, legerdemain, obscene pictures and any and all exhibitions the natural tendency of which is to pander to vicious and disorderly members of society.'

"Conceding, as we ought, great liberty in exhibitions for the amusement and entertainment of the public, that liberty does not permit exhibitions that tend to corrupt public morals, to cause a disturbance of the public peace or of the general order and welfare of society, or pander to the vicious and disorderly. In considering the question what tends to corrupt public morals we ought to look into the declarations of the Legislature, the official declarations of the State. Our Legislature has not only made prize fighting a crime, but has enacted that any person who is present at such a fight for the purpose of witnessing the same is guilty of a misdemeanor. With such a declaration on the part of our Legislature it cannot be questioned that an exhibition of moving pictures of such a fight, which are well calculated to encourage practises denounced by the act, tends to the corruption of morals and is a public nuisance.

"If the pictures are accurate and an actual reproduction of the scene their effect upon spectators must approximate the effect of the actual fight. If they are made up and not photographs of the actual fight their effect can hardly be less, and there is, besides, the possible element of fraud upon the public.

"It is no answer to say that such an exhibition like the fight itself may attract worthy and estimable citizens. In fact, it panders to the vicious and disorderly elements of society; it causes them to gather in crowds under circumstances likely to lead to a disturbance of the peace. This danger seems especially probable in the present case.

"If such an exhibition occurs in this county the court will call you together in order that an indictment may be presented to you for your action.

Vacation Clearance

We emphasize this vacation clearance sale. Not that we are trying to rid our shelves of unseasonable goods, for now is the time to wear these; not because they are undesirable, for we never had any shoes but the right kind. However, it is nearing the end of the season, and in order to retain our position of always being able to offer you something new, we have put a price on our remaining stock to clear our shelves for new goods. If you will come in and look them over, you will find something to interest you, and prices that will appeal to you as much as the shoes.

Her Pleasant Evening

"You won't be lonesome," said Mrs. Rammerslee as she bade her husband good-by, "for your Aunt Sally is coming into town for a day's shopping, and will pass the night at our house. I wrote her that we'd take her to the theater to-night and then when mother sent for me to go up to the country so suddenly it all went out of my mind. But you must take her, Chester."

"All right, May," answered Rammerslee good naturedly. He was fond of his Aunt Sally, who was just his own age and did not look a day older than his pretty young wife.

She was unusually blooming that night when she arrived and Rammerslee said to himself that he had never realized what a handsome girl she was.

"That's a stunning hat," he told her.

"I'm glad you like it," returned Sally. "I bought it to-day, for I wanted to do you credit."

There was an impressive rustle of silk when Sally appeared in the hall after dinner in a delicate opera wrap. He helped her into the taxicab in the gay humor a man is apt to feel when he has a congenial, pretty and well-dressed woman by his side.

This pleasant feeling vanished for a moment as he and Sally walked down the aisle of the theater and he heard in the clear undertone of the familiar voice of one of the men in his office.

"I wonder where Rammerslee got that baby doll?"

He was tempted to stop and crush the fellow with an introduction to his aunt, but Sally was sweeping onward behind the hurrying usher, so, swallowing his wrath, he sedately followed. When they took their seats and the embroidered cloak fell from Sally's shoulders, Rammerslee felt a thrill of mingled astonishment and admiration as he beheld her white neck gleaming above the glittering folds of a bespangled decollete evening gown.

Rammerslee noted with discomfort that two or three pairs of opera glasses were turned toward his companion. His nerves were not quieted by the discovery that the owners were men of his acquaintance.

"You are glaring like a lion," remarked Sally. "Why are you so fierce, Chester?"

"I was just thinking that everybody who knows me knows that my wife is a pronounced blonde," he replied.

"I don't see why that should cause you to look as if you wanted to eat somebody," said Sally, with a laugh that set the dark ringlets around her face dancing bewitchingly.

Coming out of the theater Sally said: "The play was delightful, Chester. I don't know when I have enjoyed an evening so much."

Feeling a sudden pang of conscience at the unkindness of his thoughts, Rammerslee remarked: "Well, the evening isn't over yet. I'm going to take you to supper at Martin's."

As they walked the short distance to the restaurant Sally talked so vivaciously of family affairs that Rammerslee forgot his annoyance and he received the welcoming bows and knowing smiles of the head waiter with a somewhat pleasantly flattered feeling of importance. He followed the waiter into the rather dimly lighted rear room of the cafe and seated Sally at the table to which he led them and which was secluded behind a group of palms. Then as the head waiter assisted him to remove his overcoat he became conscious that the man had something to communicate to him.

"Excuse me for mentioning it, Mr. Rammerslee," whispered the head waiter deferentially, "but Mrs. Rammerslee's brother and his wife are down in the front and I thought maybe you'd rather sit back here."

"You're a wonder," said Rammerslee in an indescribable tone and something slipped from his hand into the head waiter's.

"You have given me a lovely time," said Sally, when they reached home. "Thank you so much, Chester. And, Chester, did you think I looked—nice?" she asked a little shyly.

"Nice? You are simply stunning."

"You see, May wrote me to come in town and get some pretty clothes and have a good time. She rather intimated that you feared I was getting old maidish. So I decided to try to brighten myself up a bit. So you really thing I was successful?"

"Well, rather! I tell you what, Sally May's coming home in the morning and you've got to stay over and come to my office with her and I'll take you both to lunch at my club. We'll show them."

"Show them what?"

"Never mind. Run on to bed or you'll lose those roses in your cheeks. You may look just as pretty to-morrow as you can and I won't care—I won't care a bit."

So Unreasonable.

"Yes," she snapped, viciously, "you said if I would elope and marry you we would fly to a land of milk and honey, and live on the fat of the land. We have been here a month, and where is the milk, and where is the honey? Not even a pound of salt pork!"

"Well," he replied, meekly, "use your eyes. There isn't a place on this estate to keep a cow, and as for bees, there isn't a man in town willing to let me have a flock for their keep. As for pork, no one can keep a pig without a cow, so there we are."

JUST AN EXPERIMENT.

They had taken advantage of the fact that it was little Richard's first visit to the country and filled his childish ears with some ancient chestnuts. With solemn faces they told him when they wanted apple butter. They fed the cow apples, and when they wanted peanut butter they dieted her on peanuts. Richard heard all, but made no comment. Some mornings later they found him heading for the barnyard with a coal-oil can.

"Gracious, Richard!" asked his mother, anxiously, "what in the world are you going to do with that?"

"Why, ma," he responded, innocently, "I was going to give the old cow some kerosene so she could furnish some of that petroleum butter pa talks about."

False.

His love had grown cold.

"Oh, Edwin," she sobbed, "when you married me you said that you loved every hair on my head."

And Edwin, cruel and merciless, pointed an accusing finger at the switch and two "rats" near the mirror

"Yes," he responded heartlessly, "but not every hair on your bureau."

And lighting his cigar the brute strode off to his club.

Quick Sprint.

Sandy Pikes—Dat rich guy in de bungalow took quite a fancy to me. He took me around to de stable, showed me de $5,000 bulldog he had just bought and asked me if I could beat it."

Gritty George—And what did you say?

Sandy Pikes—Nuttin'! I just beat it.

A Proviso.

"There is but one way," yelled the exhausted magistrate, with one final mighty effort, "in which you can get a hearing in this court."

"What's that?" asked the deaf applicant for justice.

"You'll have to get it first from a specialist."

Heroic Treatment.

"Doctor," said the hypochondriac, "I'm afraid I'm getting insomnia."

"H'm," replied the New York physician, handing him a printed slip; take one of these as soon as possible."

"Is this a prescription?"

"No. It's a list of the trains to Philadelphia."

HE HAS IT.

"What is your idea of true gallantry?"

"Well, it seems to me that a man who will let his whiskers grow so that he will look older than his wife, has it."

Nothing Worth While.

When your liver isn't working right,
And your system's full of bile,
You will have that tired feeling,
And nothing seems worth while.

Where It Falls Down.

"Logic," remarked the visionary individual, "either proves or disproves all things."

"Yes," rejoined the practical person, "but it doesn't accomplish any of them."

Grim Humor.

"Did that suffragette gain anything by trying to starve herself?" asked one British statesman.

"Yes," answered the other. "She acquired a better appetite than she had enjoyed in years."

The Proper Kind.

"Say," queried the young man with the conundrum habit, "what kind of notes does a shoe-horn player use?"

"Foot notes, I suppose," answered the girl who was wise to his foolishness.

Wasn't Needed.

"Did they call you to see their rich uncle, doctor?"

"They called me, but he was dead before I got there."

"Then your going was entirely unnecessary, wasn't it?"

He'll Get His Chance.

"My grandfather would not rest easily in his grave if I voted against the amendment."

"Don't fret. He'll probably vote anyhow."

Seaside Discussion.

"Well, do the women agree as to the new arrival?"

"Practically yes. Some say she looks like a fashion magazine and others say she looks like a back number."

Didn't Intend To.

"Old Grabsby gave me a good cigar yesterday."

"He was generous."

"I rather think he was absent-minded."

The COURAGE of CAPTAIN PLUM

By JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD
ILLUSTRATIONS By MAGNUS G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1906 BY BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

It was half an hour before he came out upon the beach. Eagerly he scanned the sea. The Typhoon was nowhere in sight and for an instant the gladness that had been in his heart gave place to a chilling fear. But the direction of the wind reassured him. Casey had probably moved beyond the jutting promontory, that swung in the form of a cart wheel from the base of the point, that he might have sea room in case of something worse than a stiff breeze. But where was the small boat? With every step adding to his anxiety Nathaniel hurried along the narrow rim of beach. He went to the very tip of the point which reached out like the white forefinger of a lady's hand into the sea; he passed the spot where he had lain concealed the preceding day; his breath came faster and faster; he ran, and called softly, and at last halted in the arch of the cart wheel with the fear full-flaming in his breast. Over all those miles of sea there was no sign of the sloop. From end to end of the point there was no boat. What did it mean? Breathlessly he tore his way through the strip of forest on the promontory until all Lake Michigan to the south lay before his eyes. The Typhoon was gone! Was it possible that Casey had abandoned hope of Nathaniel's return and was already lying off St. James with shotted gun? The thought sent a shiver of despair through him. He passed to the opposite side of the point and followed it foot by foot, but there was no sign of life, no distant flash of white that might have been the canvas of the sloop Typhoon.

There was only one thing for him to do—wait. So he went to his hiding place of the day before and watched the sea with straining eyes. An hour passed and his still aching vision saw no sign of sail; two hours—and the sun was falling in a blinding glare over the Wisconsin wilderness. At last he spring to his feet with a hopeless cry and stood for a few moments undecided. Should he wait until night with the hope of attracting the attention of Neil and joining him in his canoe or should he hasten in the direction of St. James? In the darkness he might miss Neil, unless he kept up a constant shouting, which would probably bring the Mormons down upon him; if he went to St. James there was a possibility of reaching Casey. He still had faith in Obadiah and he was sure that the old man would help him to reach his ship; he might even assist him in his scheme of getting Marion from the island.

He would go to the councilor's. Having once decided, Nathaniel turned in the direction of the town, avoiding the use of the path which he and Obadiah had taken, but following in the forest near enough to use it as a guide. He was confident that Arbor Croche and his sheriffs were confining their man hunt to the swamp, but in spite of this belief he exercised extreme caution, stopping to listen now and then, with one hand always near his pistol. A quiet gloom filled the forest and by the tree tops he marked the going down of the sun. Nathaniel's ears ached with their strain of listening for the rumbling roar that would tell of Casey's attack on St. James.

Suddenly he heard a crackling in the underbrush ahead of him, a sound that came not from the strain of listening for the rumbling roar and in a moment he had dodged into concealment of the huge roots of an overturned tree, drawn pistol in hand. Whatever object was approaching came slowly, as if hesitating at each step—a cautious, stealthy advance, it struck Nathaniel, as he cocked his weapon. Directly in front of him, half a stone's throw away, was a dense growth of hazel and he could see the tops of the slender bushes swaying. Twice this movement ceased and the second time there came a crashing of brush and a faint cry. For many minutes after that there was absolute silence. Was it the cry of an animal that he had heard—or of a man? In either case the creature who made it had fallen in the thicket and was lying there as still as if dead. For a quarter of an hour Nathaniel waited and listened. He could no longer have seen the movement of bushes in the gathering night gloom of the forest but his ears were strained to catch the slightest sound from the direction of the mysterious thing that lay within less than a dozen rods of him. Slowly he drew himself out from the shelter of the roots and advanced step by step. Half way to the thicket a stick cracked loudly under his foot and as the sound startled the dead quiet of the forest with pistol-shot clearness there came another cry from the dense hazel, a cry which was neither that of man nor animal but of a woman; and with an answering shout Nathaniel sprang forward to meet there in the edge of the thicket the white face and outstretched arms of Marion. The girl was swaying on her feet. In her face there was a pallor that even in his instant's glance sent a chill of horror through the man and as she staggered toward him, half falling, her lips weakly forming his name Nathaniel leaped to her and caught her close in his arms. In that moment something seemed to burst within him and flood his veins with fire. Closer he held the girl and nearer he knew that she was becoming in his arms. Her head was upon his breast, his face was crushed in her hair, he felt her throbbing and breathing against him and his lips quivered with the words that were bursting for freedom in his soul. But first there came the girl's own whispered breath—"Neil—where is Neil?"

"He is gone—gone from the island!"

She had become a dead weight now and so he knelt on the ground with her, her head still upon his breast, her eyes closed, her arms fallen to her side. And as Nathaniel looked into her face from which all life seemed to have fled he forgot everything but the joy of this moment—forgot all in life but this woman against his breast. He kissed her soft mouth and the closed eyes until the eyes themselves opened again and gazed at him in a startled, half understanding way, until he drew his head far back with the shame of what he had dared to do flaming in his face.

And as for another moment he held her thus, feeling the quivering life returning in her, there came to him through that vast forest stillness the distant deep-toned thunder of a great gun.

"That's Casey!" he whispered close down to the girl's face. His voice was almost sobbing in its happiness. "That's Casey—firing on St. James!"

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

GOLF.

As if to show the visiting amateurs what could really be accomplished, Dave Hunter, the Essex County Country Club "pro," reeled off a 66 Tuesday afternoon. This broke the former record for the course, held by himself, by a stroke. Hunter went out in 32 and came back in 34, finishing with three 3's. He played with C. S. Kellogg, one of the prominent members of the club.

The card was as follows:

Out ..3 3 5 3 3 4 3 4 4—32
In ...6 4 3 4 4 4 3 3 3—34—66

The Garden City Golf Club closed the course yesterday afternoon in deference to the memory of the late John E. Borne, president of the club, who was buried yesterday. Mr. Borne had been at the head of the club for a number of years.

There will be no preliminary to the Long Island championship tournament. The original program called for club two-man team matches yesterday, but this has been abandoned so that there will be nothing in a competitive way on the Brooklyn-Forest Park links until today, when the contestants will qualify for the title.

Everything is in readiness for the annual open tournament to be held over the links of the Ekwanok Country Club at Manchester, Vt., today, tomorrow and Saturday. The chief trophies to be played for are the Taconic and Ondawa cups, emblematic of the first and second sixteens, respectively. Prizes have also been provided for third and fourth divisions. Match rounds will consist of eighteen holes, except the final, which will be an all-day affair. The usual eighteen-hole medal play handicap is also on for the last day. This will be the first of the three open competitions carded for the Manchester links.

The tie for the Class A Fourth of July cup was played off on the links of the Ardsley Club Tuesday and resulted in favor of George G. Boardman, with a card of 85-12-73. His opponent, Thomas S. Fuller, had 88-13-75.

After his fine showing in the open championship of Great Britain at St. Andrews, Willie Smith lost no time in returning to America. He reached this port the other day and a few hours later boarded a train en route for Mexico City. Smith had received word from the president of his club to make all possible haste, otherwise he would have lingered in this vicinity for a few days.

MRS. CLEVELAND'S FRANK.

GERMAN AVIATORS MEET DEATH IN THE AIR

Leichlingen, Rhenish Prussia, July 14.—The dirigible ballon Erbsloeh, recently refitted for a passenger service, was destroyed in mid-air yesterday through the explosion of a benzine tank and her inventor, Oscar Erbsloeh, and his crew of four men dropped to their death.

The bodies of the aviators were frightfully mangled. The gondola was torn to bits and the motor buried itself beneath the surface of the ground.

The victims were men well known to all Germans interested in aerial feats, and Erbsloeh gained an international reputation when, in 1907, at St. Louis, he won the international cup in the distance race for balloons. His companions were Herr Toelle, a manufacturer, of Bremen; two engineers, Herr Kranz and Herr Hoeppe, and Herr Spicke, the motorman.

The Erbsloeh was constructed last year, and had had a dubious career. The first time it descended it crashed into a clump of trees, and its occupants narrowly escaped injury. A few days ago, during a trial flight, a propeller was broken. The balloon, which was of the non-rigid type, had just been made over preparatory to the establishment of a passenger service between Elberfield and nearby points. Yesterday it was inflated for a final test by the crew. The ascent was made near Opladen and during a fog.

There were few eye-witnesses of the accident. According to these, the start was well made. The Erbsloeh rose gracefully, pushing its way through the fog to a height estimated at several hundred yards. At this altitude a series of evolutions was begun. To the onlookers the airship appeared to obey her helm perfectly. Suddenly there was a loud report and at the moment the fore part of the vessel crumpled up and the gondola was twisted about until it appeared as though standing on one end. As the gas escaped from the forward compartment the prow swayed downward. For a flash the airship fluttered like a wounded bird and then fell swiftly to earth.

Erbsloeh and his companions were killed the second that they struck the ground. Their heads were battered in and every limb was broken.

An examination of the wreckage showed that the benzine tank had burst, tearing to shreds the rubber envelope directly above it. The destruction of this envelope caused the bow to collapse. The stern compartment was still filled with gas when it struck the ground.

The death of Erbsloeh and his crew, with the destruction of the balloon, for which much had been hoped, following closely upon the loss of Count Zeppelin's Deutschland, has caused glom in aviation circles. The public had scarcely recovered from the shock caused by the accidental death of Charles Stewart Rolls, the English aviator, when they learned that Erbsloeh had been added to the long list of Germans who had lost their lives while ballooning. The effect was depressing.

The Erbsloeh was of non-rigid type, 176 feet in length and thirty-three feet in diameter. The motors were of 125 horsepower, and drove the airship at a speed of twenty-eight and one-half miles an hour. The War Department recently purchased one of Erbs[illegible] balloons.

LAWN TENNIS TOURNEY WILL BEGIN ON SATURDAY.

The annual open lawn tennis championship of Plainfield, men's singles, will begin on the dirt courts of the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, and weather permitting will be concluded on Saturday, July, 23. This event is open to all players in Plainfield and North Plainfield, whether members of the country club or not, and is regarded as the chief contest of the local lawn tennis season. The winner will receive a sterling silver cup, suitably engraved, presented by S. W. Merrihew.

The event was won last year by Albert D. Beers, who is expected to play in the coming tournament. The matches will be the best two out of three sets, except in the final round, which will be the best three out of five. Play will start at 2.30 o'clock each afternoon.

Invitations have been sent to all Plainfield organizations having tennis courts, including the Park Club, the Watchung Hunt Club, the Netherwood Field Club, as well as unattached players, all being cordially invited to take part in the contest.

AN IMPORTANT ELECTION.

Fear was expressed by Assemblyman Smalley at the Twelfth Ward Republican Club meeting the other evening that the importance of this year's electiaon might not be realized by the voters. He pointed out that in order to win this fall it will be necessary to appreciate the fact that there is a real fight ahead. Assemblyman Smalley did not go into details. That was not necessary. Anyone who will take the trouble to look of the list of political positions to be filled in November, will appreciate the importance of the approaching contest. Not only is a Governor of the State to be elected, but a member of Congress, and, in this county, three members of the State Legislature, who will play an important part in the election of a United States Senator. Nearly the whole Board of Freeholders is to be chosen in the county, while in the city the choice of a Mayor adds largely to the interest in the campaign. The municipal contest is, in fact, sure to attract much attention, with the terms of so many officials expiring this year. There is enough at stake in the fall campaign to arouse the most lethargic citizen to a new sense of responsibility; and Assemblyman Smalley and others who speak in Union county from now until election time will do well to keep pointing out to the people the necessity of taking a thorough-going interest in the campaign.—Elizabeth Journal.

Dr. Leslie D. Ward.

Dr. Leslie Dodd Ward, first vice-president, of the Prudential Insurance Company, died in the Hotel Ritz, London, England, at 7:10 o'clock last night of acute Bright's disease, complicated with pneumonia which developed last Monday. He practically did not rally from a coma which set in on July 6. His son Leslie P. Ward, was by his side when the end came and he will accompany the body of his father to New Jersey, probably starting on the steamship Campania sailing Saturday for New York.

Randolph Wins His Game.

Clifford Randolph, pitching for Troy, of the New York State League, won his game against Wilkes-Barre, yesterday, by a score of 5 to 4. He pitched eight and one-third innings during which time the Barons only secured six scattering hits. There was constant wrangling by the players and Catcher Warner, of Troy was put out of the game and fined for disputing a third strike.

Irving Neighbor enjoyed a trip to Rockaway Beach yesterday.

H. C. PITNEY'S PORTRAIT PLACED IN STATE HOUSE

Trenton, July 14.—The State's collection of portraits of its distinguished citizens was enriched yesterday by the presentation of a striking painting of former Vice Chancellor Henry C. Pitney, of Morristown. The portrait was the work of Ellis Roberts, a noted English artist and a brother of Charles E. Roberts who is now the official stenographer of Vice Chancellor Edwin Robert Walker. It has been placed in the Chancery Chambers at the State House, occupying a place at the right of the seat occupied by the court.

The gift of the portrait made by the artist himself was partly the result of accident. Several years ago while traveling abroad Vice Chancellor Pitney met Mr. Roberts and the two became fast friends. The acquaintance was continued and three or four years ago Mr. Roberts expressed a desire to paint a portrait of the Vice Chancellor, inviting him to come to England for that purpose. The invitation was accepted and Mr. Roberts painted a portrait which has since hung in the Vice Chancellor's home at Morristown.

About a year ago the former Vice Chancellor wrote to Mr. Roberts expressing a hope that he would return the visit he had made to England by coming to this country. Mr. Roberts accepted the invitation and while here called upon his brother who showed him the collection of portraits at the State House. The artist at once expressed a desire to add to this collection a portrait of his friend, the former Vice Chancellor. He arranged last summer for the sitting and completed the portrait. Its presentation, however, was delayed until the drying out process had been completed. Mr. Roberts has written to Governor Fort a letter expressing the pleasure with which he made the gift to the State. The portrait is regarded by those who have seen it as one of the best in the State's collection which includes the work of many noted artists.

JULIUS E. ERICKSON IN FINE GOLF FORM

Julius E. Erickson, of the Plainfield Country Club, has been playing a fine game of golf in the advertising men's annual tournament at Bretton Woods, N. H., this week. On Monday he won a prize in competition with some of the crack players of the country and also qualified among the first sixteen for match play. Among the noted players in the tournament was Tom Sherman, son of the Vice President, who had two fine rounds of 76 and 74, yesterday, earning his place in the semi-final round. Today he meets D. P. Kingsley, of St. Andrew's.

In the first round yesterday, among the first sixteen players to qualify, Mr. Erickson was defeated by W. L. Crocker, of Brae Burn, 5 up and 4 to play, which puts him out of the running. The competition was exceedingly close, and the Plainfielder distinguishd himself in a large field of the best players. W. L. Crocker and L. A. Hamilton, of Englewood, are the two other survivors, each of whom went around under eighty in their rounds yesterday.

POLITICAL TALK.

Freeholders S. P. T. Wilbur and J. Hervey Doane have announced themselves as candidates for renomination at the Republican primaries.

The members of the Elizabeth Democratic Club were urged Tuesday night at the monthly meeting of the organization to forget the hot weather and get to work in the "weak spots" of the city and strengthen them. John Bach, who was named as a committee of one by President Schlotterer to find out who intended to go on the Democratic outing to Witzel's Grove, August 17, reported that the club would be represented by a delegation of more than 100.

THE CITY COUSIN

"I don't know about the trials of city relatives with visiting country cousins," said Aunt Mary, thoughtfully. "Still, I am tired of reading continually about the annoying guest from the country. Some day I shall tell my experience with a city guest."

Her caller laughed. "Aunt Mary," she said, "you will never have a more appreciative listener than I would be at the present moment."

"Well, I think I shall tell you about it, my dear. Cousin Annie, who was brought up on the next farm to me, was my dearest girl friend. She married a Chicago man and for a few years we visited back and forth quite regularly. Then troubles came in both families and we couldn't get away at all.

"Annie's husband made a great deal of money. I think it did not change Annie a bit, for occasionally I would get warm, confidential letters from her. But, you see, different circumstances must make a difference with the children. Her girls were educated at fashionable schools and abroad, while the country high school sufficed for mine.

"When my last and youngest married and went to the Pacific coast to live, I was so lonesome that I sat down and wrote Annie a long, blue letter. It wasn't a week before she answered, offering me her youngest for a visit. She said that none of her children had ever seen the old neighborhood in which she had grown up, and that Eunice was the only one to send, and that if I wanted her she would come and try to take my girl's place for a few weeks.

"If I wanted her! I had never wanted a girl so much in my life!

"Eunice was a dear girl, she really was. But a wealthy city and a prosperous farming community are far apart.

"I had sent the hired man down with the 'democrat' wagon to get her trunk, but he had to make three trips before he got all her luggage. I was charmed when she stepped off the train—she was so fresh and dainty that I fell in love with her on the spot."

"I had invited all the young people of the neighborhood in for supper that evening so that Eunice could get acquainted at once. I told her about five o'clock that she would better get ready for them, as boys and girls would arrive at six.

"All the guests were in the sitting room when she opened the door, and, my dear, she was a picture! I discovered afterward that she had on her simplest house gown, although it seemed very elaborate to us. Her arms and neck were bare—I think none of us had ever seen a woman dressed so before outside of pictures in novels. She carried her train like a queen.

"There must be something in what she calls 'poise,' for doubtless she was as dumfounded at their appearance as they were at hers. Some of the girls wore dimity gowns, but most of them had on white waists embroidered after some newspaper pattern and their best skirts. They were breathless with astonishment, but she never wavered for a moment.

"It wasn't such an impossible evening as I had thought it might be, for she made herself very agreeable. I think the girls all envied her and the boys were half in love with her. I loved her myself when she kissed me good night and said:

"'Cousin Mary, I promise never to wear these clothes in your house again. You know that I didn't know better, don't you?'

"The next day the minister and his wife called. We haven't imbibed many religious fads here, although I'm not so set as some. But the old orthodox faith seemed new to Eunice. She told the minister she didn't know that any one now believed the things he did and that she was inclined to Buddhism, herself. She did so love mysticism! I know the poor man is praying for her nightly!

"Then she went out violet gathering with John Miller and I could see that he was getting too deeply interested in her.

"He invited us to the Cemetery association supper the next night. Eunice was convulsed. It hadn't seemed queer to us to meet once a month for a picnic supper and dance to talk over affairs of our cemetery, but it did to the city girl. The square dances tickled her nearly to death—she had never seen any before. All the women were busy getting the pattern of her simple morning dress fixed in their minds, while the boys were afraid to ask her to dance, except John, who didn't seem to see any one else in the room. I am fond of him, so I didn't like it.

"When she was ready for bed I went in and had a talk with her, just as I used to do with my own girls. She seemed really annoyed when I told her my suspicions about John. She threw her arms about me and laughed and cried a bit.

"'Dear Cousin Mary,' he said, 'what a trial I must be to you! Now, you are the most genuine woman I know, except mother, and I know you will understand me when I say that I am going home to-morrow. I think we ought not try to stay where we make it uncomfortable!'

"She went away as sweet as when she came.

"But the minister never has been the same to me since. I think he looks upon me always as the relative of a Buddhist!"

SIMILITUDES.

I never said to her: "My Sweet,
Thou art the sweetest flower that blows;"
But, "Thou art like to her, complete,"
I said unto the rose.

I have not said: "Thine eyes are stars;"
But, to those gazers of the skies—
Leaning beyond my window bars—
"Your light is from her eyes."

Not yet, to her, have I made known
What she is like, in Heaven or Earth,
Though all Best Things I know, do own—
Do show—her lovely worth.

Though they keep silence for my sake,
To be like her, they much rejoice!
They know that soon my heart will break—
Or lift to her its voice.

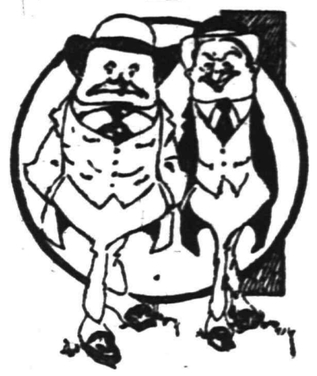
CONCERNING FEATHER BEDS.



Bosh—I never had much use for feather beds. I don't consider them healthy.

Josh—Well, I know a man who says he would like to see them all over the country.

Bosh—Indeed! Who is he?

Josh—Why, an inventor of flying machines.

His Bill of Fare.

At breakfast he ate a poster red,
At lunch a light overcoat;
At dinner on tin cans he fed—
For the diner was a goat.

Hinting Harriette.

Mr. McTardie (speaking of his boyhood days)—My mother called me "the family interrogation point," and said I couldn't be with a person two minutes without asking a question.

Harriette (with suggestive sigh)—You've been with me two hours, Mr. McTardie.

Consistent.

"At least, the scenery at the Pole from Dr. Cook's description, must be consistent, if not picturesque."

"What do you mean?"

"Didn't you remark that he said all you could see with the naked eye was a bare expanse."

Perfection.

"There is no such think as perfection in this world," said the ready-made philisipher.

"No," answered Miss Cayenne; "the only person I know of who comes near attaining perfection is the one who sets out to be a perfect bore."

His Idea of a Cynic.

Jack—Gayboy and the girl he is engaged to are both cynics.

Tom—What is your idea of a cynic, anyway?

Jack—A cynic is a man who has had experience or a woman who hasn't.

Has Book Agent Beaten.

Slamm—That fellow Jinks has the nerve of a book agent.

Bangs—Yes, and then some. His nerve is equal to that of the misguided woman who forces her friends to buy tickets for a bazaar.

Where the Trouble Lay.

"You look sick, old sport. Is your trouble catching?"

"No it isn't," said the young recruit from the minor leagues. "My trouble is pitching."

SPEEDY.

White — Jones has a motor-car tongue.

Black—What do you mean?

White—It's always running.

Far Different.

He said 'Twas on the desert
A centipede attacked us,
And what we backed and sat upon
Was not a thornless cactus.

Rather Slow.

Said He—So that is your chaperon at the phone. Is she up-to-date?

Said She—Yes, in some ways; but she isn't up to any date I make.

A Natural Suggestion.

"They tell me the chestnut crop is falling off this year."

"Well, I don't know that I've noticed any special new jokes lately."

JEFFERSON PUBLIC SCHOOL NEARING COMPLETION

So rapid has been the progress of the work on the new Jefferson School which is located at the corner of Washington and Darrow avenues, that in all probability there will be no hitch in throwing the building open to the children in September, as is required by the specifications. The Ross-Bush Co., of New York, is the general contractor, and are doing the masonry and carpentery, while George J. Tobin, of this city, is taking care of the plumbing and heating.

The school is an up-to-date building with all modern improvements. It is an eight-room building and is heated with one of the latest improved heating systems, direct radiation and ventilation being employed by means of a large fan in a general pleman chamber. All machinery in the building is to be electrically driven and the radiation is to be thermostatically controlled. The inside plumbing has been all but completed, all that remains to be done, being the setting of the fixtures. The inside of the building is now in the process of plastering, which shows the advanced stage to which the work has progressed.

The grading and outside ground work will probably not be finished by the opening of the school in fall, but this will not deter the Board of Education from making use of the building.

BASEBALL.

The Watchung Avenue A. C. was defeated by the North Avenue A. C. on East Third street, this morning by a score of 19 to 18. The contest was a lively one, both sides hitting the ball hard. V. Mullin and Eddie Jonas formed the battery for the victors and Russell Feiring and Fred Misner were in the points for the opposing team.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smalley have removed from Craig place to the Lincoln apartments on West Fourth street.

Elbridge Witter Clawson, the young son of Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue, is spending the summer with his grandparents at Oneida, N. Y. He writes home that the boating, bathing and fishing are fine and he keeps busy enjoying the sport.

Edward Harding, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Harding, of John street, will leave tomorrow for a vacation at Niagara Falls, Cookeville and Toronto, Canada. He will make the trip over the Lehigh Valley road going, and returning by the way of Montreal and the New York Central. He will be away four weeks.

SUCH a shop as Milani's superb delicatessen store is just the kind of a shop that Plainfield's particular people have long wanted. THEY SAW BATTLEFIELD

Co. K Boys Visited Scene of a Decisive Encounter in Civil War.

NOTES FROM GETTYSBURG.

Fire Excitement at the Camp—Engineer's Son Killed During Storm—What the Boys Have to Eat.

The members of Co. K are going through their paces at the Camp of Instruction, Gettysburg, just like the "regulars," and according to all reports are "making good." The Second Regiment was out Wednesday morning for a long hike, lasting from 6.50 to 12.30. The boys worked principally on strategetic positions and outpost duty. It is needless to say that they came back to camp pretty well fatigued, although game. They enjoyed the ice cold lemonade that Quartermaster Sergeant Apgar had prepared for them.

In the afternoon the regiment left camp for a visit to the historic battlefield under command of the non-commissioned officers. They marched to Gettysburg where four specially chartered trolley cars were waiting for them. Each car had a competent guide, who explained the different points of interest to the boys. They first stopped at Cemetery Hill, where they saw Gen. Meade's statue. They then passed through the National cemetery and went out the rear gate and again boarded the trolleys and rode to Devil's Den. After looking around awhile and getting a drink at the spring they again took the trolleys and rode to the foot of "Little Round Top," and after walking up the elevation took the trolleys to Bloody Angle and the High Water Mark, after which the trip was continued to Gettysburg, from which point they hiked it back to camp, arriving at 7.30 o'clock. The boys thoroughly enjoyed the trip and are grateful to Colonel Dungan for his generosity in furnishing the regiment with the trip, and thus affording them an opportunity to see the points of interest.

There was excitement in the camp Wednesday night, when the bugles announced the fire call. The blaze proved to be a large cooking shack belonging to Major Backer, of the War College, and it was entirely destroyed. The surrounding shacks and tents were saved by bucket brigades of the regulars and militiamen.

The weather has been exceedingly warm, but not as bad as during the first two days in camp. Yesterday the regiment went out for another hike and did not return until afternoon. The guard detail for yesterday was as follows:

Privates Horn and Houston; police detail, Corporal J. Pearsall, Privates Cardner, Cole, Hixon, Perry, Teeple; special detail to Sergeant Apgar, Private Terry; detail to regimental quartermaster, Privates Winter and Welsh; detail to Major Neafie, Privates Adams, Teeple and Hann.

The Second Regiment is still getting good marks in almost everything, but especially in sanitation. During the storm on Tuesday, a young man by the name of Roy Stroup was killed in Gettysburg, being found an hour after the storm under a tree with his hands in his pockets, indicating that he had been standing aaginst the tree in that position. He was the son of the engineer at the pumping station from which place the camp gets its water.

The mess for yesterday follows:

Breakfast, scrambled eggs, bacon, potatoes fried, bread, butter, coffee; dinner, roast leg of lamb, peas, potatoes, canned peaches, bread, butter, lemonade; supper, vegetable soup, boiled potatoes, stewed prunes, bread, butter, coffee.

Private Clark has been visiting friends at Frederick. Private George Bowe has been dubbed the "bear tamer." The "rookies" are being initiated regularly, being made to do all sorts of stunts, the most popular being the "pump." It has been reported in camp that Corporal Archie Niles intends getting a shave before he gets home. Privates Hann and Keplar are planning to go into the tobacco business when they return to Westfield. Sergeant Harry Manning intends taking a short trip when he returns home.

The two "square heads," Otto and Gunner Hansen, get more postals than all the rest of the boys put together. After getting back from the hikes their first question to the first sergeant is "Was there any mail for me?"

There seems to be no sickness of any account among the boys in camp. Not a single man from Co. K has had to report to the hospital tent.

DEMOCRATS ARE AWAKE

First Gun of Campaign in Somerset Will Be Fired Tuesday Night.

AT THE SAENGERBUND HALL.

Samuel S. Swackhamer to Take an Oratorical Shot at "Piratical Band of Political Robbers" Then.

Democrats from all parts of Somerset county have been invited to attend a mass meeting at Saengerbund Hall, North Plainfield, on Tuesday night, when the issues of the coming gubernatorial campaign will be discussed. Former State Senator Samuel S. Childs, of Bernardsville, head of the Childs chain of restaurants throughout the East, will preside, and among the guests will be former Councilman James E. Martine, of Plainfield, "the farmer-orator of New Jersey."

The principal address will be made by former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, "the tall sycamore of Somerset," whose subject will be "The Third Magna Charta, or Democracy's Opportunity." In a statement today, Mr. Swackhamer said that the Democrats would discuss the issue "without fear, favor or reward, or the hope thereof." He said that personally he thought that Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, would make an ideal candidate for governor, but that the purpose of the meeting was to agree on the choice of Somerset county.

When asked wether he would be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, Mr. Swackhamer said, smilingly:

"I have not been asked. The office is one that should appeal to a man, particularly to a Democrat who wishes to see the country rescued from its chains and fetters. As to my topic for that meeting I mean to convey the political principle that for the third time the liberties of the people should be proclaimed and admitted. One bill of rights was wrested from King John at Runnimede, another was proclaimed on the fourth of July, 1776, and another is now mandatory. We must be a land of liberty and it is time that our rights are admitted.'

Mr. Martine, who was in Mr. Swackhamer's company when the latter made this statement, heartily approved of the meeting and said that he would be heard from on that occasion. He declared that the people have been robbed of their liberties by "a piratical band of political robbers masquerading as the Republican party."

"We will have a fight to the finish," said Mr. Martine. "In every part of this country we will be heard from this fall. It is a pity that the good, honest, intelligent Republicans, known as the Insurgents should not be where they belong—in the Democratic party. They are Democrats, the best sort of Democrats, but they don't realize it. We are going to make a fight in our district for congress. Judge Runyon is a fine fellow, a capable fellow, but he is not a Democrat, and we must have a Democrat from our district. No, I am not a candidate for congress. I don't want the nomination, but no man should refuse to heed the call of his party. Personally, I want to see William Tuttle, of Westfield, nominated by our party. No, I don't say that I would not accept a nomination—I am not a candidate."

Netherwood Camp Services.

Next Sunday afternoon at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp there will be special services conducted by members of the First Baptist church. The principal speaker will be Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church and the time set is that announced last Monday, 3.30 in the afternoon instead of 4 o'clock.

Trinity Society in Charge.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church had charge of the gospel service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, last night. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity church, gave the children and mothers an interesting talk. There was also special music by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Young and Miss Harriet Randall. The meeting was largely attended.

Rev. Mr. Greenwood to Speak.

Rev. C. J. Greenwood, pastor of the Baptist church, Westfield, who was heard so acceptably at the Salvation Army tent services here last summer, will speak at the tent service Sunday night. He is an able speaker. The public is invited.

ATTACKED BY NEGROES

Morris Kunzman is Set Upon and Beaten in West Third Street.

ILL FEELING AMONG NEIGHBORS

James Carr Fined $10 in Police Court and Others Implicated in Attack Will Be Haled Before Judge Runyon.

When next Morris Kunzman, a tailor goes walking in the neighborhood of West Third street and Plainfield avenue, he will probably keep his eyes wide open for the colored folks who object to the presence of people of another race on the public thoroughfares. James Carr, a young negro, who lives in the neighborhood, the only one convicted in the assault upon Kunzman, was fined ten dollars by Judge Runyon this morning and it is expected that others will be apprehended.

According to the story told by Kunzman this morning, he was on his way to Mann's grocery store with his two children, one held in each hand. As he attempted to pass by Carr the latter shoved him from the sidewalk at the same time applying a vile epithet to him.

In attempting to defend himself and his two little children Kunzman was knocked down and in a moment a crowd of two hundred negroes were about him some pounding and kicking him, he alleged. Samuel S. Swackhamer who appeared for Kunzman drew out the facts upon which Carr was convicted.

In his testimony, in which he was corroborated by Julius Sharger, Joseph Hays and Hyman Rosenthal, the negroes set up the cry of "kill 'em" and "let's kill them all." This was denied by Carr and Hansell Pollard, who was arrested with Carr. But the evidence on two witnesses for Kunzman prevailed.

Young Pollard's mother who testified in behalf of her son did much to acquit her son. She said positively that her son could not have been implicated in the scrap as he was in company with a "lady friend" when the row started and, fearing that he would get into trouble she went in search of her "little boy." Pollard is about six feet tall and looks like the published pictures of Jack Johnson, the pugilist. At any rate the mother's testimony seemed to impress Judge Runyon and in his case sentence was suspended.

It is said that bad feeling has existed between the colored people and those of another race in the neighborhood for some time and the near riot last night was the culmination of the racial hatred. The fining of Carr and the possible arrest of others alleged to have been implicated in the affair of last night it is expected will stop any further trouble.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER PROVES TO BE ILL—NOT CRIMINAL.

A telephone message from George Schmidt, postmaster at Watchung, received by Chief P. S. Kiely at 6 o'clock this morning, got the chief on the jump in a minute. Mr. Schmidt said over the wire that there was a suspicious Italian hiding in the hills near his place and that he thought the man was the one suspected of having killed Trovate at Somerville and might also be responsible for the two holdups at Scotch Plains.

Picking up Chief Marshal Weiss on the way Chief Kiely made all haste to Mr. Schmidt's store at the foot of the mountain. There after examining the suspect, who had been coaxed into the store, the two officers decided that the man was demented and probably suffering from exposure to the sun.

Chief Kiely notified City Physician Lufburrow and the latter recommended the fellow's removal to the hospital. The name given to the police by the sick man was Vincent Bovay. It is believed that he will recover and there is nothing about the man to connect him with the recent outrages reported from Scotch Plains.

Mystery in Small Package.

A package was left at the home of Mrs. Annie Whitlock, 440 West Front street, yesterday afternoon, by an Italian who said he would return in an hour for it. The package is still with Mrs. Whitlock and the contents of the package are a mystery which will have to be solved by the police.

BICYCLIST IS FINED IN THE POLICE COURT

For knocking down Mrs. Walter Conover, of North Plainfield, on Watchung avenue at 9:25 last night with his bicycle, Tony Bulros, an Italian youth was fined three dollars in the city court this morning by Judge Runyon.

Patrolman Nick Meyers arrested the boy immediately after the accident and in giving his testimony this morning told the court that he had called to the boy to stop as he was carrying no lamp on his wheel. The boy responded in a derisive manner and in a second had run Mrs. Conover down.

Bulros refused to answer the judge's questions this morning, saying he did not understand, but he was made to talk through an interpreter. He did not deny the charges brought against him and his fine was promptly paid by a friend. In fining the youth the judge declared that any further infraction of the ordinance which requires lights on vehicles or the one which prohibits riding bicycles on the sidewalks will be severely dealt with no matter who the offender may be.

TWENTY DOLLARS MORE FOR BABY CAMP FUND

"It's hard enough for us to stand this heat, and my heart goes out to the babies of the poor during such trying weather. The camp is a fine thing and I think we all ought to help the cause." This was the statement made by "M.L.R." and $20 more was added by the person quoted to the fund being raised by this paper for the current expenses of the City Union of the King's Daughters baby camp on the mountain.

The charter of the new lodge closes within thirty days from last night during which time the installation of officers will have to be made.

Artistic Posters.

Several attractive posters are to be seen about the city advertising the Japanese lawn festival to be held on the lawn opposite the First Presbyterian church, tomorrow afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church. Each one bears the face of a Japanese woman, and the work is that of Miss Minnie Hahn, of East Second street, a member of the society. The execution is fine.

R. H. Pollock, of the Hotel Kensington, received word this morning of the accidental death of his brother-in-law, William Galbraith, of Baltimore. He was a travelling man. No details of the accident were given.

TWO OTHER CANDIDATES FOR CITY JUDGESHIP.

Robert Newton Crane, son of U. B. Crane, was born in this city on January 3, 1885. After being graduated from the local grammar schools, he received a diploma from the Sneffner Preparatory school, New York city. Subsequently he attended the Emerson Institute, Washington, D. C. In 1904, Mr. Crane matriculated at the law school of Yale university. Three years later he received the degree of LL.B., at that seat of learning. He is prominent in Perseverance lodge, Knights of Pythias, and Miantonomo tribe, Improved Order of Red Men. He has figured in a number of cases that have attracted public attention, among them were the Ricardi extradition and the Buckley murder cases, in both of which he won victories for his clients.

William G. De Meza was born in this city April 23, 1874. He graduated from the High School and became a student at St. Anselm's College at Manchester, N. H. On graduation from the college he began the study of law in the offices of his brother, former Judge George W. De Meza.

Mr. De Meza enjoys the unique distinction of having lost but two criminal cases during his career as a practicing lawyer in the city of Plainfield, and is well known in this city as one of the defenders of the poor.

Besides being conversant with criminal law procedure Mr. De Meza has the advantage of intimate acquaintance with intricate problems involving questions of "Rights" and thoroughly understands local environment.

Mr. De Meza is a member of the fraternal organizations of the city which claim prominence. Besides Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. he belongs to Royal Council, of the senior order; Perseverance Council, Knights of Pythias and Plainfield Aerie F. O. E. He enjoys a large friendship in political circles.

MISS BEEKMAN DEAD AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Miss Caroline V. D. Beekman, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Beekman, died last night at her home, 37 Clinton avenue, following a long illness from tuberculosis. The young woman made a plucky fight to stay the progress of the disease, undergoing treatment at a sanitorium for a time and then for the past year or so living out-of-doors practically all of the time. This only served to prolong life awhile longer, it being realized that the end was only a question of time.

Miss Beekman was one of the charter members of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and was a faithful Christian. For a time she taught a class in the Sunday-school and was also active in the Epworth League and other departments of church work. Miss Beekman's mother died just eleven months ago, while her father has been dead for nearly twenty years.

Surviving are six sisters, Mrs. Isaac Randolph, Mrs. Mary Beekman, Mrs. Samuel Saums and the Misses Beekman; also one brother, Samuel Beekman. The funeral will be held from the late home on Clinton avenue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will officiate and the burial will be in Somerville.

YOUNG MEN'S CLASS ELECTS AND ENJOYS SOCIAL HOUR.

Officers were elected and a social enjoyed at the regular business meeting of the Young Men's Class of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Church, last night. Following the business session the entertainment committee furnished an abundance of good things to eat. The committee in charge comprised Louis Mulford, Fred Goodwin and Harold Miner. These officers were elected for the year:

President, W. Harold Miner; vice president, Geo. H. Fisher, Jr., secretary, Harry Lude; financial secretary, Frank B. Stodd; treasurer, Louis Bond Mulford; trustees, John J. Praed and Harry Lude.

Vagrants Not Wanted Here.

For apparently not having any other mode of getting a living but panhandling, Thomas Brennan, who claimed a residence at Fanwood, was given a suspended sentence by City Judge Runyon this morning on his promise to leave town. Brennan was arrested for annoying people on West Third street last night. For a bluff Brennan carried some perforated zinc with which he said he could create gas on kerosene lamps.

TOLLES WON'T SAY HE WILL NOT RUN

When Ralph I. Tolles, president of the Common Council, was asked today whether he would be a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, he declined to make any statement. In his customary affable manner he stated that some of his friends had urged him but that he could not see his way clear to devote the time to the office. Pressure is being brought to bear on him from many sources to decide to run.

"It is awfully kind of my friends to favor me," said Mr. Tolles, "and I appreciate their expressions. But my business requires so much of my time that I am not certain that I would be able to devote the required time to the mayoralty. There are many men who would make first rate mayors and I hope the party will choose some one of them.

"No, I cannot say now anything definitely," continued Mr. Tolles. "I want to talk with my good wife first. Probably some time next week, I will let you know whether I will be a candidate. For many, many years I have given up much of my time to the city as a member of the Common Council. I want to do what's right, but you know I have not been offered the higher office. I'll let you know next week."

VIOLATORS OF HEALTH LAWS ARE FINED IN CITY COURT.

Among the eight men arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning for violations of the health ordinances were four negroes, two Greeks and an Italian. These men have been dumping garbage and ashes, mixed in violation to specific provisions against the law. A fine of ten dollars was imposed in each case and execution of sentence suspended.

Some of the men were accused of dumping garbage in the rear of the new Jefferson school where a dump was formerly authorized. Others were found guilty of disposing of garbage in other illegal ways.

Mrs. L. M. Wilson Will Sing.

Mrs. L. M. Wilson, wife of the head of the Wilson Military Academy at Findern, will sing a soprano solo at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Sunday morning. He is a singer of considerable talent, having formerly been soloist at a church at Nyack, N. Y.

Rev. Dr. Zelie to Preach.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, will have charge of the prayer-meeting at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tonight, and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will preach tomorrow morning.

FOUND DEAD ON TRACKS

Unidentified Man Picked Up at Grant Avenue Bridge This Morning.

PROBABLY BLED TO DEATH.

Had Evidently Traveled Much; Hat Bought in San Francisco, Clothing From New York.

The dead body of an unknown man of evident refinement and clean habits was foud on the Grant avenue bridge of the Central Railroad shortly before 7 o'clock this morning and was taken to Cole's undertaking establishment to await the autopsy to be performed by County Physician Westcott this afternoon.

The man was about thirty-five years old, of slight build; five feet, one inch in height and weighed about 140 pounds. No marks of identification were found in the pockets of the dead man. He wore a blue serge coat and vest, and dark gray trousers, his underclothing was new as were his shoes. Everything about the man indicated care in personal appearance and a strick observance of self-cleanliness.

Besides twenty-six cents in change, an Elgin watch, which was still going, was found on the body. It is the belief of the police that the man bled to death instead of having any other mortal injury, and if he had been discovered earlier his life might have been saved. Only the autopsy can determine this.

From the clothing worn by the man it is believed that he had been a traveller in many parts of the country. His hat bore the mark of a San Francisco firm, his coat and vest bore the labels of the Smith-Gray Co. of Brooklyn and New York city, and the brand of shoes was of a famous New York make.

The necktie worn by the man was of a dark purple hue, but bore no trade mark or name. He was evidently an Irish-American and had evidently been employed in some sedentary occupation as his hands showed no marks of hard labor. A thimble found in the pocket of the trousers and certain marks on the finger tips would indicate that he had been a tailor or bushelman. The body will be held long enough to allow for possible identification.

AEROPLANE FALLS AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD

After making several successful flights in his new aeroplane, Clinton Hall came to grief yesterday at South Plainfield, when his motor stopped while the machine was twelve feet from the ground. Hall escaped injury, but the framework of the aeroplane was shattered. It will require a month's incessant labor to rebuild the frames.

Mr. Hall has been experimenting with his heavier-than-air machine for a month and had attained proficiency in guiding it. On several occasions yesterday he rose to a height of more than 200 feet and circled the field at South Plainfield at a rate of forty miles an hour. The aeroplane is one of Mr. Hall's own inventions and has several striking improvements over the Wright and Curtis machines.

It is Mr. Hall's intention to take the machine to Europe where he will try for some of the big prizes offered by the newspapers and others. The engine in this machine is the invention of George Fulmer, of Sycamore street, and is said to be a wonder for developing power.

Mrs. Mary A. Flynn.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Flynn, whose death occurred Wednesday, will be held tomorrow morning at 8.15 from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Jerome W. Leary at the Hotel Iroquois, and at 8.45 from St. Mary's church, where a requiem mass will be said for the repose of her soul. Mrs. Flynn, who was in her 54th year had been in failing health for some time. She had been a resident of Plainfield about ten years coming here with her daughter and son-in-law, Jerome W. Leary, proprietor of the Iroquois Hotel. Interment will be in New Haven, Conn., where Mrs. Flynn resided formerly.

Pianos and Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually,

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

GOLF.

With regard to the annual meeting between Eastern and Western teams of women golfers, the following appears in the current number of "The Golfer's Magazine:"

Although the Women's Western Golf Association intends to place in competition for the Thomas cup at Homewood next October the strongest team it can against the Women's Eastern Golf Association, I do not think the loss of the cup will cause the Western officials any heartburnings. The competition has really never been a fair division of geographical strength, as it has practically been Chicago against the three big golfing centres of Boston, Philadelphia and New York. If a team of ten to fifteen Chicago women had to measure their skill against a like number from any one of the three Eastern cities the Western women could probably hold their own against Boston and Philadelphia and beat New York. But when it comes to playing the pick of the entire East the task is not so easy.

Chicago so far outclasses all Western cities, both in numbers and skill that it would be difficult to get up a series of inter-city team matches in the West for women similar to the Griscom cup in the East. The Chicago women would gladly play six or more golfers from any one of the Eastern cities in a team match at Homewood, even with no trophy to be won as a token of victory.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

William Ballanger's team was struck by a freight train at Glassboro crossing, Pitman. One horse was knocked down and the tongue of the wagon broken, but the driver jumped and saved himself.

The summer meeting of the New Jersey State Horticultural Society will be held at the home of Horace Roberts, near Moorestown, on July 27. A visit will be made to the peach orchards of the farm.

In an explosion at the plant of the Camden Soap company, 507 Main street, Wednesday afternoon, Ralston Hirst, the manager, sustained a lacerated scalp. He was cared for at the office of Dr. L. B. Hirst. The building was somewhat damaged.

While the Cape May freight train on the Atlantic City Railroad was speeding along near Williamstown Junction Tuesday night a merchandise car was found to be on fire. In going over the train to ascertain the danger, Conductor George S. Lewis tripped and seriously cut one leg and barely escaped falling beneath the wheels. A stop was made and the fire extinguished by the crew.

Just why $4,000 has not been forthcoming from the State in connection with the construction of the Camden and Haddonfield turnpike is puzzling the Camden County Board of Freeholders who yesterday requested the Stone Road Committee to make an investigation. When the board gets $10,000 due the county from automobile fines, $4,000 will be spent in laying amiesite from West Collingswood to Haddon Heights and $6,000 in gravel ing the road from Berlin to the county line.

John Hunter, a cabine maker, thirty-one years old, a boarder at 707 Fairview street, Camden, is supposed to have been drowned while bathing in the Delaware at Gloucester last night. Hunter and William J. Bamford, a friend, had gone to Gloucester in the afternoon and were out in a boat. They came ashore, visited a saloon and Hunter disappeared. Later his clothing was found in the boat. Efforts are being made to recover his body.

The funeral of Robert F. Carson, sheriff of Cape May county, was held at his late residence in Cape May yesterday. Services were conducted by Rev. R. H. Austin, pastor of the First Baptist church, followed by the ceremony for the dead by Arbutus Lodge of Masons, of which Mr. Corson was a member, and services at the Palermo Baptist Church. The pallbearers were all Masons and county officials.

NEW COUNTERFEIT FOUND.

Discovery of the existence of a new counterfeit $10 gold certificate has been announced by John E Wilkie, chief of the Secret Service division of the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C. The certificate is represented to be of the act of July 12, 1882, series of 1901, and bears the check letter "D," plate number 150, the signature of W. T. Vernon, Register of the Treasury, and Lee McClung, Treasurer of the United States, and the portrait of Hillegas.

The note is from a photographic plate printed on bond paper in which the coloring of seal, serial numbers and back appears to be a brownish-red waterproof ink. The silk fibre is imitated by red and blue ink marks. The counterfeit appeared first in Kentucky.

Mr and Mrs. William D. Murray, of West Ninth street, are at Big Moose, N. Y.

Miss M. B. Morgan, of Central avenue is spending the summer at Spring Lake.

Mrs. Emma Stiglitz and son, Walter, of Somerset place, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Amos Burrell, of Califon.

RUNAWAY BOY TELLS A STORY OF ABUSE

A tale of alleged cruelties, suffered at the hands of his aunt, was unfolded to Chief Marshall Weiss, yesterday afternoon, by Cecil Smith, a thirteen-year-old runaway, who was picked up earlier in the day at David Flammer's blacksmith shop on Somerset street. The cuts on his hands and the general unkempt condition of his body, the boy claimed, were due to his treatment. Smith, whose mother died when he was eight years old, and whose father's whereabouts are unknown, he said, has been working for his aunt. She has a large farm just back of Mt. Bethel and took the youngster from the Bellevue Home, an institute for orphans, located near New York City, about a year ago. Since then she has been making Smith work and he says that any disobedience on his part has been met with severe punishment.

Smith, who is a bright hardy lad, declared to Chief Weiss that his aunt never hesitated in selecting a weapon, with which to administer punishment. The youngster had a couple of bad cuts on his left hand and elbow, which had been recently inflicted. On his hand especially there was a deep incision, which it appeared had never been dressed, and which caused the runaway to wince when it was bandaged up yesterday.

Young Smith selected Flammer's shop as a place of safety because he happened to know a man named Whitman who worked for Flammer. He reached there, barefooted, shortly after noon, and Whitman seeing the lad's plight notified Chief Weiss. The chief took charge of the little fellow, and took him to his home, where he was bathed and clothed. This morning he notified Overseer of the Poor Becker of the case and the latter in turn notified Miss Holly, of the Charity Organization Society, who will immediately institute an investigation.

The youngster when asked his reasons for running away declared that he was afraid his aunt would harm him.

THEY SAW BATTLEFIELD

New Jersey troops at the United States Instruction Camp here unexpectedly received some hard training in field service early yesterday. It came in the form of a forest fire that lasted four hours. New Jersey and Pennsylvania militiamen joined in the attack with the United States regulars here and the flames didn't have much of a chance after the soldiers got moving systematically.

The blaze was caused by a fire that started in the cook house of the division headquarters of the regulars at 1 a. m., and it quickly spread to the section of trees known as Hospital Woods. The blaze in the dry timber was discovered by a sentry who gave the alarm, but before the camp was aroused the flames were roaring fifty feet high.

General Wotherspoon, U. S. A., in command of the camp, gave directions to his officers to take charge of the situation and soon more than 5,000 men were at work fighting the blaze. One line of soldiers, numbering about 1,000 men, was deployed through the woods to chop down the trees and to spade the ground. This move acted as a barrier to the blaze which was about 500 yards wide by this time. It was 3:30 o'clock when the fire showed that it was checked. At the time the flames were within a few hundred yards of the New Jersey outfit.

So close was the fire to General D. F. Collins' headquarters that he ordered the removal of the horses of the Essex Troop and the brigade officers' tents.

PLAINFIELDERS CONDUCT FRESH AIR HOME FOR GIRLS

The fresh air work at Riverton, Conn., in which the Misses Merrill and Goddard, of this city, have been interested, and toward which many Plainfielders have contributed, is meeting with much success. The Miles Loomis homestead, at Riverton, which is being used for the entertainment of these fresh air girls from New York, was opened this week for the summer. There are now sixteen girls at the camp, which is located in one of the most picturesque spots in that section of Connecticut. Miles Roberts, of Kensington avenue, is a liberal contributor to this work, having donated a portion of his property for the girls.
